Holstein, beef, pork meetings next week

PITTSBURGH — Dairy and livestock breeders of all kinds will be holding annual meetings next week at scattered sites throughout the area.

The Pennsylvania Holstein Association will kick things off on Thursday, with its annual convention in Pittsburgh.

Also on Thursday, the state's swine producers are looking forward to the Keystone Pork Congress at the Penn Harris Motor Inn in Harrisburg.

Meanwhile, the state Cattlemen's Association holds its annual conference and "Spring Fling" Friday through Sunday at the Allenberry Resort in Boiling Springs.

Dairy matters spread next door to Maryland where the Maryland Holstein Association's Annual Meeting runs Friday and Saturday in Hagerstown.

Holstein breeders from across Pennsylvania converge on Pittsburgh to start this weekend of annual meetings. This promises to be an exciting activity packed weekend, unlike any others in recent years.

A mall promotion designed to promote milk is scheduled for the Friday and Saturday right in the Station Square Freight House shops. Here dairy princesses from around the state will be making such dairy products as butter and ice cream. A live calf will also be on display at the Spring House store in the mall and is certain to attract a crowd.

Pittsburgh area school children, grades K through three, have been invited to tour the mall beginning with a "barn tour". This barn tour is actually the sale cows housed in the parking garage adjacent to the Sheraton.

The sale, Friday night with 48 cows cataloged, promises to be interesting.

Hoofprints will lead them from the cows to Station Square and the mall promotion. Here they will also be submitting entries for a coloring contest.

Dairymen uncertain as buyout details released

BY JAMES H. EVERHART

LANCASTER — For well or ill, government program or not, area dairy farmers are eying the federal government's new herd buyout program with a mixture of skepticism, uncertainty and unease.

But one thing is certain, they are eying it. Though few experts expect massive numbers to participate, the region's dairymen are being driven by necessity to at least give the plan a run-through — to see if it really "pencils out."

At meetings throughout the area, dairymen heard the experts explain the regulations, talk about the ifs, ands, and provisos, and generally urge caution in formulating a proposal.

But at least in Lancaster, they also heard Extension Service Dairy Agent Glenn Shirk offer some sobering thoughts on dairying over the next few years.

Admitting he was painting a bleak picture, Shirk explained that a combination of factors — including the new Farm Bill, the Gramm-Rudman deficit reduction plan and overall milk consumption — will remake the economics of dairying over the next few years.

"I hate to be pessimistic," Shirk said in unveiling a table listing October 1987 milk support prices ranging from $8.73 to $10.23 a hundredweight. "But I have to present the facts."

Shirk noted that Gramm-Rudman cuts will either pare $2.25 from the support price, or, if a new proposal is successful, will result in a 50-cent-per-cwt. assessment.

And the herd-buyout plan, he said, will offer a way for many to leave the industry . . . and it certainly won't pave the way for them to reenter in the future.

"It's meant to be rough," he said, "not popular, but rough."

As Shirk and Lancaster County ASCS head Ray Brubaker explained the regulations, there were sighs, snickers and a lot of questions. But there was no doubt that USDA means business this time around.

In summary, the dairymen learned that program participants cannot allow their milk-producing facilities to be used in milk production for five years. Nor can they own or have any interest in dairy animals themselves.

They can, for instance, raise grain and sell it to their neighbor to feed to his cows. Both their silos and barns can be leased to store feed for another person's dairy operation. They may even allow a neighbor to graze his heifers on their property.

Vo-ag students find heavier academic load complicates scheduling

BY SUZANNE KEENE

LANCASTER — Controversy stirs in vocational classrooms across the state as this year's high school freshmen juggle their schedules to fit in a heavier load of required academic credits. The concern is that students wishing to enter vocational programs will not be able to squeeze in all the courses they need, especially if they fail a required class.

The '80s have brought a renewed interest in education and a move "back to basics." As part of his plan for strengthening the educational system, Governor Thornburgh directed the Department of Education to develop a program to update and improve the vocational program in the state's schools.

The result of this effort was Chapter 5, which updates the curriculum requirements for all public and nonpublic, nonlicensed schools, and Chapter 6, which outlines general provisions for vocational education.

Under these curriculum requirments approved in February of 1984, students who will graduate in 1989 are required to take additional academic courses to receive a high school diploma. In the past, students in four-year high schools needed a total of 16 credits for graduation. Under the provisions of Chapters 5 and 6, that total has jumped to 21 credits.

Students are required to take an additional credit in each of math, science and social studies, plus 2 credits of arts and/or humanities. They must also take one credit of health and physical education and five additional courses, including vocational educational classes.

While few would contest the importance of academic courses, vocational instructors and directors are concerned about the effect Chapters 5 and 6 will have on vocational programs.

Peter Uhlig, director of Lebanon County Vo-Tech says: "Chapters 5 and 6 were written with certain purposes in mind to meet certain needs. Unfortunately, vocational education in that whole process wasn't as highlighted as it should have been."

"It's a good thing for academic students," says Jim Kerr, president of the Pennsylvania Vocational Agricultural Teachers Association and a horticulture teacher at Willow Street Vo-Tech in Lancaster County. "But," he adds, "it has reduced the students in ag." The additional academic requirements make it difficult, if not impossible, for students to squeeze vocational courses into their heavy schedules.

Carl Graver, a guidance counselor at Smith Middle School in Lancaster County's Solanco School District, agrees that the additional requirements have made scheduling more complicated. "It makes it tougher to get a diploma," he said.

Education swings back and forth like a pendulum, and right now, Graver said, the pendulum is pointed in the academic direction. "I think the students feel this," he noted, and the result will be fewer students in both vo-tech and vo-ag programs.

Because of the changing programs, some vo-tech schools, including Lebanon County Vo-Tech and Lancaster County's Willow Street and Brownstown vo-tech schools, are moving to a seniors-only system. Before, students in

FFA Week starts today

Nearly a half million FFA members across the country will be promoting vocational agriculture and the agricultural industry during FFA Week, Feb. 15 to 22. This year's theme, "Leaders for the New Fields of Agriculture," will highlight the students' promotional efforts.

To recognize these student's and their importance to the future of agriculture, Lancaster Farming profiles two of Pennsylvania FFA's top members, the state Star Farmer and Star Agribusinessman on page B18 Staff correspondent Sally Bair also talked with state FFA vice president Charles Kline; turn to page B2 for an interview with this outstanding student

Delmarva Poultry

Thursday, Feb. 13
Report supplied by USDA

Market Comment: Demand for ready to cook whole birds was slightly improved in some quarters but overall the demand was still no better than fair. Parts in much the same position as cutlets, legs and leg quarters available and a struggle to clear in most quarters.

Live supplies were moderate. Slaughter schedules were moderately heavy and weights were in a wide range. Undertone was about steady.

Today's L.T.L. asking prices were unchanged on U.S. Grade A at .47-.53 cents, but some sales were noted at .45-.47 cents in an effort to keep product clearing.

Estimated slaughter of broiler fryers in Delmarva (000).

Actual 02/11 1,949,000; Average Weights 02/11 4.43; Avg. Wghts. 02/04 4.38.

NOW IS THE TIME

By Jay Irwin

Lancaster County Agriculture Agent
Phone 717-394-6851

To Maintain Tight Health Security

The Lancaster County poultry farmers got a scare last week when a flock in the northern part of the county was declared positive. Then a laboratory recheck found that it was $H_1N_1$ – a hog virus – so the flock was spared. Even though this flock was negative, the other ten flocks in the state were positive $H_5N_2$ Avian influenza. We can not relax on good health security.

Health security includes no visits to other poultry farms, even those of friends or relatives, padlock your houses so no unauthorized people can enter. It's very important to restrict movement of all vehicles – trucks or cars – entering or leaving your farm. Chicken crates are a real threat - be sure they are thoroughly washed and disinfected before using.

Avoid contact with all wild birds and waterfowl. Also, as a precautionary measure, install a foot bath with disinfectant and be sure you use it as you enter and leave the poultry house.

If there is a drop in production, a rise in mortality or sickness in your flock, be sure to contact the State by using the toll-free A.I. hotline 1-800-932-0949. We all have a responsibility to protect our friends and neighbors and to our own farm.

To Recognize Lime For Weed Control

You have never heard us recommend lime for weed control, however, indirectly lime is important to obtain good herbicide weed control. Both research work and farm experience has indicated that herbicides are not as effective in sour soil. So, for best weed control with chemicals, the soil lime requirement must be satisfied.

Many poor weed control experiences have been reported on sour soils. A complete soil test will indicate the amount of lime needed. There are many other advantages to crop production in addition to better herbicide action.

To Keep Small Children Away From Machinery

The spring cropping season will be starting in another month. That means that a lot of farm machines will be put into operation and things will really be moving. Small children like to become a part of this action and ask to ride on machinery, or even operate some of the smaller tractors. It might take nerve to refuse them at times; however, for their own protection they should not become involved. Many serious accidents have happened because "Dad" or "Grandad" took them along.

Where there are small children, all machinery operators should be especially careful of their exact location. Farm machinery and small children do not mix.

To Take A Correspondence Course

To become knowledgeable about a certain subject and continue with your normal job is a possibility. Penn State offers a number of correspondence courses in agriculture and related areas that should be of great help to everyone. These lessons are sent by mail and are practical at a very nominal cost. Details are available at any Extension Office in the state. A leaflet describing the various courses is available. Don't overlook this method of learning more about a special subject.

THE BIBLE SPEAKS

BY LAWRENCE W. ALTHOUSE

THE IMPOSSIBLE DREAM?

February 16, 1986

Background Scripture:
Matthew 5:9, 38-48; Luke 27-36.
Devotional Reading:
Matthew 26:3-6.

As I write this piece, a recorded choir is singing, "Peace on earth; good will to men." According to the headlines in this morning's newspaper and the stories on the television news, peace on earth seems little more than an impossible dream that is no closer today than it has been for the centuries wherein people have dreamed that dream and declared it to one another.

The prophet Isaiah prophesied a day when swords would be beaten into plow-shares and people would "learn war" no more. Jesus declared "Blessed are the peacemakers, for they shall be called the sons of God." But the history of the world, both before and after Isaiah and Christ, has been little more than a chronological account of warfare and wars seemingly unending.

SAID OF OLD

So, are the peacemakers always to be a small minority and is peace ever to remain an impossible dream?

There are many people today who believe that peace is an unobtainable ideal, that the best we can hope for and occasionally achieve is an armed truce. The reason that we cannot have peace, they say, is that our enemies will not let us have it. If we were to unilaterally disarm our country, for example, would not the Soviets and their allies take advantage of our peace-making efforts to gobble up more countries, to subject more people? Wouldn't our military weakness encourage the very conflicts we are trying to avoid?

Often I ponder those very questions and it is hard not to repeatedly answer all of them with an unequivocal "yes." But, at the same time, I cannot believe that the words of Jesus would have dangled the vision of peace before our eyes only to add in fine print: "not applicable in the real world."

LOVE YOUR ENEMIES

Perhaps the key to this dilemma may lie in our failure to put into operation Jesus' teaching where we live. Maybe world peace will remain an impossible dream until we have demonstrated that it is neither a "dream" nor "impossible" in our personal lives, our neighborhoods, and our communities. It is not just that we have failed to love our national "enemies" – the Soviets, the Libyans, the Iranians, etc. – but that we haven't even made much progress in loving Democrats or Republicans, liberals or conservatives, Anti-Abortionists or Pro-Lifers and so on. In just about every area of our lives – perhaps even in our churches – we operate on a confrontational, win-or-lose, good guys vs. bad guys, eye-for-an-eye and tooth-for-a-tooth basis. After thousands and thousands of years, it still doesn't work. This is the real "impossible dream"!

Isn't it about time we give Jesus' way a real chance?

Mastitis, milking equipment update slated

LANCASTER – Many changes, new ideas and new research findings have surfaced recently in the areas of mastitis and milk equipment. These two areas are of great economic importance to dairymen, as they affect both productivity and profitability of the herd.

Two in-depth meetings are scheduled to update farmers on mastitis and milking equipment. They will be held as follows:

Thursday, February 20, 9:45 a.m. at the Berks County Agricultural Center, Leesport. Cost will be $6.00. For reservations, call the Berks County Extension Office; telephone 215-378-1327.

Friday, February 21, 9:45 a.m. at the Lancaster Farm and Home Center. For reservations, call the Lancaster County Extension Office; telephone 717-394-6851.

Topics to be discussed include: mastitis control programs, back flushing, check valves, quad milkers, automatic take-offs, exotic forms of mastitis, milk recording devices, rancidity problems, low tests, teat dips, pre-dipping, dry treatments, cell count levels, new developments in equipment.

Speakers include Penn State Extension Specialists, Stephen Spencer and Lawrence Hutchinson, plus, local Extension Agents.

DANE CARPENTER

Dear Poultryman,

Avian Influenza has again reared its ugly head in Pennsylvania and other eastern states. As of this date we have not had a problem in the Lancaster area. We definitely want to do everything in our power to keep it that way. We are still disinfecting trucks and equipment and our people are using all types of biosecurity measures. You as poultrymen need to do all you can to help keep AI out of your house and out of our area. We urge you to lock your poultry house, provide disinfect foot baths and to control flies and rodents. To help at this time we are offering special prices on fly control products, disinfectants and Purina products, and rat control products. Purina has a new Rodent Control Product called ASSAULT which is a single dose rodenticide. Nothing is more efficient! Ask us about this unique product.

QUARANTINE ORDER NOW IN EFFECT IN PENNSYLVANIA

A WEAPON WITH ENOUGH STRONG POINTS TO DESTROY THE ENEMY.

If you are interested in recieving a copy of this order please give us a call. In the meantime you should be aware of two provisions that effect all of us?

Order No. 3
No truck and no coop, cage, crate or other conveyance may enter a farm in Pennsylvania for the purpose of removing eggs or live poultry unless that truck and/or the coops, cages, crates or other conveyances are in a sanitary condition. For the purpose of this Order, sanitary condition shall mean that the truck, coop, cage, crate or other conveyance of live poultry has been cleaned and disinfected prior to its arrival on the farm and that egg packing materials must be new; unused or sanitized impervious materials. The operator of the truck shall maintain a record of the dates of cleaning and disinfection and shall have in his possession a copy of that record, including receipts for such services if performed commercially.

This means that egg packing materials should be new or cleaned and disinfected.

Order No. 7
Surveillance shall be conducted throughout Pennsylvania to detect the presence of avian influenza. It shall be the duty of the consignor and the consignee of poultry and poultry products originating from Pennsylvania poultry flocks on request to submit designated specimens of poultry tissues for diagnostic purposes. It is also the duty of every person having knowledge of the existence of avian influenza in Pennsylvania to report that information to the Department.

This means that it is now a must that all eggs are checked once per month to detect the presence of avian influenza.

If you have any questions on Avian Influenza please give us a call. We are all interested and concerned about this threat to our business.

Omaha Weekly

Report Supplied by USDA

Slaughter Steer and Heifer prices fell sharply at midweek, ending the period 1.50-2.00 below last week's close. A large country movement along with broad declines in wholesale beef levels precipitated the downturn. Overall finish continued fairly attractive, while numbers of 'muddy' cattle some what increased. Slaughter cows 1.50-2.00 higher. Bulls fully steady.

Estimated 5 day receipts 5600; actuals last week 5953; last year 6736. Steers comprised 42 percent of week's receipts; heifers 42 percent cows 10 percent, feeders 5 percent.

SLAUGHTER STEERS: At the close, few choice 2-4 1100-1350 lbs. 56.00, upper range of choice grade not tested. Few mixed good and choice 2-3 1050-1200 lbs. 55.00-56.00.

SLAUGHTER HEIFERS: Choice 2-4 975-1150 lbs. 55.00-56.00. Mixed good and choice 2-3 900-1050 lbs. 53.50-55.00. Few good 52.00-53.50.

Average of LS 214 detailed quotations for 900-1100 lb. choice steers 56.60, 1100-1300 lbs. 57.15. Average cost steers 57.09* average weight 1210* lbs. as compared 58.36 and 1205 lbs. a week ago. Average cost heifers 56.66*, average weight 1054* lbs.; as compared 57.47 and 1075 lbs. a week ago.

SLAUGHTER COWS: Breaking Utility and commercial 2-3 37.25-40.25. Cutter and boning utility 1-3 36.00-40.00, few head 40.25. Canner and low cutter 32.50-36.50.

WE'VE GOT YOUR TWO BEST OPTIONS FOR MAXIMUM PERFORMANCE. COUNTER®.

COUNTER Banded

Since 1975, tests by universities in the Corn Belt have shown COUNTER® systemic insecticide-nematicide to be the top performing corn soil insecticide. COUNTER controls more major corn pests, with no known resistance, than any other corn soil insecticide on the market.

COUNTER In-Furrow

For maximum performance from your insecticide, put it where it works hardest. In the seed furrow. That way, it can't be blown away during application, washed away by heavy rain, or deflected by crop residue. And COUNTER is guaranteed seed-safe.

COUNTER Versatility

Conventional or conservation-till. Banded or in-furrow. Whatever your corn production system, we recommend COUNTER because, quite simply, it protects your corn crop better than any other corn soil insecticide. COUNTER banded. COUNTER in-furrow. Your two best options for maximum performance.

PFA's 'Friends' group names directors

CAMP HILL – The Incorporators of the Pennsylvania Friends of Agriculture have announced the appointment of 14 members to its Board of Directors.

The charitable foundation is being established by the Pennsylvania Farmers' Association (PFA) to provide an opportunity for farmers and concerned citizens who wish to contribute to projects designed to improve the future of agriculture in Pennsylvania.

Joseph Johns of Davidsville, a former member of PFA's State Board of Directors, was selected to chair the board which will include a total of 18 directors – six each representing agriculture, agrelated businesses, and citizens. Dr. Robert Marshak, Dean of the University of Pennsylvania's School of Veterinary Medicine, will serve as vice-chairman.

Named to the board to represent agriculture are: Keith Eckel, president of PFA; Penrose Hallowell, former Pennsylvania Secretary of Agriculture; Ken Boyer, Snyder County dairyman; and Leon Wilkinson, Chester county dairyman.

Appointed to represent agrelated businesses are: Dean Carey, president of Knouse Foods Cooperative; Richard Croner, chairman of Agway, Inc.; Richard Denison, manager of PFA's Farm Management Services; and Art Smith, executive director of the Pennsylvania Farm and Power Equipment Dealers Association.

Citizen representatives on the board are: Art Davis, Maurice K. Goddard Chair professor in Forestry and Environmental Resource Management, Penn State University; Ron Smith, president of CCNB Bank, N.A.; Dr. Lamartine Hood, incoming Dean of the College of Agriculture, Penn State University; and W. Dixon Stroud, philanthropist and founder of the Stroud Water Laboratory associated with the Academy of Natural Sciences.

The remaining members of the board of directors will be announced later.

Ag export marketing teleconference set for March 6

STATE COLLEGE – The overseas market for American agriculture products grew tremendously during the '60s and '70s, and growers came to depend heavily on their export market. But recently the strong dollar, world recession and other factors have resulted in a drop-off of agricultural exports and contributed to our current farm dilemma.

Penn State's College of Agriculture and the Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture have been exploring ways to expand the state's agricultural export market. As a step in this direction, a national teleconference, "Enhancing U.S. Agricultural Competitiveness Overseas," will be presented at five different sites on Thursday, March 6, 1986.

Experts from across the country in finance, marketing, transportation and government relations will spotlight successful trade programs and examine the elements of their success. The teleconference is financed by a grant from the U.S. Department of Education to the Center for International Marketing Program for Agricultural Commodities and Trde at Washington State University.

Penn State, a member of the National University Teleconference Network, has arranged for viewing sites at five Commonwealth campuses. The sites are:

Fayette Campus, Route 119 North, Uniontown, PA

New Kensington Campus, 3550 7th Street Road, New Kensington, PA

University Park Campus, Keller Conference Center, University Park, PA

Wilkes-Barre Campus, Lehman, PA

York Campus, 1031 Edgecomb Avenue, York, PA

The teleconference will begin at 10:30 a.m. and continue until 3:30 p.m. Finance and marketing are featured in the morning, and transportation and government relations in the afternoon. Lunch will be available on each campus during the 12:30 to 1:30 break.

The teleconference is free and open to the public. Agricultural producers and processors are encouraged to attend.

Grubb names new aide

HARRISBURG – John A. Nikoloff, 35, of Harrisburg, has been appointed Executive Assistant to the Secretary and Director of Legislative Relations for the Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture, according to state Agriculture Secretary Richard E. Grubb.

The move is part of a reorganization within the Agriculture Department designed to increase capabilities for policy development and long range planning, according to Grubb. In his new role, Nikoloff will be responsible for development of proposed agricultural policy, long range planning efforts of the Department, and supervision of the Department's legislative relations programs. Nikoloff will serve as a liaison with state and federal agencies, agricultural organizations and other state Departments of Agriculture

Grubb said he was pleased that Nikoloff accepted the promotion to this new position. "In his tenure with the Department, John has demonstrated a commitment to the state's agricultural community, the ability to analyze the forces acting on the industry, and the ability to communicate with farm, business and government alike. His skills in planning, program development, organization and communications are all essential in his new position."

Nikoloff has served with the Department since 1976, as Press Secretary since 1980. He previously worked on the staff of the State Senate.

He has served as president of the Communications Officers of State Departments of Agriculture and of the Northeastern Communications Officers of State Departments of Agriculture. He was twice named to Outstanding Young Men of America by the U.S. Jaycees.

Agriculture Conference, and has served on the executive committees of the Keystone International Livestock Exposition and the Pennsylvania All-American Dairy Show, and co-directed the public relations effort for the NASDA National Food and Agriculture Exposition in Kansas City, Mo.

Nikoloff graduated from Lebanon Valley College in 1974 with a Bachelor of Arts Degree in Political Science. He is a member of the Pennsylvania Public Relations Society and a Trustee of the Alpha Sigma Chapter House Association.

Nikoloff and his wife, the former Jamie M. Kizer, are residents of Chambers Hill, Swatara Township.

Tree fruit seminar

WASHINGTON – Fruit Growing is a very specialized type of farming, and like much of agriculture it is becoming more and more competitive. The grower who wants to be successful must produce a top qualitry product and work hard to market that product.

Specialists from Penn State and other universities will discuss the latest and best technology for the modern tree fruit producer at a regional growers seminar scheduled for Tuesday, February 25, 1986 at the Holiday Inn, Washington Pa., next to the Meadows Racetrack. Take Exit 8 off I-79.

The $12 registration fee covers the cost of the meeting and includes a good buffet lunch. Registration begins at 8:30 a.m. and the meeting will conclude at 3:30 p.m. This meeting is sponsored by the Penn State Cooperative Extension Service.

Specialists from Penn State will cover many topics important to modern fruit growing. These include insect and disease problems in the orchard, cold storage structures, safeguarding your health while handling pesticides, managing your apple crop with chemical thinners, and using honeybees for complete pollination.

In addition Dr. Robert Carlson from Michigan State University will be a guest speaker. Dr. Carlson is one of the pioneers in the use of dwarf apple trees in this country and he will discuss the best rootstocks available for use today and what improvements the fruit grower can look for in the future.

If you grow or are interested in commercial tree fruit production don't miss this meeting. Update certificates for Pennsylvania Private Pesticide Applicator Licenses will be issued for participants. Contact Penn State Cooperative Extension Office in western Pennsylvania for more information and registration information.

Start every day feeling good... with the best from Funk.

me next summer, you'll know you've made a wise manage-ent decision. You'll be growing hybrids with a reputation delivering what farmers want – consistent high yields. That's exactly what you can expect from these hybrids.

New G-4326. Strong overall performance puts this 0-105 hybrid in the must-plant category for many farmers. offers competitive yields for its early maturity ng with strong stalks and easy harvesting.

New G-4440. Several years of testing prove 4440 can yield right up at the top of its 110 y class. It's been delivering this high performance in our test plots in southern Pennsylvania as well as the Corn Belt. Big, showy ears on fast-growing plants make it a roadside eye catcher.

G-4594. Wide adaptability and performance under heat and drought make G-4594 a wise addition to anyone's corn program. You'll really like its large, girthy ears...and the way it stands tough through harvesting.

Three of the best. There's no better way to start every day.

Buyout: dairymen eye an uncertain future

But they cannot rent out their barn, or allow their facilities to be used in dairying — even if they sell their property. And participants who lease dairy facilities must make sure that the owner does not intend to lease the property to another dairyman, within the five-year contract period.

They can sell their property — not only their equipment but also their land and buildings. The equipment, like milk tanks, milkers and so on, can be used by another dairyman on another facility. The buildings, however, may not house dairy animals.

"The intent," Shirk added, "is to remove the facilities from production . . . and to discourage reentry.

A 4-H member in the family may retain one animal, but it must be a calf, not a bred heifer or cow. And both Shirk and Brubaker said their interpretation is that a participant may not retain interest in a bull syndicate, since that could be construed as participation in dairying.

They admitted, however, that they were not sure about the bull ownership, and were even less sure about embryo and other reproduction-genetic holdings.

Asked if a participant could keep a cow for his own use, Brubaker quipped, "I don't see why not . . . as long as he uses the meat and not the milk."

Participants may use the facilities for virtually any other livestock of their choosing, including dairy goats. But they admitted that beef cattle were the most likely choice, with lambs also feasible, if proposed slaughter facilities in Virginia are as successful as projections might indicate.

Admitting that the regulations were tough, Shirk said he's not sure how successful the new program will be.

"I'm concerned that the herd buyout will not accomplish what it sets out to do," he said. "It will not prevent milk being 'terminated' from being replaced."

Shirk also said many dairymen that he talked to felt the program was unfair to the vast majority of successful farmers, who want to remain in the industry.

"Many are concerned because they are being assessed to pay people to get out of business who should get out on their own," he said. And that includes some relatively wealthy people who are just waiting for an opportunity to make a graceful exit — funded by producers.

And though many dairymen were interested in finding out what the experts think is a realistic bid figure, they received little guidance from Shirk and Brubaker.

"Even to suggest a range would be a disservice," Shirk said. But he did say that extension agents will help producers review all the relevant statistics and prepare their bid.

Ray Brubaker

Glenn Shirk

Weather summary to be offered

NEWARK, DE – A summary of weather data for Sussex County, Del. is now being offered through the University of Delaware department of agricultural engineering. This information, which is collected at the university's Agriculture Research and Education Center near Georgetown, is useful for businessmen, building contractors and farmers It can be useful as an aid to crop management Livestock and poultry growers will also find it helpful in energy scheduling

The data is presented in tabular form. It consists of hourly averages or temperature, relative humidity, barometric pressure, wind speed and direction, maximum wind gusts, rainfall, soil temperature at various depths, total solar radiation and net solar radiation during the growing season.

The tables also report instantaneous high and low temperatures and the time they occurred during the day, as well as total daily rainfall and total solar radiation.

Though the data reported comes from Sussex County, it also has value for lower Kent County, Del , users as well as people who live in adjoining counties in Maryland

The weekly 7-page reports are available on a yearly subscription basis at a cost of $35 to cover postage and handling. To subscribe, write: Extension Agricultural Engineer, Weather Subscription, 058 Townsend Hall, Newark, DE 19717-1303 Please make checks payable to University of Delaware

Buyout worksheets

LANCASTER — Deciding whether or not to participate in the Dairy Herd Buyout program, and what bids to submit, can be a complicated decision. Many factors should be taken into consideration.

For many families, it is a big decision, one that not only affects the future of their business, but the future of their family as well. It is a decision that needs to be made carefully, after a lot of pencil pushing.

Worksheets have been developed to help farmers arrive at appropriate break-even bids and to help guide them through the decisions that need to be made. These worksheets are available from Extension Offices throughout the State.

To help farmers fill out and interpret the worksheet, the Lancaster County Extension Service has scheduled a training session 7:30 p.m. Friday, February 21. at the Lancaster Farm and Home Center.

Computer Analyses are also available from your local Extension Agent. They also are designed to help farmers arrive at appropriate bid prices. The Lancaster County Extension Service has scheduled two training sessions on the computer analyses.

The first session will help farmers complete the data collection sheet. It will be held 1:00 p.m. Monday, February 17 at the Lancaster Farm and Home Center.

The second session is designed to help farmers interpret the results of their computer printout. It will be held 1:00 p.m. Monday, February 24 at the Lancaster Farm and Home Center. Anyone interested in attending this session must acquire a data collection form, have it filled in completely and correctly, and submitted to the Lancaster Extension Office no later than February 18.

It meets the changing needs of most soils and supplies the ratio of Nitrogen, Phosphate and Potash...to maintain a favorable plant-nutrient balance for top grain and forage production.

Pelleted UNIPEL 21-7-14 is an ideal fertilizer for the grower who wants a Uniform Single Application of a complete fertilizer on corn in Spring or Fall. It's especially good for programming high yield corn for grain, or for silage, and for corn/soybean rotations.

Farm Bill adds consumer protection

WASHINGTON – New rules to help strengthen consumer protection against illegal residues in imported meat, poultry and tobacco have been provided by Congress as part of the 1985 omnibus farm bill which became law in late December, Chairman Kika de la Garza, D-Tex., of the House Agriculture Committee said.

The new provisions accompany a number of other consumer sections of the Food Security Act of 1985, including amendments dealing with nutrition education and studies.

"The farm bill is a consumer bill too, because an economically healthy agriculture is the consumer's best guarantee of a continued supply of healthy and safe food at reasonable prices. But along with provisions dealing with farm commodities, trade, conservation, research and food assistance for the needy, Congress also included in this new law a number of specific new steps dealing with food inspection and nutrition," de la Garza said.

To extend protection against the possible appearance of illegal residues in imported meat, the law requires that all countries which ship meat to the U.S. must get certificates from the Secretary of Agriculture showing that they have reliable analytical methods of ensuring compliance with American residue standards.

"This is in no way a trade barrier. It is simply a further step toward assuring compliance with a requirement, which has been in effect for many years, that when meat is sold to American consumers it must comply with American residue standards," de la Garza said.

"A related part of the new law gives the Secretary of Agriculture authority to lay down rules for dealing with livestock imported from countries where they are treated with drugs that are banned in the U.S. and where there is no practical way to find out if the animal contains a residue of the drug," the Agriculture Committee Chairman added.

In a companion food safety move, the law also sets up a study by the General Accounting Office to find out if any further action is needed to strengthen safeguards against residues. The GAO is directed to "evaluate the effectiveness of federal regulations and inspection procedures to detect prohibited chemical residues and foreign matter in food or raw agricultural commodities..."

De la Garza noted that other portions of the law affecting residue protection and nutrition include:

–A requirement that all imported poultry must have been processed under conditions that are the same as those in U.S. processing, and must meet the same inspection, residue and other standards applied to American poultry. The Secretary of Agriculture will be required to take random samples from imports to check on compliance.

–A requirement that imported burley and flue-cured tobacco must be covered by an importer's certificate showing that the leaf does not contain any residues banned in U.S.-grown tobacco. The Secretary of Agriculture will make periodic tests of both domestic and imported tobacco and will bar marketing of any leaf found with illegal residues. (In the case of imports the illegal leaf would be refused entry; domestic tobacco showing illegal residues would be destroyed.)

--A requirement that the Secretary of Agriculture and the Secretary of Health and Human Services make a one-year assessment of existing research information on two issues – the relationship between dietary and blood cholesterol and human health and nutrition, and the importance of dietary calcium in human health and nutrition. When the assessments are complete, the two secretaries will give Congress proposals – including budget estimates – for whatever further studies they find are needed.

–A directive requiring an expanded Extension program of nutrition education for low-income consumers. In a related area, the bill directs the Secretary to include a representative sample of low-income individuals in his department's existing program of surveying consumer diet patterns.

Generators Topsy wins Jersey Great Cow Contest

COLUMBUS, OHIO – Generators Topsy, the first Jersey cow to ever be scored Excellent-97%, is the winner of the 1985 Great Cow Contest, sponsored by the Jersey Journal, the national publication of the American Jersey Cattle Club.

"Topsy", the 1973 National Grand Champion Jersey, was bred by Cedarcrest Farms, Faunsdale, Alabama and was owned by James Chaney, Bowling Green, Kentucky when she died in 1982. Her top milk record was a 6 years and 3 months of age when she produced 25,010 lbs. of milk and 1,119 lbs. of butterfat.

"Topsy" was one of the first daughters of her sire, Milestones Generator. One of the breed's first "high PD" sires, "Generator" is generally credited with turning the Jersey breed around in the late 1960s and early 1970s.

Another "Generator" daughter also bred by Cedarcrest Farms placed second in the contest. Generators Imp, Excellent-96%, is the dam of Favorite Saint, one of the top bulls available through AI today.

Her top milk record came at 6 years and 3 months of age with 25,220 lbs. of milk and 1,188 lbs. of butterfat. She was last owned by The Jersey Nook and Dr. Florence Lenahan of Riley, Kansas and Galena, Ohio.

Generators Topsy, is the winner of the 1985 Great Cow Contest.

Yet another "Generator" daughter and "Generator's" dam placed third and fourth, respectively, in the Great Cow Contest. In third was Generators Faustine of Ogston, Excellent-93%, bred by John Bishop, VI, Columbus, New Jersey and last owned by Heather Dawn Acomb, Stafford, New York. "Faustine", whose top milk record was over 28,000 lbs. of milk, is the dam of A-Nine Top Brass, another of the top AI bulls of today.

Beacon Bas Little Lady, Excellent-92% was fourth and is the dam of the bull, Milestones Generator. Her top milk record, at 7 years and 10 months, was 21,280 lbs. of milk and 913 lbs. of butterfat. She was bred and always owned by Mayfield Dairy Farms, Inc., Athens, Tennessee.

In all, 55 great Jersey cows were nominated by their owners. The final 11 and then the winners were selected based on the votes of Jersey Journal subscribers

Generic PIK plans released by USDA

WASHINGTON – Secretary of Agriculture John R. Block has announced details of the U.S. Department of Agriculture's advance deficiency and diversion "generic PIK" provisions, under which producers may receive certificates for commodities in lieu of cash payments for program participation under the Food Security Act of 1985.

Block said that USDA's Commodity Credit Corporation will issue payment-in-kind certificates that are generic, meaning that the certificate will not be commodity specific. The certificates will be redeemable by producers for any regular, special or farmer-owned reserve loan commodity, and by commerical certificate holders for any CCC-owned commodity.

PIK certificates will be issued in the monetary amount due the producer and will be available for issuance by county Agricultural Stabiliztion and Conservation offices beginning May 1, Block said. Each producer will have until Sept. 30, 1986, of until the maturity date of his loan, whichever is earlier, to request issuance of his certificate and to market the certificate.

Producers holding commodities pledged as loan collateral at signup must redeem that loan collateral (except peanuts and tobacco) to satisfy their PIKs. Producers may elect to use any commodity they hold under loan as a payment-in-kind. The quantity of the loan collateral that must be redeemed for PIK purposes will be determined using the per-unit value as announced by the CCC on the day the certificate is presented for redemption.

Producers who do not hold commodities under loan or whose commodities under loan are insufficient to satisfy their PIK entitlement may sell their certificates: a commercial entity who may in turn redeem them only for CCC-owned commodities; another producer who may use the certificate to redeem his commodity loans; or producers who are co-op members who may designate an approved co-op to market their PIKs.

Commercial holders of PIK certificates may redeem them at any time but before than Dec. 31, 1986. Commercial holders may redeem PIK certificates with the Kansas City Commodity Office (KCCO), 8930 Ward Parkway, Kansas City, Mo.

KCCO will make available a listing of locations of CCC-owned commodities for in-store delivery and the applicable redemption prices Lot selection will be on a first-come, first-served basis as established through the Western Union Easylink system.

Commercial certificate holders who have CCC-owned inventory may request redemption of certificates for commodities at their own storing locations even though the commodity may not have been listed as being available by KCCO. CCC reserves the right to require warehousemen who have CCC commodities to take delivery at their own warehouses when redeeming certificates.

Legislators plan new fight to boost farm income

WASHINGTON – U.S. Rep. Berkley Bedell and six other members of the House Agriculture Committee said that they are determined to resume their fight for emergency legislation to strengthen farm income through the market.

"We are serving notice that we've just begun to fight," Bedell said. "The economic condition in our districts is continuing to deteriorate rapidly. Our farmers don't want to be dependent on the government for their income. They want a fair price from the market. We're going to continue our fight because it's possible to design a farm program that strengthens farm income through the market, not by government subsidies. And we're going to continue our fight not just because of our farmers but because this farm crisis hurts our entire nation."

Bedell was joined by Reps.Tom Daschle of South Dakota, Glen English of Oklahoma, Lane Evans of Illinois, Dan Glickman of Kansas, Tim Penney of Minnesota and Harold Volkmer of Missouri.

The congressmen said conditions have changed to make up a new approach to farm policy more attractive. Farmers need a program that will free them from dependence on government subsidies. The congressmen said they have a program that will spend a lot less money and do a better job of saving family farmers because it will use the market instead of the federal treasury to strengthen farm income.

The congressmen said the goals they want to work for in legislation this year include

– strengthening income through the market

– reducing surpluses

– encouraging lenders to restructure debt

– making sure credit is available.

"We're going the wrong direction in farm policy," Bedell said. "If we ever had an emergency it's now."

Cow mating service offered by mail

Holstein breeders may now enroll in a new sire selection service available by mail from the Holstein Association.

Dairymen enroll in the personalized sire selection program by completing a mail order form and specifying their sire selection requirements and semen price range. More specifically, breeders can indicate screening standards for TPI and/or PD$, choice of A.I. firm and other selection standards.

After each summary run, participants in the program receive easy-to-read, computer reports that list up to 40 bulls ranked by Total Performance Index with bull identification, A.I. company, semen price, PD$, PD Milk, PD Fat, PD SNF, PD Protein and PDT.

Particpants also receive reports that highlight the top 20 bulls that meet their requirements for udder traits, feet and leg traits, dairy capacity and form.

The personalized sire selection program has been designed to save herd owners time in searching through many bull lists to find proper sires to mate the herd. With the Association's capacity to gather the latest performance data on all available bulls in America, the information becomes readily accessible to breeders in the mail-in program.

Bull proofs are summarized twice a year, in January and July. Reports will be issued at $15 after each sire summary run.

For their order form and to learn more about the program, dairymen should call the Holstein Association's Member Service Department at (802) 254-4551 or your area Holstein Association office.

WE'VE GOT YOUR TWO BEST OPTIONS FOR MAXIMUM PERFORMANCE. COUNTER.®

COUNTER Banded
Since 1975, tests by universities in the Corn Belt have shown COUNTER® systemic insecticide-nematicide to be the top performing corn soil insecticide. COUNTER controls more major corn pests, with no known resistance, than any other corn soil insecticide on the market.

COUNTER In-Furrow
For maximum performance from your insecticide, put it where it works hardest. In the seed furrow. That way, it can't be blown away during application, washed away by heavy rain, or deflected by crop residue. And COUNTER is guaranteed seed-safe.

COUNTER Versatility
Conventional or conservation-till. Banded or in-furrow. Whatever your corn production system; we recommend COUNTER because, quite simply, it protects your corn crop better than any other corn soil insecticide. COUNTER banded. COUNTER in-furrow. Your two best options for maximum performance.

Holstein, beef, pork meetings slated

These entries will be judged and awards given to the champion in each age group on Saturday. The students are encouraged to return for this as well as to eat the eight foot sundae which will constructed Saturday at 4:00 p.m.

Publicity for the local Pittsburgh area will be done via radio and television. Elizabeth Heald, PA dairy princess, will be interviewed on radio station KDKA on Friday morning. John and Judy Grice, chairmen for the convention, will be on the local Today Show explaining the sale and mall promotion.

Saturday will commence bright and early with a panel discussion on cow indexes. The schedule of activities for the convention is concluded with the annual banquet where the prestigious Hall of Fame awards will be given.

On Feb. 20, the state's pork industrymen and women will be gathering at the Penn Harris Motor Inn for the Pennsylvania Pork Producers Council's annual Keystone Pork Congress.

An extensive pork industry trade show will open at 8 a.m., with the day's seminar shedule getting underway two hours later. The day's lineup of experts includes Penn State Extension economist H. Louis Moore, Iowa pork producer Richard Hahn, Penn State Extension agronomist Douglas Beegle, PFA's Howard Goss and NPPC merchandiser Stanley Popko.

A women's program will run concurrently, beginning at 10 a.m., and will include home economist Francis Horst, Porkette Betty Wingert and Joan Liesau of the state Department of Agriculture.

New for this year will be a Pork Bowl designed to test the knowledge of 4-H and FFA teams from across the state. Registration for the Pork Bowl gets underway at 9:30 a.m., with the competition beginning at 10:30 in Room E of the Penn Harris.

Top teams and individuals will be honored at the evening banquet that begins at 6 p.m. The event's featured speaker will be Missouri humorist Jack Taylor.

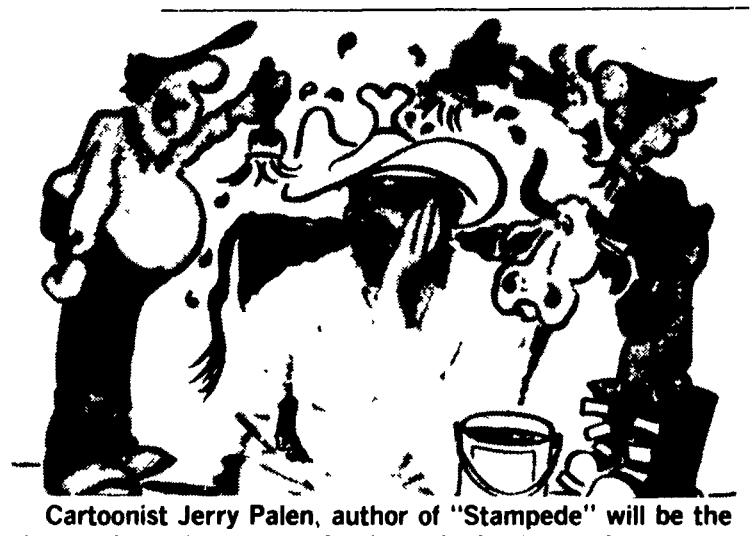
Also highlighting the banquet will be the presentation PPPC's Pork All-American award to Lyndon Hepler, a pork producer from Pitman, Schuylkill County.

A complete schedule of Pork Congress events can be found on page D3.

Snow and freezing weather notwithstanding, more than 200 of the state's cattlemen are expected to convene at the Allenberry Resort in Boiling Springs on Friday for the three-day Pennsylvania Cattlemen's Conference and Spring Fling.

Registration begins at 11 a.m. on Feb. 21, with the conference's first speaker, Penn State economist, H. Louis Moore, kicking off afternoon sessions at 1:15.

Friday's schedule comes to a climax at 7 p.m., with the Annual Cattlemen's Banquet, featuring nationally known cartoonist Jerry Palen. The association will also name three top individuals for their annual awards in three categories: commercial cattleman, seedstock producer and cattle industry award. Also highlighting the banquet will be the announcement of the Pennsylvania Cattlemen's Queen for 1986.



Cartoonist Jerry Palen, author of "Stampede" will be the featured speaker at the Cattlemen's Conference's banquet on Friday.

Saturday's events include two concurrent sessions tailored to the purebred or commercial cowman, and cattle feeders and buyers. A keynote address will be delivered at Saturday's luncheon by National Cattlemen's Association president Jo Ann Smith.

Following a beef promotion update at 1:45 p.m., concurrent sessions on microcomputers and hedging will be conducted, with purebred association meetings scheduled for the same time.

The meeting will adjourn on Sunday morning following Cattlemen's Association and Beef Council directors meetings.

Registrations will be accepted until Feb. 19 for the conference. Contact Lowell Wilson or Sondra Rossman at 814-863-3659 for information.

A schedule of events can be found next to the Pork Congress schedule on page D3.

The Maryland State Holstein Convention and Sale actually runs simultaneously with the Pennsylvania Convention. This Convention opens Friday with the annual business meeting and awards.

This is followed by speaker Dr. Francis H. Fox, DVM Cornell University, who will cover the topic of Johne's disease. The banquet is on the evening's agenda which is followed by the calf raffle drawing.

The Convention concludes on Saturday with the annual Maryland Convention Sale held at the Hagerstown Speedway Exhibition Hall, Hagerstown. MD.

Welker Bros. Dairy, the farm that goes in circles

BY MARTHA J. GEHRINGER

BARTO — These days a lot of farmers feel like they are going in circles but on the Welker Brothers dairy, they really do. At least they milk in a rotary parlor and feed with a circular feeder.

Yet, they are still on a straight path to better cows through quality feeds, improved breeding, and progressive housing. All of this is being achieved with a sense of simplicity and without cutting unneccessary corners.

The Welker Brothers, John "Hans" and Angelo "Son", bought the family farm in 1970 from their father, Adelbert. Six years later, in 1976, they decided to start making some changes.

One of the first changes was the decision to install a rotary parlor. This decision came after they saw one in operation and "fell in love with it".

They liked the convenience it offered, as the cows came to them. Plus it saved on time and space. The latter was a critical factor as the barn, indeed the whole farm, is positioned on hills.

The facility that was installed and is still in use is not the standard rotary parlor. In fact there is only one other like it, and it is known as the Pennsylvania parlor. This model was designed by the local Surge dealer and built with standard equipment parts that can easily be replaced if necessary.

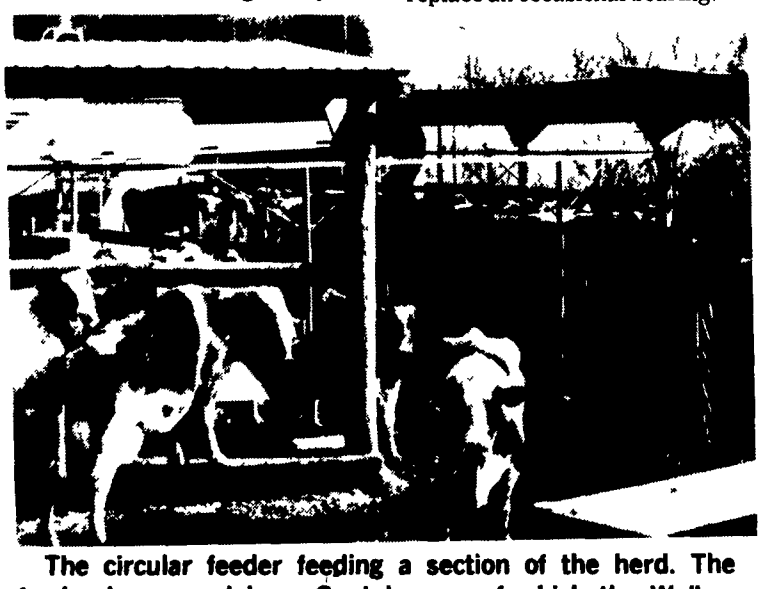
Several unique features this installation includes are concrete floors which roll on rubber carriage tires. This floor is held in place by drive tires which are standard car tires.

The parlor has seven stalls for cows and one blank stall which is used for storage and the power plant. When this stall comes around in the rotation it also affords the operator a break if needed.

A platform which allows the operator to ride along is attached at the base. The entire parlor is instantly reversible and has a variable speed control. Gates are absent from this parlor as they tend to confuse a cow and without them it aids in simplicity.

Another operator comfort feature is the presence of two exits so to allow access at half a rotation. They can milk 108 cows in about 2.5 hours.

During its eleven years, after the initial kinks were worked out, it has been virtually problem free. Angelo who takes care of the scheduled maintenance, and any breakdowns, has only had to replace an occasional bearing.



The circular feeder feeding a section of the herd. The feeder is covered by a Cantalever roof which the Welker Brothers built. This feeder consists of two conveyors. One conveyor feeds the other one at the pivot point in the center. The second conveyor runs on a track around the bunk and is driven by a trolley.

Cows exit the parlor by these steps, and enter by a similar set of steps. The Welkers have had no problems with the cows and the steps, which were necessary since the parlor is situated on the side of a hill.

The Welker Brothers' farm is located in Barto, Berks County.

Perhaps one of the best features of this operation is that it fit neatly into the old bank barn following some excavation.

The next phase of the circle farm was the installation of the circular feeder. They decided to go with the feeder for the same reasons they chose the parlor. Their other option, a bunk feeder, would have required more space, and this system permits feeding of up to four groups in a limited space.

The circular feeder has one conveyor feeding a second conveyor that turns at the central pivot point. This second conveyor is driven around the bunk on a track, and has essentially become a feeder.

This conveyor is also reversible so to allow each group to receive the complete ration before moving to the next section.

One of the big advantages to both these systems is that they are always surrounded by their cows, which aids in early detection of any problems.

Building a 30-cow, freestall barn in December 1984 was a step towards reducing the number of mastitis cases developing in their dry cows. This barn has rubber mats on top of concrete with shavings for bedding.

John stated that "The savings on cows and vet bills are paying for the building. The dry cows are clean and practically mastitis-free. They are now treated almost like queens."

The milking cows are housed in a larger freestall barn one level up on the hillside from the dry cow barn. Their present accomodations are packed clay and shavings with plans for concrete and rubber mats sometime in the future.

Quality forages for these cows is also a prime consideration for the Welker Brothers. Making haylage in the evening after the temperature has dropped and the forage regains some moisture is not uncommon for them. As Angelo explained "when the neighbors see tractor lights in the field they simply chalk it up to the 'night farmers' as some of them refer to us."

The reason for this seeming insanity is that it allows them to retain as many of the leaves as possible and therefore as much protein as possible. They grow 98 percent of their own feed on the 230 tillable acres that are with the farm.

The only feed not homegrown is soybean meal. This is fed at a rate of three pounds per day per cow in the high group and one pound per day per cow in the low group.

Their feeding program is rounded out with the use of high moisture ground ear corn fed at the rate of 18 pounds per cow in the high group and five pounds per cow in the low group.

The entire feeding program is basically the same as it was when their father was working the farm and is based on the TMR principle. Feeding is usually done four times per day, or whenever the bunk is empty. John has even been known to get up in the middle of the night to feed.

Their feeding program's success can be measured by the milk slips which show them to be shipping 12,000 pounds of four percent milk every other day.

The Welkers know that in order to get good cows, one must start with good heifers. This herd is completely homegrown and has been for some time. John takes complete care of the breeding program by selecting the bulls and taking care of the A.I. duties himself.

Some of the criteria for which he selects bulls are a fat test no less than 3.7 percent, quality udders, longevity and strong feet and legs.

Another important aspect of raising good heifers is the environment. At the Welkers', the calves are housed in a renovated portion of the old milking barn.

They are here from birth to one year in a stall-type pen that John designed and built. An elevated feeder is located at the end of the pens over top of the gutters. The center part is open for the heifers to walk about. The portion of the barn that used to be the manger is where the miniature freestalls were place.

Each age group has freestalls which are built for their unique size. So as the heifers grow they are move from pen to pen in the barn. When John was planning this design, he painstakingly took several measurements of the calves at various ages, and built accordingly.

The pens are then scraped into the gutter which is cleaned with a gutter cleaner. This housing keeps

Because every farm is different, we develop different alfalfa varieties.

Your farm is different from that of your neighbor; different soil types, perhaps, or different disease and insect problems. And that may be the best reason yet for using Pioneer® brand alfalfa seed in your individual alfalfa management program.

Thanks to our large and continuing alfalfa research effort, you have a number of different varieties to choose from. There's one that will fit your farm better than any other variety you can buy; and that's the one you should be planting to maximize your long-term alfalfa yields.

Which one? Well, your Pioneer sales representative will be glad to match one of these varieties to your farm conditions and help you start getting more alfalfa from every field on your farm. So give him a call. He's right down the road.

526

As proven in tests, 526 is one of the most winterhardy varieties on the market. It also features outstanding resistance to Bacterial Wilt and good resistance to Fusarium Wilt. 526 produces impressive yields throughout this area and, since the first cutting is a bit later than with 531 or 532, the harvest load can be easily spread.

531

With its ability to tolerate Anthracnose infestations and fight off Fusarium Wilt and Bacterial Wilt, 531 is quickly becoming a favorite in areas where these diseases are a problem. It produces a first cutting early and the fine stemmed, leafy plants bounce back fast after harvest — providing ton after ton of high quality forage.

532

532 establishes a stand quickly and its fast regrowth can mean an extra cutting each season. Strong resistance to Bacterial Wilt and Fusarium Wilt, along with very good field tolerance against Phytophthora Root Rot, all go into making 532 one tough, winterhardy alfalfa variety.

PFU urges assessment for Gramm-Rudman cuts

GETTYSBURG — Representatives of the Pennsylvania Farmers Union agreed at a joint meeting of the farm group's Dairy and Legislative Committes that the dairy industry must act quickly to avoid the effects of federal budget cuts slated for March 1 under the Gramm-Rudman Act.

The dairy section of the Commodity Credit Corporation (C.C.C) budget would be among the areas affected by the automatic 4.3% cuts. The C.C.C would have to lower its dairy budget somewhere between $60 and 80 million. Yet, the 4.3% budget axe would lower prices to dairy farmers by about fifty cents per hundredweight, for annual costs to the industry of nearly $700 million nationwide, according to Dairy Committee member Arden Tewksbury.

The group decided that instead of the dairy industry spending $70 million to save the C.C.C., it made better economic sense to impose an assessment of four cents per hundredweight on all milk. "This would raise the money that C.C.C needs to cut out of its budget while saving the dairy farmers about forty-five cents per hundredweight over the cost of the Gramm-Rudman cuts," Tewksbury explained. The group resolved that the four-cent assessment should continue through Fiscal Year 1986, which ends September 30, 1986.

"While Farmers Union ordinarily doesn't advocate taking more money from a farmer's milk check, in this instance a four-cent assessment is the lesser of two evils," said P.F.U. Executive Director Chester L. Reed. "Our dairy farmers can't be expected to absorb the massive costs that Gramm-Rudman would impose on the industry."

Representative James Jeffords (R-VT) has proposed legislation to impose a small assessment on milk to avoid the automatic 4.3% cuts. The idea has also been endorsed by the National Milk Producers Federation. "The challenge is to get such a program in place before March 1," Reed said.

The Pennsylvania Farmers Union is a voluntary general farm organization representing family farmers throughout Pennsylvania.

the calves clean and trains them to lay in the freestalls when they move out to the freestall barn.

The heifers make this momentous move at one year. They are put into a separate section of the freestall barn that houses the milking cows. A farm bull is used to breed the heifers and they remain in the freestalls until calving.

This method of raising heifers is just one of many areas on the farm which the Welker family has had success with. The brothers operate this farm with two part-time workers and John's wife Marge, who takes cares of all the bookwork and the raising of their two daughters Juliana and Kelly.

They have lived on the farm all their lives and when they started farming on their own 16 years ago, John and Angelo were very idealistic. The rules they established then — simplicity in everything and doing things the right way the first time — have served them well.

They have no regrets about the past, in fact they feel lucky to have their health and feel fortunate things have gone as well as they have. They look to the future with the same type of optimism that they originally began farming with.

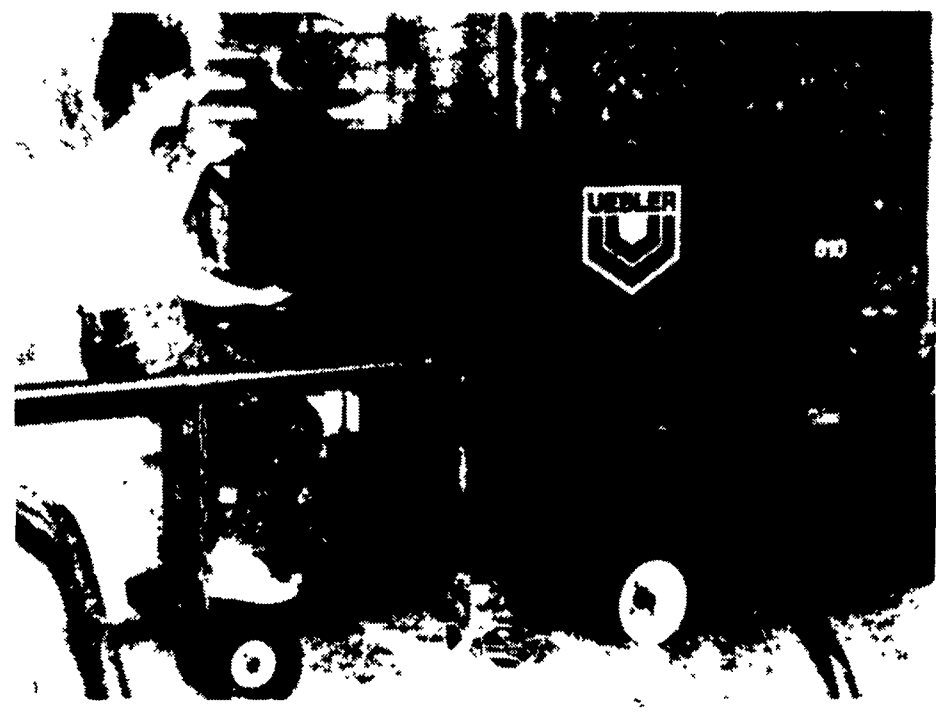
FEEDING MACHINES

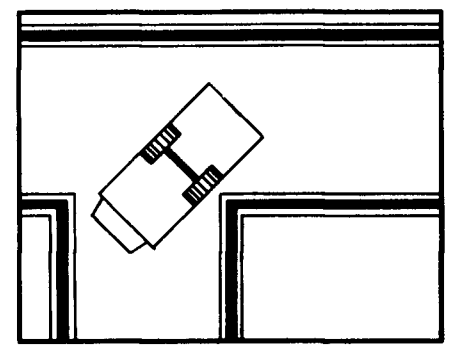


Turn sharper ... carry more

Ueblers are designed with the sharpest turning radius of all machines on the market. Having the sharpest turning radius gives Ueblers a big advantage. Because they turn sharper they can carry a bigger load than other models. Which means fewer trips back to the silo and less time feeding the cows.

There's no magic to why Ueblers turn sharper. They have a shorter turning radius.

CENTER PIVOT



Take a look ... notice that the pivoting drive wheels on the Ueblers are placed as close to the center of the machines as possible. This minimizes the turning radius compared with our competitors who position their drive wheels more to the ends of their machines.

So if you're considering the purchase of a new feed cart and you'd like to cut your feeding time, consider Uebler. We turn sharp and carry more!

Agway holds dairy meeting

SMOKETOWN — James Pullins, Feed Sales Manager, Distribution Services, welcomed the 300 plus farmers to the annual Agway Dairy meeting on February 4, at the Good and Plenty restaurant.

Pullins told the capacity crowd about Agway's strong commitment to the dairy and livestock industry that is supported through their Enterprise salespersons, forage testing, dairy specialists, local stores and research and development.

The speakers at the meeting were from the various departments in the Agway support system.

Dr. Darwin Braund, Director of Dairy and Livestock Research and Development, spoke about the research being done on Agway's research farm outside of Syracuse, NY.

One of their recent findings was the relationship between protein and the reproductive performance in dairy cows. They determined that after all other routes have been explored in solving a reproduction problem, it is beneficial to balance a ration for the various protein types.

Dr. Lew S. Mix, Director, Farm Management Research and Development, explained the current herd buyout program and offered a list of potential savings sources in the cost of producing milk. He urged the group to investigate ways of reducing costs if they plan to produce milk in 1987.

Art Barnard, Director of Marketing for American Farm Products explained the mechanics of the forage preservation products which Agway currently handles. All of the preservation products are designed to maximize the value of the forages by reducing nutrient losses.

Allen Cornman, Regional Dairy and Livestock Specialist reported on dry cow and heifer management. He stressed the importance of keeping heifers coccidiosis free and the role of Rumensin in a heifer management program.

Cornman focused on dry cow conditioning as a critical factor in determining the necessity and amount of grain to be fed. He also talked about the effect feeding dry cows has on milk yield and composition.

Dr. Kendall Dolge, Manager of Nutrition and Quality Assurance completed the day's program by elaborating on the various feeds Agway currently offers. He also spoke on Agway's dedication to quality control and pointed out that $730 thousand a year is budgeted for this to insure their feed has and does everything they claim it will.

He illustrated Agway's role in a farm's feeding program by comparing the situation to a barrel. This barrel, he said will only hold as much as its lowest stave. Agway completes this barrel with its quality feed, reliable enterprise salesmen and the research team that backs up the system. This whole picture has made them a constant leader in the agricultural community.

Retained placenta preventable

Scientists at the University of Maryland say they have found a way to prevent dairy cows from retaining fetal afterbirth following induced calving.

When the technique is developed for all calvings, it could spell a savings of millions of dollars for dairy producers.

The problem, also called "retained fetal membrane syndrome," is a national one that occurs in up to 30% of all natural births of dairy calves and in 90% of all births that are deliberately induced. Researchers estimate that the problem causes a $15-million-a-year loss for the nation's dairy industry.

Researchers Timothy S. Gross and Walter F. Williams injected expectant heifers with a synthetic corticoid called "dexamethasone" 5-7 days before the cows were scheduled to give birth to their calves.

A synthetic corticoid is a man-made drug that produces a response in the cow's body to inflammation. The drug induces calving within 36-48 hours, according to Gross, who will receive his Ph.D. in animal sciences this spring.

Within one hour of birth, cows in the experimental group received an injection of "prostaglandin," a naturally-occuring fatty acid compound that helps to regulate body functions such as reproduction. Cows in a control group were given saline injections instead of prostaglandin.

Of those cows in the experimental group, only 9% suffered from retained fetal membrane syndrome, while 91% of those untreated cows in a control group fell victim to the syndrome.

"When a dairy cow retains its placenta, or fetal membrances, the tissue starts to rot inside the animal and that causes uterine infection and a loss of milk production," Gross said.

"The cow then requires the attention of a veterinarian. That not only means increased medical costs, but it usually means that antibiotics are necessary. And anytime you introduce antibiotics to a dairy cow, that cow's milk cannot be sold for human consumption," he said.

"But most important, retained placenta means you cannot get that animal back into its normal breeding cycle, which is critical for dairy producers who want to keep their animals pregnant as much as possible to maintain optimum milk production," he added

Gross's work is especially good news to dairy farmers for one other reason -- improved management.

After additional testing, the experimental procedure could help farmers induce calving without the recurring problems of placenta retention.

The ability to induce birth is useful to farmers, says Gross, because often several cows are due to calve at the same time. And usually that time occurs naturally in the late evening or very early morning when a farmer is not present to lend assistance.

Before the procedure can be adopted industry-wide, it will require more testing.

"It (the procedure) has some limitations right now," says Gross. "If the cow gets the injection of prostaglandin more than one hour after calving, it will still retain its placenta. And under those circumstances, a farmer would have to be very quick to see a birth and get an injection into a cow before an hour went by."

FORD TRACTOR DARE

Many things about farming are unpredictable. Your tractor shouldn't be one of them.

Nothing has a higher priority at Ford than reliability, and our tractors show it.

The big Ford TW Series tractors are so dependable, in fact, that they come with a three-year warranty. We'll fix virtually anything that goes wrong in the first three years or 2,500 operating hours, whichever comes first...free.

We also provide all the oils and filters for 2,500 hours of scheduled maintenance...free. No other company offers that kind of protection, without an additional charge.

When it comes to mid-size tractors, no one outranks Ford in owner satisfaction. And that's not Ford talking — it's what farmers told an independent research firm about the quality, reliability, durability, serviceability and maintenance of their 30 to 90 horsepower tractors.*

In the under-30 horsepower class, our new compact diesels not only have the features you'd expect on larger tractors, they're built the same way, too. With husky diesel engines, power-matched transmissions and double-reduction final drives for extra strength.

If your old tractor is getting a bit unpredictable, stop in at your local Ford Tractor dealership. Because, when the weather clears, your tractor has to be as ready to work as you are.

Ag engineer offers dairy building update

BY MONTIE TAK
Staff Correspondent

CHAMBERSBURG – "When we finish deciding which way the milkhouse door should swing, we get it approved," says Robert Graves.

Graves was addressing the almost 100 farmers, builders and engineers attending the Fifth Annual Farm Builders Conference and Tour in Chambersburg on Jan. 29 and 30. An extension agricultural engineer from Penn State, Graves presented a dairy building update.

"My intention is to familiarize you with the kinds of informational material available. The reason this is important to you is because the guidelines have been developed to help you."

He also discussed a survey where respondents were to pinpoint five major areas they perceived as problems on their neighbors' farms as well as on their own farms. The results:

| | other's farms | my farm |
|---|---|---|
| nutrition | 24% | 14% |
| housing | 44 | 41 |
| health | 15 | 19 |
| reproduction | 3 | 8 |
| general | 14 | 18 |

Under housing, general problems were cited 40 percent of the time, 20 percent of the farmers cited ventilation problems, and crowding was seen as a problem by 25 percent of the farmers.

In summation Graves told the builders, "We have a lot of building needs out there." He addressed the heart of the builder-farmer relationship by saying, "What's the first thing you want in a client? One who pays, yes. And one who recognizes he has a need that involves buildings. Forty percent of the people on that chart have that need.

"The market is out there and we have the information available for you to make it possible."

Martin E. Moore says we can govern dairy animal injuries or lack of injuries by design.

"We are not just building a building," said the agri-designer and consultant from Copake, NY. "We are housing an animal."

He says one of the most critical injuries to a cow is an injury to the udder–"really the dollar part of the cow." Injuries to the hock, jaw, knee, brisket and hip may also occur in poorly constructed buildings.

"You have to gear the building to the cow. If you do, you make the cow comfortable and the farmer profitable." He sees two clients, the cow and the farmer, who must be considered by the builder and he cautioned his audience, "If the farmer is not successful, we're all in trouble."

Moore calls the importance of master planning on the farm "absolutely critical" and says it should take into account placement of present buildings and future needs and expansion. Feeding, manure storage and traffic planning must be considered. He says if you plan future expansion on paper, it is easy to see errors before they occur. "Get it all together before you start."

He emphasizes the importance of good air flow and ventilation. He encourages farmers to insulate under the roof to protect the building materials from condensation and to produce a quieter barn. He also prefers not having overhead hay storage because of fire hazard.

Moore urged builders to update construction plans because materials or techniques that may have been sufficient last year may be outdated now because of new technology.

Robert Graves, Penn State extension agricultural engineer, gives an update on dairy buildings.

One of the areas Moore sees as critical is manure handling and he calls it "the topic of the eighties." While most people think they are on top of the feeding programs and designing buildings, he says comparatively few know proper manure handling and storage. He also wants to see farmers and builders view attractive farms as good dairy advertisements. "If you're talking about marketing milk, consider the aesthetics around the farm. Present the cow so she looks her best."

He suggests using a pole building for hay storage, placed near the barn. He also likes to see silos

Proper design important in swine manure storage systems

BY MONTIE TAK
Staff Correspondent

CHAMBERSBURG – Farmers could find themselves in a lot of potential hot water if their swine manure storage system is not designed correctly, says Daniel J. Meyer.

Meyer, an extension agricultural engineer from Penn State University, was speaking at the Fifth Annual Farm Builders Conference and Tour held in Chambersburg on Jan. 29 and 30. Almost 100 engineers, builders and farmers as well as 11 exhibitors attended the conference.

"A 250 sow, farrow to finish unit produces 68,500 cubic feet of manure in six months," says Meyer. This is about 514,000 gallons and is roughly equivalent to the amount of manure produced by 200 cows in 180 days, or 670 vealers during the same time period, he adds.

With that kind of manure output, correct handling and storage techniques and facilities are paramount. Poorly designed systems can cause odors, health problems, poor relationships with neighbors and water pollution. He also emphasized many of the factors of correct swine manure handling and storage would pertain to dairy animals as well.

Meyer addressed the common manure management systems available. The options for swine management are to keep the animals in pasture or open lots, in confinement lots or confine the swine in buildings. Confinement lots can have a runoff problem and if confinement buildings are used, the farmer needs to know how to move and store the manure.

A farmer should also consider matching storage needs to building location. He must know local building code regulations and consider the proximity of homes to the storage system.

"The farmer has to live with the complaints," says Meyer, not the builder. Use common sense when you design that system."

Daniel J. Meyer, Penn State Extension Agricultural engineer, talks about swine manure storage systems.

Another important factor in engineering the system is to consider potential pollution problems of ground and surface water.

Options available for storing liquid manure are open or covered storage, mechanically aerated storage or use of a treatment lagoon. Open storage can be either above ground, in-ground or earthen storage other than a lagoon

Covered storage can be in-ground, below the floor of a confinement building or earthen storage with a roof system, such as fiberglass, to keep odors down.

Meyer calls lagoons "a live system" because of the presence of sensitive bacteria that keep breaking down the solids in the manure.

Farmers and builders can do several things to reduce the odor level in a storage system Meyer pointed out that you can incorporate aerators to pump in oxygen, settling tanks to remove solids, add chemicals or enzymes or use mechanical separators.

Aerators have a high initial cost as well as a high operating cost Since they are subject to mechanical breakdown, Meyer advocates having a spare aerator Mechanical separators also represent a high cost and are subject to breakdown.

While digesters may cut down on the amount of odors, they are an expensive system. Chemical additives can also cost a lot and when added, can create additional odors

"There are a lot of expensive options," Meyer advised his audience. "The farmer can have a lot of problems if that system is not right."

He urged builders and engineers to check for potential water pollution and neighbor problems as well.

"Builders must do the follow-up Does the farmer understand the controls? If he knows how to use his system well, the success rate is better."

Animal science professor views horse barn design

BY MONTIE TAK
Staff Correspondent

CHAMBERSBURG – "A hobby that got out of hand" is how James P. Gallagher describes the horse business.

As professor of animal science at Penn State, Gallagher should know. He shared his views on horse barn design with almost 100 builders, farmers and engineers at the Fifth Annual Farm Builders Conference and Tour in Chambersburg on Jan. 29 and 30.

He says the principles of horse planning are similar to dairy planning. Factors to consider are the size of operation, zoning restrictions, water supply, topography and if the facility will be a nuisance to neighbors. If the land has existing buildings, you need to find if remodeling will be practical, economical and aesthetic; if the building layout is convenient, and what kind of electrical and water service the building has. Gallagher also asks, is the building only for horses, or is bedding, feed and tack to be kept there as well?

"Horses in nature get along outside very well as long as they can get out of the wind," says Gallagher. But people may choose to keep show or sale stock in barns to give each one individual attention. In that case, he advises box stalls to measure 12 feet by 12 feet, with doors at least four feet wide, partitions seven feet high and nine foot ceilings in the stalls. Lights should be mounted flush with the ceiling.

He prefers sliding stall doors and says he would like to see a builder design a sliding door that would position itself either open or closed. "There is no more dangerous thing to a horse than a half-open door," adds Gallagher.

In barns with a center aisle and two rows of stalls, he advises builders to leave a small space between boards on the stall fronts to allow for air movement. They should use two-inch thick material to line the stalls because horses may kick and go through the side of a building.

He says one of the most controversial subjects is the flooring material. The tradition in America is to use clay stall floors, but Gallagher says horses can paw holes in it and it can become soaked with urine over a period of time. Asphalt, concrete and limestone screenings covered with rubber mats can also be used.

"The single largest problem in horse barns today is ventilation," he says and urges builders to make it one of their main concerns. He also likes to use automatic horse waterers and to have an opening in the stall wall so the horse may be fed from outside the stall.

Horses love to chew on wood and he told the builders to make sure wood construction is flush or metal covered. He has successfully used corner edging for drop ceilings to cover exposed wood edges.

Breeding operations should include a confinement chute for breeding exams or for medicating horses. Breeding areas should have good footing and lighting, be dust free and be located near the farm laboratory.

Other factors to be considered are drainage, manure storage and disposal, local zoning and fly problems. Gallagher urged the audience, "Maintain a good image in the horse industry."

M. Lynn Sammons, D.V.M., from Willow Creek Animal Hospital in Reading, also shared his views. "Safety is still the number one thing in a horse barn," he says. "If there is something that can go wrong, it will."

His preferences on ceiling height are either a flat ceiling seven feet high or one ten feet high. There should be no protruding nails or sharp edges anywhere in the stalls. "Sheet metal is a disaster to have in a barn," he notes. He also considers good ventilation and dust control essential.

If you include a treatment area in the barn, it should be comfortable and safe for horses and humans. It should be well-lit and constructed so you can get away from a fractious horse if necessary. "It's wonderful what a horse can do if he doesn't want to be there," adds Sammons.

He recommends the use of clay floors in the backyard barn and says concrete is good in the wash bay. No smoking should be allowed in the barn and he also advocates the use of an early detection system.

James Gallagher

"This is an excellent opportunity for builders to make a well-thought-out, constructed product for the customer," he summed up. Sammons advised builders to do it right "or the horse will tear it back down for you."

NFU to focus on better profit at national convention

SPOKANE — Immediate help for financially stressed producers and long-term increases in agriculture's profitability through the marketplace are at the top of the list of concerns to be addressed by delegates to the 84th annual National Farmers Union convention March 2 through 5 at the Sheraton Spokane Hotel.

Delegates will write the organization's policy statement containing legislative, educational and cooperative goals for the next year. In addition, an impressive list of policy leaders, international producer representatives, and rural life experts will address the crowd.

The U.S. Senate's leader in the drive to write the best possible 1985 Farm Bill will open the convention March 2. Sen. John Melcher, D-Mont., received national recognition for his role in preventing farm prices from dropping to even more disastrous levels. He is expected to discuss details of the Farm Bill, explain why it doesn't offer more hope to family farmers, and assess efforts to improve the bill.

Issues of importance to farmers and ranchers but not limited directly to the agriculture committee will be addressed by Congressman James Oberstar, D-Minn. Oberstar is a member of the House Public Works Subcommittee on Water Resources and the Committee on Merchant Marines and Fisheries. These issues, along with his work for progressive dairy legislation, will be topics for his speech March 3.

Innovative farm marketing to obtain the best possible price will be discussed that same day by a panel of experts, including Congressman Dan Glickman, D-Kan. A member of the House Agriculture Subcommittee on Domestic Marketing, Consumer Relations and Nutrition, Glickman is an outspoken advocate of strengthening the role of the producer in the marketplace. Others on the panel include Dr. John Goodwin, vice president for agriculture at the University of Arkansas, and Walter Hackney, livestock division director for the National Farmers Organization. NFO President DeVon Woodland, whose organization is devoted to farmer collective bargaining, will moderate the session.

Farm unity will be evidenced by Woodland's participation, along with greetings to be extended by Women Involved in Farm Economics (WIFE) President Naioma Benson and The National Grange Master Edward Anderson. Both will speak on March 3. Addresses by NFU Vice President Stanley Moore and NFU President Cy Carpenter will be given that evening.

Iwao Yamaguchi, senior executive director of the Central Union of Agricultural Co-operatives in Tokyo, Japan, and Allan J. Macpherson, president of the Alberta (Canada) Wheat Pool, will lend an international flavor to the convention. Yamaguchi will speak March 3 and Macpherson will speak March 4. A U.S. cooperative leader, Farmers Union Central Exchange President Darrell Moseson, will address the convention March 4.

Former Presidential candidate and U.S. Sen. George McGovern will round out the program. McGovern will discuss his dreams for the future of agriculture and family farmers as he leads a tribute to former NFU President James Patton. McGovern was the first director of the Food for Peace Program, and Patton was an architect of the plan. Over the years the two men found much in common in their interest in the United Nations, the cause of organized labor, justice for farmers, and equality and equity for all Americans.

Gregory Cusack, executive director of National Catholic Rural Life Conference, will close the convention with his banquet address. Cusack, a nationally recognized speaker, will address solutions to the farm crisis and also speak about the need for church involvement and more improvement in public agricultural policies.

PA egg output up 11% in '85

HARRISBURG — Annual egg production for the year ending November 30, 1985 in Pennsylvania totaled 4.77 billion eggs, 11 percent more than were produced in 1984, according to the Pennsylvania Crop and Livestock Reporting Service. The average number of layers during 1985 was 18.2 million, 12 percent more than the 16.3 million in 1984. The increase was due primarily to the repopulation of layers after cleanup of the Avian Influenza. The annual average production per layer was 262 eggs compared to 263 for 1984.

The inventory number for all chickens in the Commonwealth (excluding broilers) on December 1 was 22.1 million, down two percent from the 22.5 million on hand December 1, 1984. Of this total, 18.4 million were layers, 1.7 million were pullets three months old and older not yet of laying age, 1.8 million were pullets under three months of age, and the remaining 180,000 were other chickens. The average value per head was $1.65.

U.S. egg production during the year ending November 30 totaled 68.4 billion eggs, up fractionally from the 68.2 billion produced in 1984. Layer numbers during 1985 averaged 277 million compared with 278 million during 1984. The annual average production per layer on hand in 1985 was 247 eggs compared with 245 eggs in 1984.

The U.S. inventory for chickens (excluding broilers) December 1, 1985 totaled million, down two percent from 374 million on December 1, 1984. this total, 280 million were laye 37 million were pullets th months old and older not yet laying age, 44 million were pull under three months of age and remaining seven million we other chickens. The average va per head was $1.90.

placed close together for convenience and preferably on the north side of the barn to allow more light into the barn.

Some aspects he likes to consider are a treatment area of a veterinarian work area. He adds often with open feeding areas there is a problem with birds and he says good construction planning will not give the birds a place to perch. Moore also says there should be no contact between the cow and metal building materials.

He also believes skid grooving in concrete is essential but can be overdone. "If the surface is too rough, cows will get sore feet. If it's too slick, they won't show heat by mounting each other."

Find out what the farmer wants, Moore urges. "If 40 percent of the farmers really have problems with their facilities, let's give him his money's worth."

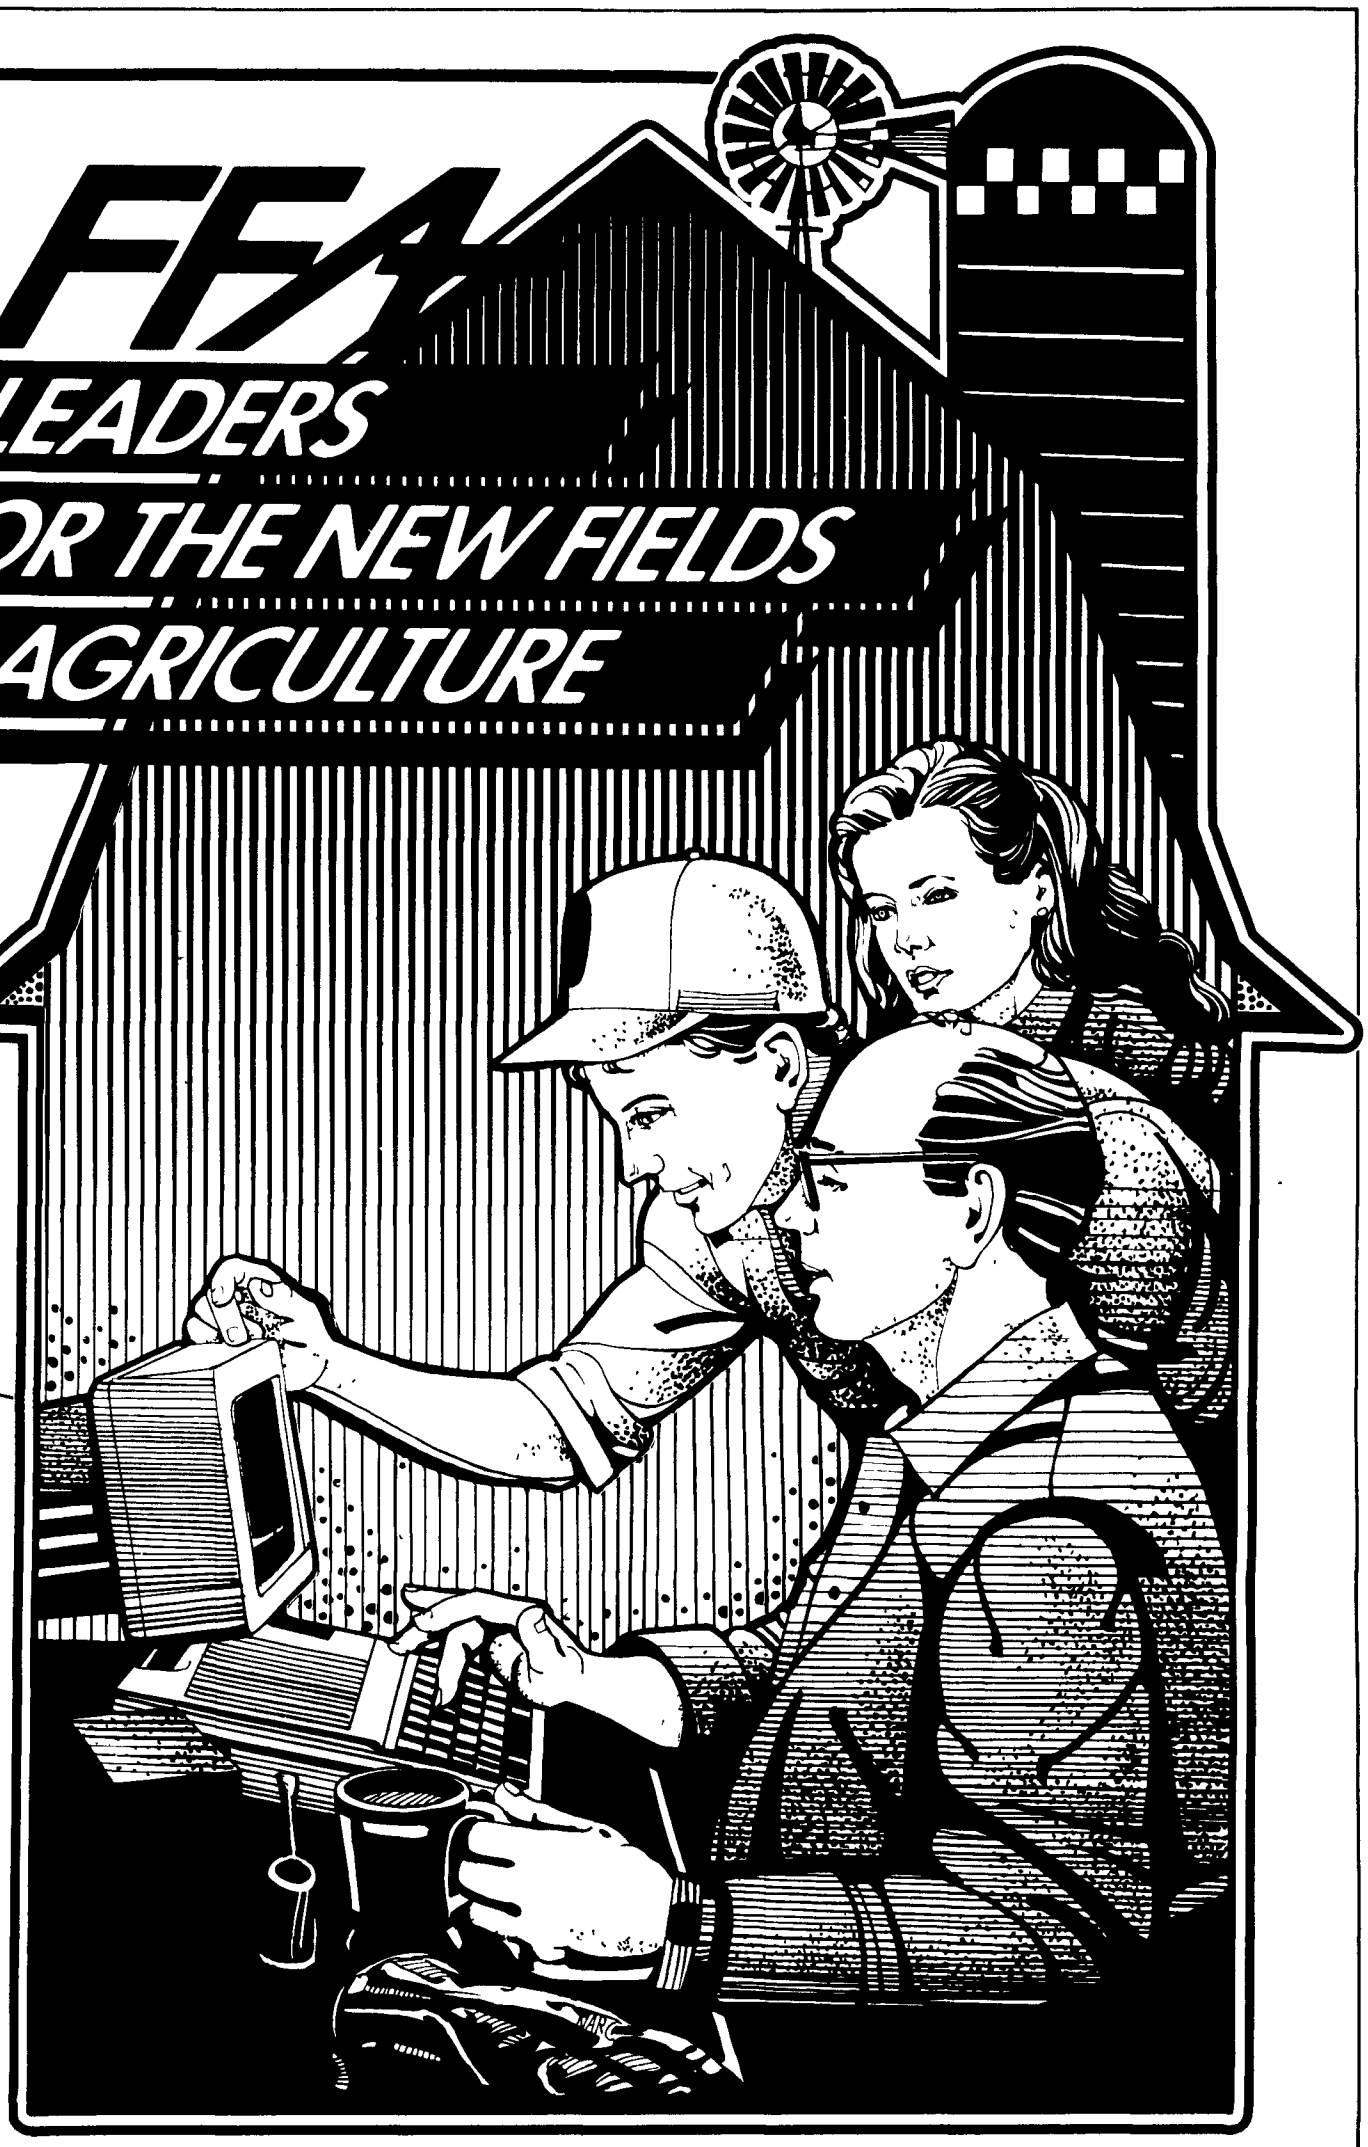
LEADERS FOR THE NEW FIELDS OF AGRICULTURE



Farming. It's an ongoing search to find a better, more productive way, and the industrious members of our FFA play a big part. They're taught right from the start that the future of agriculture lies in keeping abreast of the latest technology, and that they must adapt to and embrace the new to achieve success. FFA continually produces a bumper crop of talented, inventive and dedicated young people to work in and lead the new fields of agriculture, and we're proud to show them our wholehearted support.

Avian Flu Monitor

Lancaster avian flu report is false alarm

BY JACK HUBLEY

LANCASTER — Lancaster County's poultry industry breathed a sigh of relief last week when a Denver-area flock of guineas and chukars mistakenly diagnosed as victims of avian flu were found to be free of the H5N2 virus.

The false alarm was sounded on Feb. 7, when the National Veterinary Services Lab in Ames, Iowa reported that the flock of 11,500 birds contained the H5 component of the deadly H5N2 avian influenza virus. The flock was scheduled for depopulation on Feb. 10.

Subsequent tests, however, revealed that the virus was in fact a swine virus identified as H1N1.

But this does not mean that the state's top poultry and egg producing county can afford to drop its guard, cautioned county extension director, Jay Irwin. "We've really got to maintain tight security," Irwin emphasized. "With this colder weather the virus lives longer, so there's more chance to move it around."

Many area poultry haulers have, in fact, not relaxed their cleanup producers since the virus claimed some 16 million birds in the outbreak that swept the state two years ago. Bill Risser, president of Risser Poultry, Inc, located in Lititz, notes that his company has continued to exercise strict sanitation procedures. "We've been cleaning and disinfecting after every use," notes Risser, whose firm trucks spent laying hens to two processing plants in New Jersey. As required in the Secretary of Agriculture's recently invoked quarantine order, Risser's trucks have been carrying a "C&D paper" as documentation with every load.

"The threat of another epidemic is very present in our minds," says Ben Burkholder of Victor F. Weaver. The New Holland-based poultry processing firm has maintained most of its cleaning and disinfecting procedures since the 1984 outbreak, Burkholder says.

All poultry hauling trucks are washed and disinfected after moving birds, Burkholder points out. At the present time, however, the firm is not disinfecting every truck that arrives on company property as was done during the 1984 epidemic.

Following the Lancaster County incident, infected flocks continued to be uncovered last weekend. A Snyder County flock of 50,000 broilers located near Winfield was depopulated on Wednesday, and a 21,000-bird layer flock located near Pitman in Schuylkill County was destroyed on Thursday.

Intensified surveillance continues to be practiced in counties where the virus has been discovered, according to Penn State avian disease expert Dr. David Kradel. Task force members are testing fresh mortalities from all flocks known to have been visited by poultry haulers that were identified as carriers of the disease. Dead birds from 150 to 170 such farms are being tested at least once a week, Kradel said.

USDA announces loan rates

WASHINGTON — Secretary of Agriculture John R. Block has announced provisions of the 1986 price support programs for upland cotton, feed grains, rice and wheat.

The programs include required acreage reductions of 20 percent for feed grains, 35 percent for rice, 25 percent for wheat, and 25 percent for cotton. Included in these reductions is a 2 1/2 percent paid land diversion for wheat and feed grain producers.

Signup for the farm programs is anticipated to begin in early March.

The 1986 loan rates (per bushel), will be $1.56 for barley, $1.92 for corn, $.99 for oats, $1.82 for sorghum, $1.63 for rye, and $2.40 for wheat.

Target prices will be the same in 1986 as were in effect for 1985 crops. They are (per bushel): barley, $2.60; corn, $3.03; oats, $1.60; sorghum, $2.88; wheat, $4.38.

Producers are eligible to earn deficiency payments on the acreage planted within the extent permitted. Producers who plant at least 50 percent of the permitted acreage to the program crop and plant the remaining permitted acreage to a non-program crop, other than soybeans or extra long staple cotton, will be eligible to receive deficiency payments on 92 percent of the permitted acreage.

Winter wheat producers who reduce the acreage planted to wheat on the farm for harvest so that it does not exceed 65 percent of the farm wheat base may be eligible to receive diversion payments on an acreage equivalent to 10 percent of the wheat base.

Implementation of discretionary provisions relating to payments in commodities and other contractual provisions will be announced later.

Individual producers will be notified on their farm acreage bases and program yields by their county Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service offices.

Haying and grazing will be permitted on acreage conservation reserve land at the request of individual state ASC committees. However, haying or grazing will not be permitted on the acreage during the five principal growing months as designated by county ASC committees. Block also approved a standby measure authorizing, in the event of a natural disaster, implementation of emergency haying and grazing privileges. Approval of the emergency privileges would be made as needed on a county-by-county basis.

Sheep numbers

HARRISBURG — Pennsylvania's inventory of all sheep and lambs on its 4,900 sheep farms January 1 was 93,000, up six percent from the record low inventory of Jan. 1, 1985, according to the Pennsylvania Crop and Livestock Reporting Service. Of the total, 68,000 were ewes one year and older, 6,000 head were rams and wethers one year and older, 14,000 were ewe lambs, and 5,000 were ram and wether lambs. The inventory value of all sheep and lambs was $7.8 million, up 32 percent from January 1, 1985. Average value per head increased $17.00 to $84.00 per head.

Total U.S. inventory is estimated at 9.93 million head, down five percent from the 10.4 million head a year earlier. The value of all sheep and lambs on hand January 1, 1986, totaled $670 million, up five percent from a year ago. The average value per head was $67.40, up $6.30 from last year. Stock sheep inventory dropped to a record low 8.44 million head, five percent below Jan. 1, 1985. Ewes one year old and older, at 6.78 million head were down six percent. Ewes lambs increased three percent to 1.04 million. Wether and ram lambs were 11 percent more than last year.

The 1985 Pennsylvania lamb crop was 75,000 head, six percent below 1984. Breeding ewes one year old and older on January 1, 1985 were 67,000 compared with 77,000 a year earlier. Lambs saved per 100 ewes one year old and older was 112 in 1985 compared with 104 in 1984.

The 1985 U.S. lamb crop of 7.38 million head declined five percent from the 1984 lamb crop. Breeding ewes one year old and older on January 1, 1985, were down eight percent from the previous year. The 1985 lambing rate was 102 lambs per 100 ewes one year old and older, compared with 99 in 1984 and 98 in 1983.

Vo-ag scheduling becomes more complicated

10th through 12th grades attended vo-tech schools on a half-day basis.

Under the new programs, which will be phased in over a three-year period, only seniors will be eligible for vocational instruction and they will attend the vo-tech school for full days.

Peter Uhlig, director of Lebanon County Vo-Tech, says their move to a 12th-year program can be partially attributed to Chapter 5. Chapter 5 has cut down on the time allowable for vocational education and one way to make more time, is a 12th year program, he said. One big savings is in the time spent transporting students from one school to another.

York County Vo-Tech has had fewer adjustments to make, director Garland Gingrich reports. "We haven't been affected by Chapters 5 and 6 as much as the part-time schools," he said.

Because York Vo-Tech is full-time school offering a three-year vocational program, students there have more scheduling flexibility than thier Lancaster and Lebanon counterparts. "We are not looking at having to make any changes for next fall," Gingrich said. However, he continued, "We might have to make some in '87-'88."

But while the program in the school remains the same, Gingrich said the entrance requirements have increased to assure that students will have enough credits to meet graduation requirements. Before this year, students had only to pass 9th grade to gain entrance, but this year, in addition to that requirement, they must have three credits in major subjects like math, English, science, or arts and humanities.

But unlike Graver and Kerr, he doesn't see the change decreasing enrollment. "I don't believe that's going to offset our enrollment," he said. Dale Gerber, vo-ag instructor at Warwick High School, says Chapters 5 and 6 have not hurt enrollment in Warwick's vocational program either. "There hasn't been a dramatic dropoff or scheduling problems," he said.

However, they have made one concession to help vocational students meet their academic requirements. For the first time, students can obtain a science credit for the animal and plant science portions of the ag program.

Ron Althoff, vo-ag instructor at Solanco High School, says they haven't had to make any changes yet either. But, he said, while the graduation requirements allow enough space for the vo-ag program, it doesn't allow time to make up for even a single course a student fails. If a student fails a course, he must give up an elective to meet his requirements, and "that's where our concern is," Althoff said.

The vocational program is directed at the non-acadademic student and many of the kids enrolled in the program have to struggle to make it through the required courses. Forcing that student out of the vocational program because he failed an academic course, is making it more tempting for him to drop out of school entirely.

To give the students a bit more flexibility, Solanco is starting a program next year that will allow a student who fails a course to take an independent study course to make up the failed course while remaining in the vocational program.

The problems Chapters 5 and 6 have created for the vocational programs have not gone unnoticed by area legislators. Rep. Jess Stairs of Westmoreland County has introduced legislation that will allow vocational students to be exempt from two credits of arts and humanities. His bill, House Bill 740, was amended in the appropriations committee to exempt vocational students from two additional credits.

The bill, Stairs said, will allow students to substitute courses. For example, carpentry, a vocational course, requires knowledge of certain kinds of math, and could be considered a math credit. "It will be up to the local districts to decide on substitutions," he said.

Stairs said he was concerned over the effect Chapters 5 and 6 had on the vocational program. The curriculum requirements were detrimental to vocational program to the extent that they would phase it out of existence, he said. "It's an either or type of thing," he said, noting that students have the choice of meeting graduation requirements or taking vocational courses.

"What I'm trying to do is re-emphasize vocational education and take away the stigma of making it an elective," he said.

Rep. John Barley of Lancaster County, also supports House Bill 740. "We're going to lock their options out by requiring these academic courses," he warned. "We must give the same emphasis to the student who wants to train to be a plumber or farmer," as to the student who chooses to go to college, he said.

Barley urges citizens concerned about the vocational program to ask their congressmen to support House Bill 740. He noted that the Pennsylvania State Education Association supports the bill, which should come to a vote in Congress next week.

HARRISBURG – The Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture's Bureau of Dog Law Enforcement, county treasurers and authorized agents issued nearly one million licenses during the 1985 calendar year, according to state Agriculture Secretary Richard E. Grubb.

Pennsylvania Dog Law requires all dogs six months of age or older to be licensed. Failure to comply with the law could result in fines of up to $300 plus costs. Bureau of Dog Law Enforcement statistics indicate that as many as one million dogs are not licensed each year. The deadline for registering dogs for 1986 was January 1. Owners who have not complied may still purchase licenses through the county treasurer's office in their area or from an authorized agent of the Department.

Questions concerning the Pennsylvania Dog Law or the Bureau of Dog Law Enforcement may be directed to the State Dog Warden in your area or to the Bureau at (717)787-3062.

Plant T1100. The standard of comparison.

You could have taken a chance with an unknown corn hybrid this spring. One of those new hybrids that's supposed to be "even better" than DEKALB-PFIZER's T1100. But you know how T1100 performs.

T1100 handles stress, no matter what the season has in store. And it stands strong all the way to harvest, so you can put those extra bushels in the bin. T1100's a proven performer. No doubt about it. And that's what you want from your corn hybrid. Don't take a chance you don't have to take. Plant the standard of comparison. Plant T1100.

Holstein Association offers sire selection help

Sire Selection continues to be the single most important factor in herd improvement, yet we hear veteran and novice dairymen alike, lamenting that "I just don't know which bull to use." For many, the red book, Sire Summaries from Holstein Association is an excellent source of this information.

Then too, you may want the Holstein Association consultant in your area to help you apply performance information in your sire selection decisions, allowing you to develop a long-term cattle breeding program.

Simply stated, the Holstein consultant translates performance information into terms that spell added opportunity for success with the next generation of cattle that you milk in your barn.

There is no magic to this system. By analyzing the performance data, the consultant identifies sires which are transmitting strengths in areas where your herd is deficient. This can be milk production, level of butterfat, sound feet and legs or functional udders. It is a process of increasing the odds your next generation of cattle will have the ability to produce high volumes of milk and that they will have sound udders with correct feet and legs. In short, they will be profitable cattle.

If your problems are many, your consultant will be quick to inform you that the fewer number of functional traits selected for, the more improvement you will experience in any one trait. He will be quick to explain that breeding cattle is not an art, nor is there any mystery to it. His efforts are to merely increase the odds for your success.

But there is more that the Holstein consultant does when he is on your farm. Without question, he will look closely at your 2 year olds which have calved in the last 6 to 8 months. He will make a mental note to see if they are well grown. If the heifers are on the small size, he may want to take a look at your herd replacement program. Experience has taught him to look for over-crowding, underfeeding, or perhaps both situations. His aim is for you to get all the genetic potential from your young stock. Quite frequently a simple solution surfaces which suggests raising heifers only from the top 75 or 80% of the herd.

Production information gives the consultant clues to the feeding program. If total production or butterfat seems to be low for the genetic potential of your herd, your feeding program may be the culprit.

Association consultants look for ways to increase pedigree value in the resulting offspring of the mating recommendations. All too frequently, we see a good cow whose dam was by a heifer freshener bull, and the next two dams are very good or excellent. This alone, pointed out to the dairyman; may result in him using genetically superior bulls.

If the consultant observes a surplus of good cows in your herd, he may help you enhance your merchandising program. On the other hand, if he doesn't see enough sound cows, he might suggest that you upgrade your milking herd by adding cows with good pedigrees, good udders, good feet and legs, to your overall herd. The consultant may, through observation, determine that another service from the Association might be used to your advantage. He'll point out that if there is no identification, it will be difficult for you to determine which are the parents of your good cattle as well as your bad ones.

Before your Association consultant leaves, he will be apt to tell you that 75% of the milk in your bulk tank results from your management, your feeding program, the time of year and other factors. He will remind you that only 25% of the milk in your bulk tank truly emanates through genetics. I am sure he will indicate that the field of genetics, and a practical dairy cattle breeding situation, represents a chance that you take.

If you could use the guidance of a Holstein Association consultant to help you build more productivity and profitability into your herd, call your Holstein Association area office this week and request a visit.

Cornell program aids volunteerism

ITHACA, NY – The roles of most young teenagers are primarily being a student and a family member. Few have opportunities to take on projects that promote responsibility or allow them to function in groups that are not directly controlled by adults.

To provide such opportunities and to develop a volunteer ethic in young teens, the W. K. Kellogg Foundation of Battle Creek, MI, has awarded $88,000 to Cornell University. The grant is part of a nationwide effort to strengthen volunteerism in 4-H programs. The five-year project, "Volunteer for the Future," is made possible by a $2,753,200 grant from the Kellogg Foundation through the National 4-H Council. Nearly $1 million has been awarded to land-grant universities in 12 states.

At Cornell, training programs and materials (printed and videotaped) will be developed to help train youth and adults to carry out volunteer programs. Youths will be recruited from 4-H clubs and middle and junior high schools to participate as assistant 4-H club leaders and as aides in after-school care programs for young children and in community improvement projects.

"As young people become adolescents, they need opportunities to take responsible roles in which others are dependent upon them," says Stephen Hamilton, associate professor of human development and family studies at Cornell.

"Our project is designed to enhance the ability of young adolescents–primarily those who are from 12 to 15 years-old–to work in volunteer settings and to promote more socially responsible attitudes," says Hamilton, who is director of the Cornell volunteer project.

Hamilton, a youth specialist in the New York State College of Human Ecology at Cornell, is planning the pilot program for six counties, as yet unchosen, where at least 30 youth volunteers from each will be trained and placed.

Nationwide, 620,000 volunteers serve the nearly 4.5 million youth in 4-H.

State's meat production up

HARRISBURG – Pennsylvania's December 1985 commercial red meat production, dressed weight basis, totaled 84.1 million pounds, up eight percent from December 1984, according to the Pennsylvania Crop and Livestock Reporting Service.

Beef slaughter, at 109.6 million pounds liveweight, was up 20 percent from December 1984. Total head slaughtered was 92,000, up 16 percent, and liveweight averaged 1,192 pounds, an increase of 39 pounds. Veal slaughter was 4.8 million pounds liveweight, 27 percent above last year. Calf slaughter of 28,500 head was up 24 percent. The average liveweight increased three pounds to 169 pounds.

Hog slaughter, at 33.4 million pounds liveweight, was down 14 percent from a year earlier. Total head slaughtered was 142,300, down 11 percent; average liveweight decreased seven pounds to 234 pounds. Lamb and mutton slaughtered was 1.1 million pounds liveweight, down 22 percent. The number slaughtered was 10,300, down 24 percent. However, the average liveweight increased three pounds to 107 pounds.

U.S. commercial red meat production in December totaled 3.14 billion pounds, up one percent from December 1984. Comparing December 1985 with December 1984, beef production at 1.85 billion pounds was up one percent. Cattle kill at 2.92 million head was down one percent, while average liveweight increased 19 pounds to 1,092. Veal production at 46 million was up 18 percent from last year. Calf slaughter at 316,000 head was up 18 percent, and average liveweight increased three pounds to 246.

Pork production totaled 1.22 billion pounds, down less than one percent. Hog kill totaled 6.90 million head, down one percent. Average liveweight increased one pound to 246 pounds. Lamb and mutton production, at 30 million pounds, was unchanged from last year. Slaughter totaled 505,000 head, down five percent. Liveweight averaged 117 pounds, three pounds heavier than a year earlier.

Hay marketing project underway

CHESTER – Small scale hay producers in Southeastern Pennsylvania are invited to particpate in a special hay marketing project sponsored by the Cooperative Extension Service. Using funds secured through Penn State's Small Farms Program, producers can have their hay sampled, tested and advertised for sale by hay quality this market season.

This project is designed to open up new marketing opportunities for the producers whose gross farm income is less than $50,000. In addition to helping market hay, this project also will fund a hay newsletter and several hay production/marketing meetings throughout the region in 1986. These would be available to all interested hay producers.

The sponsoring Cooperative Extension personnel are Bruce Kreider in Dauphin County (717) 652-8460, Larry Yager and Bill Murray in Adams County (717) 334-6271 and Cheryl Fairbairn in Chester County (215) 696-3500. These agents will be supervising the sampling, testing and advertising of the hay for small scale producers. Also, they are creating a mailing list of all interested hay producers for the newsletter and the hay production and market meetings. Contact them soon to participate in this program.

Milk price to drop in March

Alexandria, VA -- Middle Atlantic Order Market Administrator Joseph D. Shine today announced a Class I milk price of $13.90 per hundredweight for March 1986. This price is down six cents from February and is $1.28 below last March's Class I price.

Mr. Shine announced a Class II milk price of $11.17 per hundredweight for January 1986 and a butterfat differential of 16.0 cents for the month. The Class II price was down nine cents from the previous month, while the butterfat differential was unchanged.

The March 1986 Class I price and the January 1986 Class II price are based on the January 1986 Minnesota-Wisconsin manufacturing milk price of $11.12 per hundreweight at a 3.5 percent butterfat content.

The USDA reported that the wholesale price of Grade A butter at Chicago for January was $1.3875 per pound and the nonfat dry milk price as $.8058 per pound, f.o.b. plants in the Chicago area.

Jersey milk production set new record

COLUMBUS, OHIO -- The average production of Jerseys on official DHIR test reached an all-time high in 1985, breaking the record set just last year.

The 42,283 lactations from Jersey cows in 756 herds on DHIR test averaged 12,685 lbs milk and 601 lbs fat, surpassing the 1984 marks of 12,501 lbs milk and 598 lbs fat.

American Jersey Cattle Club (AJCC) officials credit this increasing production to two major factors. First, Jersey dairymen are making better use of sophisticated genetic tools available for herd improvement, mainly high Predicted Difference sires available through artificial insemination. Second, they are also doing a much better job of managing their herds by feeding high quality forages and well-balanced total rations.

More and more milk markets across the country are recognizing the value of high-solids milk through multiple component pricing or end product pricing, thus increasing the value of high protein Jersey milk. These improved markets coupled with the high level of efficient Jersey production have made the Jersey cow increasingly competitive in today's dairy economy.

CalciMilk - the "new milk"?

BY MARTHA J. GEHRINGER

LANCASTER -- Contrary to the theory that white cows give white milk and brown cows give chocolate milk, CalciMilk does not come from a new breed of dairy cows. CalciMilk is a new milk product that contains 66 percent more calcium than regular lowfat milk.

This product is a lactose reduced, lowfat milk that has been calcium fortified with the addition of tricalcium phosphate. A stabilizer is then added to keep it in suspension.

CalciMilk was developed in answer to the growing concern over calcium deficient diets and osteoporosis, according to Alan Kligerman, president of Lactaid Inc, the marketing and licensing corporation for CalciMilk.

A logical solution to this concern was to take the number one source for calcium and make it better. This is what they did at Lactaid, and CalciMilk was born.

Lactose reduced milk was chosen as the first type of milk to be enriched since studies have shown that when highly digestible lactose is present, calcium absorption by the body increases.

Calcium is required by all ages of people, it is especially important in the diets of women over the age of 35. This is due to their increased susceptibility to osteoporosis, the headline need of recent months.

This mineral is also required for proper heart beat, blood clotting, proper nerve function, control of blood pressure and strengthening of bones. When a shortage of calcium occurs, a type of competition develops between the blood and bones for any available calcium. The blood is always the eventual winner and draws on the bones as a calcium source. This is when the deterioration process begins.

CalciMilk addresses this need capably in a delicious new form of milk. Although it won't provide any drastic increase in sales or take care of the surplus, it is targeted for a portion of the population which may not have been milk buyers previously.

Ted Heck, vice president of marketing for Allentown Processing Inc., Allentown, feels very bullish about this product and is delighted at the way current sales are progressing. Heck explained that since its introduction on the market in October 1985, sales have been steadily increasing. A contributing factor to this he feels is its extended shelf life of 45 days.

Allentown Processing Inc. distributes CalciMilk in the Pennsylvania and surrounding areas under the Lehigh Valley Farms trademark. Dairylea handles the distribution for New York state.

By the end of the year eight dairies will be distributing this product nationwide.

This is the lastest milk product to be developed as part of a continuous effort to halt the per-capita decline in consumption and make milk more appealing to more people.

You've heard of the new flavors of soda perhaps we should advertise this as the new milk!

MMI returns members' equity

STRONGSVILLE, OH -- Equity refunds totaling more than $1.6 million were returned to the dairy farmer members of Milk Marketing Inc. (MMI) during the month of December, according to Don Schriver, director of membership relations and public affairs for MMI.

The board of directors approved the cash returns to the members at a recently held board meeting in Strongsville, OH, home office location of MMI.

"With this refund for 1985 the total redemption from MMI to its members will be nearly $15 million since MMI was organized in 1978," said Schriver.

The current redemption will be to members and inactive former members who had been with the MILK, Inc. and Miami Valley Cooperative Milk Producers, Inc. under a plan developed before the 1978 merger. All equities with the total value of over $18 million from the predecessor cooperatives will be redeemed by 1988, according to Schriver.

"This is in line with board policy to have a 10 year revolving plan for member financing of the cooperative. The ability to redeem member equities is the result of MMI's commitment to keep the ownership in the hands of the users. Redemptions are paid 100 percent in cash," explained Schriver.

MMI is a 8,500 member dairy farmer owned cooperative encompassing an eight state midwestern area including Ohio, Indiana, Pennsylvania, Michigan, New York, Kentucky, Maryland and West Virginia. Last year MMI marketed more than 4.7 billion pounds or 547 million gallons of milk.

By Newton Bair

The Penn State Agronomy Guide for 1985-1986 lists the cost of producing an acre of corn. If you haven't studied it, get your copy now and further your education. Anyway, you can't afford to farm without this bible of crop production. It contains all the information you need to grow crops efficiently.

The production costs published in the Agronomy Guide are real, honest, and as complete and accurate as anyone can assemble. Everything that can be measured in dollars is included. And some of the items like machine ownership costs and labor and land are the ones that you and I often overlook when we figure our costs, and they turn out to be the "biggies."

Now you should read the details yourself, but the figures on conventional tillage really caught my eye. The average hours of labor to produce an acre of corn turns out to be just 4.2 hours. Not too bad, but it was multiplied by $6.00 an hour and averaged out at a cost of $25.14 an acre for labor. You can use your own labor value to calculate your cost.

But machine costs are another matter. The average operating cost for all machinery to grow an acre of corn was $28.00 an acre. Add to that the FIXED cost of the machinery, (these are the actual cost of owning the stuff, whether it is working or not). Fixed costs were $44.51 an acre. Add the two and machine cost is $72.51 an acre. These are calculated by spreading the purchase price and interest on the investment over all the acres grown by each individual grower, so they are as real as life.

The other big fixed cost is land The land cost is usually based on actual rental figures, but includes amortized ownership costs as well. The average fixed land cost was $52.50 per acre. You may be renting land at $80.00 to $125.00 an acre, and that racks up an additional fixed cost on your corn crop. Even if you grow 150 bushel of corn per acre, a land cost of $125 increases your cost per bushel by $0.84. Figure it out for yourself

The costs of growing corn, which by the way were compiled from figures gathered from some of the top growers in the state, are summarized like this. Total operating costs $176.34, total fixed costs $92.61, for a total production cost of $268.96 an acre. The average yield was 120.8 bushels per acre, resulting in a total cost of $2.23 a bushel.

Those figures all came from the 1983 Pennsylvania Five-acre Corn Club, and so they are three years old already The question one should ask is, have things changed for 1986? What will it actually

YOU to produce corn this year? Do you really care what it costs? If you already own the land and have a committed investment in machinery, you have little alternative but to use it to grow whatever crops you need for feed, or hope to sell for a profit.

If you are trying to decide whether to rent land or buy machinery to grow cash corn, it's time to sharpen the pencil. You may decide that the margin of profit between the actual cost of production and the projected price for cash corn is too narrow for comfort.

The real tough decisions on cropping this year are on whether we can afford to crop marginal land. By this I mean land that has a 60 to 80 bushel yield potential. The lower the yield potential is, the higher the bushel cost will be. Hilly, eroded, shaley, or wet land can be called marginal, and cropping it in corn in highly questionable. Production costs can be squeezed only so far, and the end result should always be measured in cost per bushel and compared with the market price, whether you intend to sell or feed the corn. If you can't see a profit, leave it in grass and harvest some cheap hay or pasture, and save a little soil for your grandchildren.

Mercer dairymen win DHIA awards

MERCER — Mercer County recently held their annual DHIA awards banquet.

The county finished the year with 104 herds and 4,983 cows on test averaging 14,838 M and 550 F.

Receiving the award for high herd in milk and fat production was John Angermeier, Sharpsville. His herd averaged 21,150 M and 721 F. Angermeier was also honored for having the high Holstein herd for fat production.

The Most Improved Herd award went to Mrs. Martin Gall, Cochranton with an increase of 3,509 pounds of milk. Mrs. Gall was also recognized for having the high Red and White herd for fat production with 677 pounds.

Vantage Jerseys owned by Mr. and Mrs. Donald Koontz, Fredonia took home the award for high Jersey herd for fat production with 654 pounds.

Harold Hill, Sandy Lake, received the award for high Mixed herd for fat production with a record of 692 pounds.

Harold Ealy, Sharpsville, was recognized for having the high Guernsey herd in fat production, with a record of 612 pounds.

Brown Swiss breeder Ralph Oakes, Jackson Center received the High Fat Production award for this breed with a record of 584 pounds.

Somatic Cell Count awards were also given to those herds with counts below 164,000. Receiving these awards were: Joe Quarterson, Hermitage; Randy Jones, Mercer; Donald Yasnowsky, New Wilmington; Vantage Jersey, Fredonia; Arthur Baxter, Stoneboro; Dale L. Kepner, Sandy Lake; and Arvid and Kathy Kobosky, Cochranton.

The top three herds in the yearly herd average 600 - 700 pounds protein class were: Clarence Minner, New Wilmington; John Angermeier, Sharpsville; and Art Baxter, Stoneboro.

Dewayne and William Coulter own the cow with the highest milk and fat production for the year. This cow produced a record of 222139 M and 7765 F.

Ag Preserve meeting set

LANCASTER — Lancaster County Agricultural Preserve Board staff members Alan Musselman and Karen Freeman will be in the Blue Ball and Churchtown areas for the day on Thursday, Feb. 20th to talk with landowners about the Agricultural Preserve proposed for East Earl and Caernarvon Townships and discuss other details of the farmland preservation program.

Interested landowners are invited to stop by the East Earl Township municipal building between 8:30 a.m. and noon or the Caernarvon Township municipal building between 1 p.m. and 4 p.m.

The East Earl Township office is located along Route 322 across from the east end of Blue Ball. Phone number: (717) 354-5593. The Caernarvon Township office is located along Route 23 in Churchtown, by the Friendship Village Restaurant. Phone number: (215) 445-4244.

East Earl Township will also hold a town meeting on Wednesday, March 19th at 7:30 p.m. at the Goodville Fire Hall to discuss the Agricultural Preserve proposal in the township.

Grubb says Thornburgh's budget is "good news"

HARRISBURG — State Agriculture Secretary Richard E. Grubb said today that Governor Thornburgh's 1986-87 budget proposal is "good news for the state's agricultural community."

"Everyone involved in agriculture, from the farmer to the food processor, from the agribusiness owner to the retail grocery clerk received good news from the Governor's proposed budget," Grubb said. "The $141.5 million in personal and business tax cuts have a positive effect on all phases of the state's leading industry."

The Governor's budget request also seeks a four percent increase in direct program support for the Department of Agriculture, more than twice the rate of the state General Fund budget increase.

Grubb said the budget request for the Department totals $30,017,000 in General Fund appropriations to the Department, to cover the wide range of services provided by the Department. The current year's budget provides $28,790,000 for similar services.

"Governor Thornburgh has included several major new initiatives for agriculture in his budget request," Grubb said. "These initiatives include $300,000 in funding for an export development initiative with the Department."

"Calendar year 1986 has been proclaimed by the Governor as the 'Year of the Exporter'," Grubb said. "This initiative will establish a mentor program to provide direct assistance to individuals and companies entering the export marketplace, expand the Department's data base to support export development, and enable Agriculture to work much more closely with the Commerce Department in coordinating export programs."

Another major initiative in the budget is a $75,000 request for funding of a long range agribusiness strategy. "This long range planning effort will be conducted in conjunction with the state's agricultural and academic communities," Grubb said, "and should outline strengths, weaknesses and options to insure the future growth of Pennsylvania agriculture."

Grubb said that the budget also sets aside $174,000 for an Agricultural Network, to establish a computer link for the Department, its regional offices and laboratories to provide more efficient service to the farm community.

"Animal health problems have continued as a focus in the Governor's budget proposal," Grubb noted. "He has requested a $500,000 supplemental appropriation to help pay indemnities to poultry farmers whose birds were depopulated to control spread of avian influenza. He has also requested an increase in animal indemnities funding for next year of $125,000 to include indemnity payments to swine producers whose animals are infected by pseudorabies." Grubb said an increase of $229,000 has also been requested for Agricultural and Animal Research funding.

In his seventh annual budget address, Governor Thornburgh told the General Assembly, "We have a right to be proud, but not complacent. We must remain open to new ideas to meet the new challenges and opportunities of a changing world."

The Governor's budget calls for a reduction in the personal income tax from 2.2 to 2.1 percent, the lowest rate in eight years; a reduction from 9.5 to 8.5 percent in the corporate net income tax; and an exclusion of the first $25,000 from the capital stock and franchise tax, which will benefit all small agribusinesses.

The state's $9.4 billion spending plan refocuses economic development programs and provides a number of other agriculture related initiatives:

* a new Renaissance Communities Program combines a variety of state programs to provide up to nearly $100 million in aid to assist areas of persistent high unemployment.
* a new emphasis on helping Pennsylvania businesses and farmers export their products.
* a $100 million, 20 year strip mine cleanup program to reclaim 15,000 acres of abandoned surface mines.
* a Phase II Bridge Restoration and Replacement Program involving 2,000 state and local bridges at a cost of $1 billion.
* substantial increases for Customized Job Training, the Pennsylvania Industrial Development Authority, the Ben Franklin Partnership and other programs which spur business expansion and job creation.

The Governor also recommended establishment of a new governor's school on agriculture at Penn State, to provide training at an advanced level in the state's number one industry.

Announcing the Blue Halter Sale

The Pennsylvania Guernsey Breeders' Association recently announced their annual Blue Halter Calf Sale and Annual Meeting Bred Heifer Sale.

This is the eighth consecutive year for the Blue Halter Cale Sale, which is run as a promotion for the Guernsey breed. This sale enables and encourages young exhibitors who wish to show Guernsey cattle by presenting a group of cows that has type and conformation.

These animals entered in the sale are animals that will do well a two year old and can compete with the best in the show ring. A bonus of this sale is the 10 percent discount given on any heifer purchased for a youth project.

The sale is managed by the Pennsylvania Guernsey Breeders' Association and The Merryman Company.

Both sales will occur as the conclusion for the annual meeting of the Pennsylvania Guernsey Breeders' Association on March 15, 1986.

NFO joins state group in new marketing plan

BLOOMINGTON, MN — Two of the country's major farm organizations have announced an historic cooperative agreement. Leaders of the Minnesota Farmers Union and the National Farmers Organization unveiled a joint livestock marketing plan.

"We hope this action signals a new era of cooperation between major farm groups," MFU President Willis Eken said. "Income is the number one problem facing farmers today This agreement will increase the profit potential for livestock producing members of the two organizations."

The agreement is the first attempt by major farm organizations to cooperate in a livestock marketing effort The plan is expected to improve the competitive positions of the two organizations' livestock producers as they work together to market their products through NFO's established marketing system

"This cooperative agreement which will give livestock producers additional bargaining strength in the marketplace is a tremendous step forward," NFO President DeVon Woodland emphasized.

The two groups expect this agreement to trigger similar cooperative efforts among other farm organizations.

"We will see other organizations and groups consider the decision that is being made here today," Woodland said. "Hopefully, they willl see the benefits of greater volume and collective bargaining and the strength that comes with unity "

"We are excited about the opportunity to expand marketing alternatives for our members," Eken said. "Farm groups are often criticized for not working together This agreement shows we can cooperate while maintaining our individual identities."

Walt Hackney, director of NFO's livestock department outlined the marketing structure. "Our system allows livestock producers to become more competitive and extract the maximum dollars available through the livestock market," he said. "Farmers deserve to get the maximum return possible for their product but they don't have time to explore all the market possibilities and so we fill that role for them."

According to Hackney, NFO marketed $385 million in livestock nationally and $64.5 million in Minnesota in fiscal year 1985 With the addition of MFU livestock, he expects those numbers to increase significantly in 1986.

"This joint effort with others to follow will be the first step toward putting stability and increased net farm income into agriculture," Woodland added.

Eken concurred "We are looking forward to working with NFO in this effort," he said. "We are confident this new working relationship will benefit both organizations and their membership."

MFU and NFO officials will conduct a series of local meetings across Minnesota in late February to brief livestock producers on the marketing plan. The NFO-MFU joint marketing system is expected to begin operation by March 10

We can't believe it either.

Whenever you find hybrids that yield as well as Cargill 842, 889, 937, 967 and 980, someone is bound to exaggerate. In state yield trials across Pennsylvania, Cargill seeds claimed three first, one second and four of the third highest producers among leading seed brands. Complete results can be obtained from your state testing agency.

Chemgro meeting held

Dave Thompson, Plant Industry Supervisor, Region Six, PA Department of Agriculture, explained the importance of renewing or applying for a pesticide applicator's license at the annual Chemgro meeting held in Lancaster. This license, he pointed out, reduces the public's fear of chemicals by assuring them that the pesticides are being handled and used properly.

The bottom photo is Buford Gunkle from Welsh Mountain, portrayed by Tom Giesman from Chemgro, who posed after entertaining the group with his annual report on his goat and guinea farm.

Select for better animals

According to a Penn State correspondence course on Genetics and Animal Breeding, proper selection of breeding stock is a key to success.

To breed better livestock, breeders must establish an objective to work toward. To be successful, a breeder should be a competent judge of the class of livestock he intends to improve. Breeders should know the principles of breeding, history of the breeds, pedigrees of individuals, and the reputation of breeders in any particular breed.

For those who are interested in acquiring additional information about animal breeding, send $7.50, including handling, to ANIMAL BREEDING, Dept. 5000, University Park, PA 16802. Make your check payable to Penn State.

Chore-Time develops alternative to chain feeding for poultry

* MILFORD, Ind – For many years, the caged layer industry has looked for an economical alternative to the chain feeder. With the release of the new ULTRAFLEX™ Cage Feeding System by Chore-Time Cage Systems, the industry may now have that alternative.

According to David Newman, general manager of Northeast Agri Systems, distributors of Chore-Time Cage Systems in the Northeast, the new ULTRAFLEX System is designed for use with caged layers and brood-grow systems. The unique system delivers feed to the birds in cage rows up to 600 feet in length by using a round, flexible steel auger pulled through the feed trough by a sprocket drive. The "coreless" auger permits easy access to the feed–even for poorly debeaked birds. The auger also helps guard against the bird's natural instinct to bill or pile feed in the trough, which can cause feed to spill out and be wasted.

"Actually, the ULTRAFLEX was designed for several reasons, with differences in feed formulations being the primary consideration," Newman noted. "The system quickly moves fresh feed around a continuous circuit at 80 feet per minute without feed separation, roll back or skipping. The auger speed also prevents birds from selectively eating or 'high-grading' the feed as it passes by them."

"The system is simpler to operate than most other systems and is easily adaptable to most existing cage systems. ULTRAFLEX is also more forgiving of factors such as feathers and corn cobs in the feed and house managers who will not tend to and adjust equipment," he added. And, the ULTRAFLEX auger glides around corners in heavy duty galvanized steel elbows eliminating the need for power shoes, corner wheels, wear plates, or shear pins. Both the ULTRAFLEX auger and 20 gauge high tensil steel feed trough feature a five-year warranty.

The ULTRAFLEX System also uses Chore-Time's advanced microprocessor time clock to provide various features, Newman pointed out. "The feeder's running time can be set to the second, matching the exact time it takes the feeder to move feed completely around the cage row. The clock can also be set to provide one or more "stimulation cycles" between feedings. Each stimulation cycle allows the ULTRAFLEX to run 10 seconds, moving the auger to stir feed and stimulate birds to eat between feedings.

Newman also notes that while the system has just been released by Chore-Time, the ULTRAFLEX System has been tested on poultry farms for over five years with several million birds being fed on systems already installed in the United States, Canada and Europe. During the past year Northeast Agri Systems has sold and installed several ULTRAFLEX Systems in Pennsylvania, Virginia and New Jersey and currently has more installations in progress.

Lancaster Co. slates Chesapeake Bay Talk/Walk

LANCASTER – A "Talk About Chesapeake Bay/Walk About Lancaster County Day" is planned by the Lancaster County Conservation District and the Lancaster County League of Women Voters for Saturday, Mar. 8 at the Farm and Home Center, 1383 Arcadia Rd., Lancaster.

The day-long meeting is planned especially for elected and appointed local municipal officials throughout the county, and over 300 invitations have been mailed. The entire focus of the day's activities is on borough and township soil and water control conditions and their close relationship to the Chesapeake Bay. Future planning, current problems, available funds and aid programs will be explained by speakers representing various levels of government.

During the morning session beginning at 9 a.m., Senator Noah W. Wenger will speak about the Chesapeake Bay Commission of which he is a member. Paul Swartz, executive director of the State Conservation Commission will discuss the impact of Lancaster County erosion and run-off problems on Chesapeake Bay. Mr. Edward C. Goodhart, Manor Township supervisor, will speak about local soil and water concerns from his point of view. The Commonwealth's environmental programs and plans will be shared with the audience by a message from DER Secretary, Nicholas DeBenedictus, and County Commissioner James E. Huber will be master of ceremonies for the day.

Following lunch at the Farm and Home Center, buses will take local officials and guests at the conference to two sites. One will be a farm at which examples of the use of Chesapeake Bay Improvement funds will be examined. The other will be a suburban location to examine erosion and sedimentation and storm water controls in place. Conference participants will have the opportunity to visit the Mobile Nutrient Lab from Penn State while at the farm site. Several manufacturer's representatives and distributors of erosion and sedimentation control products have been invited to display their products during the meeting.

Robert Gregory, Administrator of the Lancaster County Conservation District said, "We hope that many local officials will make their reservations by February 28 and take advantage of this unique meeting designed to help them with their special concerns and to answer their questions about funding and programs now available in the county."

Crawford County holds DHIA awards banquet

MEADVILLE — Sixteen Crawford County dairy farmers, enrolled in the Pennsylvania Dairy Herd Improvement Association, were recently recognized for outstanding production achievements at the Annual Meeting and Banquet held at the Saegertown American Legion.

Queens Manor Holsteins, Ed Doeberiener & Sons, Jamestown, for the seventh straight year, led the county in butterfat production for fewer than 50 cows. Their 21 cows average production per cow for the year was 21,816 lbs. of milk, 818 lbs. of butterfat and 693 lbs. of protein. For their achievement they received one of two 800 lbs. and over fat production ribbons, sponsored by the Pennsylvania Dairymen's Association, and two plaques.

In addition, Queens Manor Holsteins was recognized for the high cow in fat and protein production. The cow was a Registered Holstein named Sun, produced 31,389 lbs. of milk, testing 4.2% fat with 1,303 lbs. of fat, 3.3% protein producing, 1,033 lbs. protein in 305 days, sponsored by Westford Milling.

Jeffrey Raney, R.D. 1, Adamsville, was recognized for the high herd in butterfat and protein production for fewer than 50 cows. Raney's Registered Holstein herd averaged 42.3 cows, 21,949 lbs. of milk, 800 lbs. of fat and 708 lbs. of protein per cow. In addition, he received the second 800 lbs. and over fat production ribbon sponsored by the Pennsylvania Dairymen's Association. Raney also received a plaque for exceptional production.

Black Pond Farms, owned by Charles & William Black, R.D. 2, Saegertown, and Ron Vanderhoof, herdsman, received two plaques. The first for high herd in milk production more than 50 cows, and the second plaque was for exceptional production. Their 91.9 cows average production was 21,398 lbs. of milk, 752 lbs. of fat and 674 lbs. of protein per cow.

The herd of Helen & Raymond Anthony, Meadville, was one of seven herds recognized for over 700 lbs. of fat production. They received a plaque for the high herd in fat and protein production for more than 50 cows. Their cows average production for the 1985 testing year for 72.5 cows was 21,308 lbs. of milk, 797 lbs. of fat and 687 lbs. of protein per cow.

David R. Reusing, Meadville, Pa., was recognzied for the herd with the greatest gain in milk, fat and protein production, milking three times a day, from the 1984 to the 1985 testing year. Reusing gained 3,038 lbs. of milk, 132 lbs. of fat and 97 lbs. of protein per cow over 1984.

Rolling Acres Farm–Leon and Donald Sweatmen, Vanenago, Pa., had the greatest gain in milk, fat and protein, milking two times per day, over 1984. Their cows gained an average of 2,916 lbs. of milk, 104 lbs. of fat and 63 lbs. of protein per cow in 1984. Their award was sponsored by the Meadville Farm Credit Service.

H & S Dairy Farm, Daniel Householder and Randy Stevenson were recognized for the herd with the lowest somatic cell count which averaged 109,000 count for the year.

PFU holds joint committee meeting

GETTYSBURG – Members of e Pennsylvania Farmers Union's iry and Legislative Committees cently held a joint meeting at the ettysburg Sheraton. Robert J. ullins, director of legislative rvices for the National Farmers nion, was the featured speaker of e session.

Mullins brought the group up to te on the latest details of the hole herd buyout, and other spects of the Food Security Act of 85. "The dairy section of the rm bill fell short, but given the mate it was written in, at least amily farmers) didn't lose erything," he said.

Mullins also discussed the im-ct which the Gramm-Rudman alanced budget act will have on S.D.A. in fiscal year 1986 and eyond. Nearly 20 percent of the cuts slated by Gramm-Rudman to take effect on March 1, 1986 would come from U.S.D.A. Mullins explained that $832 million of the $1.2 billion scheduled to come from agriculture would be taken from the Community Credit Corporation, most likely affecting any contract signed after January 1, 1986.

The national family farm advocate outlined some of the legislative projects which the National Farmers Union has begun in hope of easing the impact on family farmers of both lower farm income under the Food Security Act and budget cuts under Gramm-Rudman.

With credit expected to be even tighter this year than it was last year, NFU is working on a bill to provide short-term emergency operating loans. Mullins said such a bill would have a much better chance of withstanding a Presidential veto during this election year.

The general farm organization is also developing a proposal for producer referenda on the issue of supply management programs in feed grains for 1987 and 1988. The proposal will be similar to Rep. Berkley Bedell's (D-Iowa) provision to let farmers decide their own fate, which was removed from the farm bill just prior to the final House vote.

Mullins said that NFU is also working on an alternative to the Food Security Act that would put all basic commodities into a marketing order system. Such a system would provide income guarantees to farmers, yet would be more responsive to prices in the marketplace, thus making the idea more attractive to those espousing a free market system.

NY company fined for egg violations

WASHINGTON – Louis Mayoka of Associated Bakers Products, Cold Spring Harbor, N.Y., has been fined for violating the Egg Products Inspection Act.

H.C. Kennett, Jr., an official with the U.S. Department of Agriculture's Agricultural Marketing Service, said Mayoka was fined in the Eastern District of New York U.S. District Court after pleading guilty to four counts of manufacturing, using and possessing official labeling material and falsely representing that egg products had been inspected under the Act.

Associated Bakers Products added corn syrup solids to dried egg solids, labeled the product as dried egg solids with labels bearing the official inspection mark and sold the product in commerce as dried egg solids.

Mayoka was fined $1,000 for each of the four counts.

The Egg Products Inspection Act requires continuous government inspection of any plant processing egg products.

AMS administers the act to assure that consumers get only wholesome, unadulterated and properly labeled and packaged eggs and egg products. No egg products processor may operate without inspection service.

Potter Holstein club hears about dairy promotion

ULYSSES — Roberta Bronson of the American Dairy Association and Dairy Council's Williamsport office was guest speaker at the annual dinner meeting of the Potter County Holstein Club, Tuesday, January 28, at Penn-York Camp, Ulysses.

Bronson told dairymen how ten cents of the 15 cents deducted from milk checks was being used. The American Dairy Association and Dairy Council follow the milk to market. There are 19 districts and the association is run by dairy farmers. Five departmental responsibilities are: industry relations, which reports to farmers; consumer promotion, which does four big promotions a year; food publicity, which excites the consumer to use dairy foods; communications, which links trade, consumer and dairymen, and the county promotion program which deals with such things as the dairy princesses.

She reported that it costs $75,000 to $100,000 to produce one commercial for television. When all involved work together, it costs each organization less money than doing it separately. Sixty eight percent of the ADA/DC budget is used for media advertising with only two percent for administrative costs. Sales of dairy products showed an increase of 2.5% in 1985.

Bronson showed several commercials which are being used on television to promote adult consumption of milk; cheese, the Real Seal for a variety of products including cottage cheese and milk drinking for children. There are also radio commercials which feature remakes of tunes of the 1950's.

Throughout Pennsylvania there are approximately 400 billboards promoting "Milk, America's Health Kick." A 12-page advertising insert was prepared for a trade magazine which goes to restaurants and institutions.

Terms of directors, Jay Gooch and Tom Kibbe, expire this year. Kibbe of Harrison Valley was reelected and also was Alvin Miller, Ulysses.

Door prizes were awarded to Bonnie Barker, Ulysses, a shovel fron Jere Martin; Leon Tice and Louise Crossley, Coudersport, hats and Gay Torrey, Shinglehouse, and Ivan Smoker, Genessee, rat bait from Knoxville Checkerboard; Martha Risser, Coudersport, shirt, Jack Thomas, Ulysses, and Roberta Bronson, aprons from Headwaters Production Credit; Kevin Risser, Coudersport, thermometer from Ulyss Agway; Jen Kibbe, Harris Valley, and Andy Crossle Coudersport, hats from Sele Sires; Karl Torrey, Shinglehous calf toner from Agri-King; To Kibbe, Harrison Valley, ca grower, and John Lehma Harrison Valley, hat, from Bl Seal; Donna Thomas, Ulysse first service from Sire Power; a Alvin Miller, Ulysses, mi replacer from Vigortone.

Following the dinner meetu directors met to elect officers f 1986. The slate is: Karl Torre president; Kevin Risser, vi president; Jack Thoma secretary-treasurer; Tom Kibb show chairman; Don Thomspo sales representative and sta director; Dennis Smoker, Ge nessee, activities chairman, a Samuel Crossley, Coudersp publicity chairman.

Guernsey Futurity announced

The Pennsylvania Guernsey Breeders' Association cordially invites and challenges you to become a part of the 1988 Pennsylvania Three Year Old Futurity.

The purpose of this Futurity is to provide breeders and exhibitors the opportunity to promote the breeding, development and showing of outstanding registered three year old Guernsey cows. This sale will be held in conjunction with the 1988 Pennsylvania All-American Guernsey Show.

Four nominations are required for each animal that competes. All nominations are the responsibility of the owner. Entries must include animal's name, registration number, date of birth, name of sire and dam, and name and address of owner and breeder.

All nominations and fees must be postmarked by the nomination dates and are to be mailed to the Pennsylvania Guernsey Breeders' Association, 5417 Manheim Road, Waynesboro, PA 17268.

These nominations may come from any individual or herd and they may make numerous nominations.

The payment schedule for the nomination fees is as follows: first payment with the initial nomination, $2.00 by May 1, 1986; second payment for each nomination, $4.00 by January 1, 1987; third payment, $6.00 by January 1, 1988; fourth payment, $10.00 by July 1, 1988.

These fees are placed in a seperate account and used only for Futurity purposes. This account is then divided on the following basis at the Futurity: first prize, 30 percent; second prize, 20 percent; third prize, 10 percent; fourth prize, 8 percent; fifth prize, 6 percent; sixth prize, 5 percent; seventh prize, 3 percent; eighth prize, 2 percent; nineth to thirteenth place, 2 percent.

All fees are committed to the purse, no refunds will be made whether an animal competes or eligibility is discontinued. Eligibility is maintained by making subsequent payments on due dates as specified. This responsibility rests with the owner.

Any animal sold after being nominated will remain eligible if the new owner continues making the payments as scheduled.

For futher information about the 1988 Pennsylvania Three Year Old Guernsey Futurity, contact the Pennsylvania Guernsey Breeders' Association at 5417 Manheim Road, Waynesboro, PA 17268.

PFA honors broadeaster

CAMP HILL — The Pennsylvania Farmers' Association (PFA) has presented a "Tell the Farming Story" award to Lloyd Newell, a reporter for WSEE-TV, Channel 35, Erie.

Newell was honored for reporting a story in 1985 which advanced the public's understanding of farming in Pennsylvania. Newell's two-part feature examined the farm economy in northwestern Pennsylvania by comparing the economic outlook of a local dairy farmer with that of a midwestern, Corn Belt farmer.

Newell is the winner in the electronic media category of the statewide contest which was initiated by PFA last year.

Announcing the award, PFA president Keith Eckel said, "We appreciate the fact that Newell and so many of his fellow reporters have an understanding and appreciation of the Commonwealth's number one industry, agriculture."

NJ Farm Bureau plans Forestry Program

TRENTON – The New Jersey Farm Bureau has announced it is offering a Forestry Program to help woodlot owners better manage their woodlands and realize potential profits.

New Jersey has more than 1.8 million acres of woodland–with 1.5 million acres privately owned.

The New Jersey Farm Bureau decided to form its Forestry Program to fill a void created recently when the State Department of Environmental Protection abandoned its landowner assistance program during a realignment.

"The New Jersey Farm Bureau is the natural umbrella organization for a forestry program," said Walter Ellis, President of the New Jersey Farm Bureau. "Farmers are the caretakers and cultivators of the land; we have always tried to protect it."

Ellis said New Jersey's farmers own tens of thousands of acres in woodland. During a recent survey, some farmers told the NJFB they did not have a management program and did not realize the potential monetary value of a well-managed woodlot.

The New Jersey Farm Bureau has hired Helen Hendrickson Heinrich to coordinate the Forestry Program. Ms. Heinrich, a certified landscape architect, has had involvement with woodlot management since 1978.

Under the NJFB program, a professional forester will visit an inquiring woodlot owner to determine the status of the acreage and its potential value.

If it is recommended that a management plan be implemented, a fee would be set–and then discounted for Farm Bureau members. Ms. Heinrich will provide the landowner with regular information on market trends, timber prices and industry developments.

"Professional foresters tell us that much of the woodland in our northern counties is maturing and should be harvested before the trees become diseased, lose their value and endanger the future health of the woodlot," Ellis said. "Managing a woodlot does not necessarily mean harvesting trees for lumber. When harvesting is done properly, there is no sign of ravaging or destruction. Proper woodlot management is an art."

A forestry management plant involves making an inventory of the woodland, soils, wetlands and wildlife habitat. The plan, which is to be followed over the course of several years, identifies different stands by size and species, and outlines strategies for meeting the goals selected by the landowner.

"A management plan can enhance recreational opportunities such as hunting, fishing and hiking. It can add to the scenic beauty and produce additional wildlife habitat," explained Ms. Heinrich. "Often, a buffer strip is left along a stream or road and it is only when you compare the 'before and after' areas that you realize what has been accomplished."

Ellis also noted that woodlands, in order to qualify for the state's Farmland Assessment property tax, will soon be required to have a professional forestry management plan.

The New Jersey Farm Bureau, which represents 4,851 members in the Garden State, is a service oriented, non-profit organization that lobbies for the voice of the farmer.

Ellis said private woodlot owners who are not members of the NJFB are welcome to inquire about the forestry program. Ms. Heinrich can be reached at state headquarters in Trenton at 609-393-7163.

PFU objects to FmHA's 'surplus' ruling on loans

WASHINGTON – In a letter to the Chief of the Farmers Home Administration's Directive Management Branch, the Pennsylvania Farmers Union filed formal objections to a proposed Farmers Home Administration (FmHA) rule which would allow the farm "lender of last resort" to deny ownership or operating loans to producers of commodities which are in surplus.

The general farm organization's counsel, Cheryl L. Cook, Esq., described the effect such a rule would have on Pennsylvania's farmers. "If, for example, you compare the base milk production of family farmers in Pennsylvania with the production levels of corporate agribusinesses in California, you'll see that we're not primarily responsible for today's massive surpluses. Yet, our farmers would be hurt by this rule. The largest farms who are producing the most are not likely to be involved with FmHA, and would not be affected," she said.

"This rule would put family farmers in many commodities out of business without making a dent in the surplus problem. Aside from any question of whether FmHA has the authority to do something like this, the proposed rule is simply unfair," the family farm advocate said.

Cook pointed out that under the new Food Security Act, net farm income is likely to drop even lower for many farmers, leaving them with no choice but to increase production in order to cover costs. "The Food Security Act and the proposed FmHA rule would work in tandem to force a producer to expand and then deny him the means by which to do so," she said. "Farmers Union decided that we couldn't let this rule go unchallenged."

Pennsylvania Farmers Union represents family farmers in 31 counties throughout the Commonwealth.

Dairy farmer can save $5,000 with better management

LANCASTER — "Approximately five thousand dollars of potential savings are available on a dairy farm," Donald Mahlandt informed the group of farmers attending the annual Pennfield Dairy Day Meeting.

Throughout the meeting Donald Mahlandt, Manager of Dairy and Swine Feeds and Dr. Brian Perkins, Manager of Dairy and Livestock Nutrition pointed out areas where these savings might be realized.

One area to consider is reproduction management according to Perkins. By reducing the calving interval more milk will be produced, more calves for sale or replacement will be born during the life of a cow, lower semen costs will be incurred and lower vet bills can be realized. All are a possible area for cost reductions.

Perkins went on to list the points to consider which effect reproductive efficiency: date of first breeding following calving, 50 days is considered optimal for maximum profit; heat detection efficiency; culling policy based on reproduction; and conception rate.

Perkins explained that for every day past 85 that a cow remains open, it costs the farmer $2.50 per cow per day. In addition to this the rolling herd average declines by 10 pounds for every day open.

Mahlandt discussed the value of putting higher energy forages in rations that are home grown. Through charts and graphs he illustrated that a savings of up to $80 over grain costs can be realized.

Mahlandt also briefed the audience on the technical services that Pennfield has available to its customers. He also reported on the progress of the new mill under construction in Mt. Joy. This mill will have the capability of precision formulating a ration that will compliment any forage program.

Dr. Perkins concluded the day's program by highlighting the new advances in dairy nutrition. Among the recent advances that Pennfield has been working with is IsoPlus. This product has been on the market since November 1985. It is a natural chemical that combines with the VFA's in a cow's rumen to make the rumen bacteria more efficient.

These bacteria are then able to digest the nutrients more effectively and less nutrients are passed through to the manure. The cow's entire system in turn then becomes more efficient.

NIR, or near infrared scanner, is the latest technology for feed analysis. The only drawback to this system is the need for a wet chemistry lab to verify the results.

The newest analysis for fiber to receive attention is NDF or neutral detergent fiber. This test is highly correlated to intake of feed as it measures the cell wall composition, or true fiber.

Perkins discussed the subject of protein utilization. The newest theory concerns protein degradability in addition to protein solubility. Requirements must be met for protein, amino acids, and ammonia not only for the cow but also for the rumen bacteria.

The latest NRC requirements are expected to include metabolizable protein - the net protein for lactation.

The subject of Monensin was described by Perkins to be economical, and feasible. This additive is used in heifer rations to bring heifers to breeding weight faster by increasing rate of gain and feed efficiency. Rations that include Monensin and produce the best heifers are ones that are high in quality forages.

Experiments are also being done with favorable results involving supplemental light. Trials with 16 to 18 hours of continuous light at 13 foot candles intensity have produced an increase in production of six to ten percent. This also recorded a increase in feed intake of an equivalent amount.

Perkins commented on the progress of the growth hormone for lactating cows currently under research. The product is called methionyl bovine somatotropin (MBS). Use of this product has yielded higher production at a higher feed intake with increased feed efficiency.

MBS helps a cow reach her genetic potential for production. Perkins expects this product to reach the market about 1990. This will become readily available following FDA approval. It is anticipated they will approve it as an implant instead of the current daily injection.

Donald Mahlandt

Dr. Brian Perkins

Egg output down 2% in state

HARRISBURG — Pennsylvania's December egg production totaled 406 million eggs, down two percent from December 1984, according to the Pennsylvania Crop and Livestock Reporting Service. The average number of layers on hand during December 1985 was 18.3 million, virtually the saem as a year earlier. Egg production per 100 layers was 2,219 compared with 2,268 for December 1984.

The U.S. laying flocks produced 5.88 billion eggs during December, down three percent from the 6.04 billion produced a year ago. The total number of layers during December averaged 280 million, down two percent from the 286 million a year ago. December egg production per 100 layers was 2,097 compared with 2,109 eggs for December 1984.

Lancaster County Extension elects five directors

BY SALLY BAIR
Staff Correspondent

LANCASTER — Five directors were elected to the board of the Lancaster County Extension Association at its annual meeting Thursday.

Elected to their first three-year term were: Mrs. Helen Rohrer, 1623 Book Road, Lancaster, who raises steers, broilers and layers; Lynn Royer, 2025 Oregon Pike, Lancaster, a dairyman; and Ed Zug, R2 Peach Bottom, a dairyman. Re-elected to a second term were: Mrs. Dolores Harnish, R1 Willow Street, who operates a veal farm with her husband, and Mrs. Lilli Ann Kopp, R3 Mt. Joy, a free-lance home economist.

Presenting staff highlights, County Agent Glenn Shirk said that the Extension is in an era of change and stressed that Extension personnel are striving to help countians deal with the basics of life as well as the new technology. In agriculture, that means increased attention to nutrient management and wise conservation of the environment. Shirk said the computer is being used more heavily within the office, and now information is available to all countians through Penn State's Pennpages computer service.

In reporting on the family living program, Brenda Stallman, nutrition aid supervisor, said the Expanded Foods and Nutrition Education Program focuses on housing, hunger, health and homemaking. She emphasized that the family living programs have changed to meet the demands of modern living, stressing financial planning, food preservation and other skills.

During 1985 Extension personnel held 2,121 meetings attended by 52,306 people. They also provided individual assistance to over 35,000 people and wrote 1,308 newspaper articles and did 3,225 radio broadcasts.

Dr. Thoms King, former associate director of Extension and now a program leader for International Agriculture Extension Programs with Penn State, told about the College of Agriculture's involvement in Swaziland.

King said one reason it is important to be involved in a project abroad is to help those countries become food self-reliant. King said the United States is one of only a half dozen countries that consistently produce more than they need. He said it is vital to get other countries to produce food more reliably than in the past.

A second reason King said such projects are important is to give a global outlook, seeking new ideas and approaches to stay in the forefront.

World trade is yet another reason for the college of agriculture to be involved internationally. "We are more and more dependent on a global market. The so-called developing countries are the market of the future. Last year 38 percent of all export sales went to developing countries, which are a fruitful market," King said.

Penn State has had 16 international projects since these programs began in 1970.

Agriculture in Swaziland offered some contrasts. King said that most of the Swazis did not live in villages but in dispersed homesteads, ranging from 10 to 50 people. Acreage was allotted by the 170 chieftains resulting in about 4 to 7 tillable acres per homestead.

Dr. Thomas King talks about Penn State's agricultural project in Swaziland.

In Swaziland wealth is measured by cattle, and King said perspective husbands must pay a "bride price" of 15 to 17 head of cattle or more if they are part of the royal family. For that reason cattle play an important role.

These cattle graze on the communal grazing lands during the day, often under the care of children, and are brought in at night. The cows are then separated from their calves and are milked in the morning. Because of poor nutrition, the cows usually calve just once every three years.

King said women are the backbone of agriculture everywhere because men are often absent. Women make decisions about the acreage and do most of the work. Maize is an important crop in Swaziland and it was one of the areas in which the Penn State project offered some technological help. Production averaged under 20 bushels to the acre, often because of poor seeding techniques and because grasses took over the fields.

Cotton is a cash crop for the Swazis and cabbge is the most important vegetable. Sugar is the largest export crop, followed by paper pulp and pineapple.

Penn State personnel worked closely with the Ministry of Agriculture in doing cropping systems research, Extension training, information development and participant training, with 20 natives traveling to the United States for advanced education.

Base milk price announced

Alexandria, VA. — Middle Atlantic Order Market Administrator Joseph D. Shine today announced a January 1986 base milk price of $12.67 per hundredweight and an excess milk price of $11.07. The weighted average January price was $12.53 and the butterfat differential for the month is 16.0 cents.

The base milk price was up three cents from December but was $1.45 lower than last January. The weighted average price was unchanged from December and was $1.52 lower than a year earlier. The gross value of January producer milk was $69.0 million, compared to $71.3 million a year ago.

Mr. Shine said that producer receipts totaled 551.8 million pounds during January, an increase of 42.4 million pounds from last January, and the average daily delivery of 2,635 pounds per producer increased 194 pounds of 7.9 percent from a year earlier. Class I producer milk totaled 263.0 million pounds and was up 1.5 million pounds or 0.6 percent from last January. Class I milk accounted for 47.67 percent of total producer milk receipts during the month, compared with 51.35 percent in January 1985. Base milk accounted for 84.98 percent of total producer milk receipts in January compared with 90.84 percent last year. The average butterfat test of producer milk was 3.82 percent, up from 3.77 percent last January.

Middle Atlantic Order pool handlers reported Class I in-area milk sales of 219.4 million pounds during January, an increase of 1.0 percent from a year earlier after adjustment to eliminate variation due to calendar composition.

FFA state vice president encourages others to join in activities

BY SALLY BAIR
Staff Correspondent

MYERSTOWN — FFA Week offers local chapters a chance to showcase the opportunities available through the Future Farmers of America. Charles Kline, the son of Norman and Verna Kline, Myerstown, took some time to reflect on the opportunities he has been afforded through FFA.

Kline says, "I have always liked FFA; I tried to go to everything." A member of the Eastern Lebanon County FFA chapter for five years, he is now serving as state vice-president, a job which he finds both challenging and rewarding.

The 11 state officers set a goal for themselves to have each of the over 200 chapters in the state visited by an officer through the year. Charles is doing his share, and is enjoying the opportunity to interact with other FFA members.

Kline says his main message is "to encourage participation in FFA activities and contests. If you do participate, you will have a new experience everyday."

He pointed out, "FFA gives you a start earlier in life to have goals to reach. Many ninth graders don't have many goals but grades and report cards. In FFA there are smaller scale goals to reach, and it gives you an earlier start." He feels strongly that setting goals is important in anyone's life, and gives his personal example of placing fourth in ninth grade in the creed contest, and then not doing well the next year. Kline says he learned that you have to keep working toward your goals.

When he travels as a state officer, Kline carries with him a business-like briefcase. He says lightly, "If the answer isn't in my head, it's in my briefcase."

One of the biggest benefits he has derived from FFA has been public speaking. "The general experience you go through helps you to be in front of the public." Kline started out in the creed contest, but remembered that it was not his first experience giving a speech. His first public speaking experience came when he was 10 years old and gave a speech for a Women's Christian Temperance Union contest.

When he was 13 he traveled to Witchita Kansas to give a speech for WCTU, and spoke before 500 people. Perhaps that was his start, because he said it became easy for him to do speeches for the extemporaneous contests in FFA

Kline added that the shop experience also helps at home. "Even though you learn to do some things that you don't perform on a dairy farm, it helps you out later."

He said the variety of contests and activities makes FFA special. "It is not just production agriculture. If you are not talented in one area, you can find another one. It is the unique strength of FFA that we have the variety of contests that we have. It gives the organization more opportunity to get stronger." He noted that on the national level there is "really a lot of opportunity" for members.

For Kline, joining FFA was the natural thing to do because he had older brothers who were in the organization. One brother, John, had been a regional Star Farmer and had traveled to Europe through winning the proficiency award. That was incentive enough. "I had the encouragement at home, so I didn't need others. The rest of my family was in FFA, and I knew I wanted to get the most out of it I could."

For others, however, joining the organization is not so natural. In fact, Charles said there is even a misinterpretation by some guidance counselors who believe that academic students cannot be in FFA. "We need to educate the guidance counselors and the faculty to let them know that vo-ag can be an important part of academics." Kline added, "It offers more experience than any other class."

Since he will travel to at least 18 chapters during the year, Charles must get directions and information, and spends a lot of time on the phone making arrangements.

Many chapters are initiating FFA "clubs" in middle schools to start the recruitment process there. "The middle school students start to get interested and involved," he said. In his own chapter they work with middle school students and have the students visit a farm, plant flowers or do some other activity which will introduce them to the concept of vocational agriculture. Kline said the national organization is helping with these recruitment efforts by offering packets of information about FFA.

Kline said he does not see numbers increasing, but hopes to keep the numbers steady and not decreasing. Declining farm numbers takes its toll in fewer available farm kids. There are presently 10,000 members throughout the state. Although a few new chapters start up, it is not easy in a time of budget cutting. He said he believes it is important for chapters to get administrators involved in the program so they can see first hand the value of FFA.

Parents are another vital link in achieving success as an FFA member. Kline says, "Parents are an important part of FFA and a student's involvement. His own parents have supported him when he must be away from home for FFA activities, and he appreciates that support. He is the youngest of seven children.

Kline also recognizes the support of his FFA advisor Gerald Strickler for helping him fill out records and applications, and generally supporting him over the years.

Although most FFA members are farm kids, Kline points out that in some areas, notably the W.B. Saul school, not one member lives on a farm. In fact, the state president, Julie Hess, is not involved in production agriculture. Kline notes, "There is a place for others outside of agriculture."

Kline has particularly enjoyed getting to know the other state officers, whom he says are like "brothers and sisters" to him. They meet about once a month with the FFA Executive Secretary William Erickson at Elizabethtown. During these times they set goals and evaluate the job they're doing.

"We're your team" is the idea they want FFA members to think about. They want all members to think of them as being members too. One of his favorite times as a state officer was during a leadership meeting at the Pocono Environmental Education Center. "We got involved with the kids. It was the best time we had and where we had the biggest impact," he stated.

This leadership team would also like to increase participation in the proficiency awards program to have applications in each of the 29 areas. In addition they hope to increase the number of awards in the Building Our American Communities program. Kline said, "The application has been simplified." He added, "It is good public relations to see FFA chapters working in their communities. It's good to be visible."

For Kline there is no question about his choice of vocation—he will be a dairyman with his brothers. His FFA projects were all involved with dairy, and he now owns 20 head of registered cows, having begun with three head in ninth grade. He shares in equipment and crop farming with three brothers, and together they farm about 600 acres, and milk 70 cows.

His projects continue to help him as he works on the farm. He points out, "The need for records has increased drastically, and FFA is a good way to start keeping records. It really helps you in management." He admitted that sometimes "it seems like you're just filling out records for an award," but it sometimes really important to have good records.

While Kline acknowledges that times are rough for farmers, he feels confident that he can make it because of the support of his family. "The only way you can get into farming is with the kind of help my father gave my brothers and will give me. He is now semi-retired."

Having graduated in 1985, Kline still has several years left as an FFA member, and he continues to set goals. One, of course, is the dream of every FFA member and that is to participate in the American Farmer contest and strive to be named the top farmer in the country.

It is the other skills, however, which will stay with him throughout his lifetime—the ability to talk with groups, to meet new people and new challenges. For Charles Kline, FFA is a part of all that he does now, and it will remain a part of all he achieves as he becomes a full member of the agricultural community.

Homestead Notes

From three head that he started with as a freshman, Charles has expanded his herd to number 20. He farms on his father's farm along with three of his brothers who preceded him in FFA at Eastern Lebanon County High School.

Start Good Eating Habits Early

Do you know that experiences children have between the ages of two and six often become the basis for their food habits later in life? Keeping this thought in mind there are some important things to remember about food and your children.

Most importantly, remember that children learn by imitating. If you as parents set a good example in your eating habits, your children will learn from you.

Children may eat less during this period of their lives than you think they should. Remember that they are growing more slowly than during the first two years of life and require less food.

Kids who feel well are reliable judges of how much they want to eat. Insisting that they always "clean the plate" encourages overeating.

Your youngsters may have definite food preferences which change from time to time. Don't worry too much about temporary food jags.

A relaxed, calm atmosphere where they are not forced to eat will most likely contribute to good eating.

New foods will be more readily accepted if they are introduced one at a time and in very small servings. If your child refuses a new food, try it again later and perhaps in a different form.

Kids handle small glasses, cups, forks and spoons easier than adult size. Food cut in bite-size pieces and finger foods are easier for them to eat.

Offer your children water occasionally between meals. Thirst can be mistaken for hunger.

Sometimes children can not eat enough at a meal to last until the next one. Choose between meal snacks carefully. Foods such as milk, pieces of raw fruit and vegetables, fruit juices (not sweetened fruit drinks), cheese, and plain crackers are good nutritious snacks.

Watch Out For Hidden Sugar

Eating foods high in sugars can increase the risk of tooth decay and can contribute to overweight. Foods high in sugar are often devoid of needed nutrients such as minerals and vitamins. Despite this, annual per capita consumption of sugar and other caloric sweeteners is around 130 pounds. That's up from 104 pounds in 1920. Why the increase?

Many researchers question whether Americans deliberately are choosing to eat sweeter foods or whether they are losing control as they eat more commerically prepared foods at home and in restaurants.

In 1920, more than 60 percent of the sugar eaten by the average American was "discretionary" – added to foods in the home.

By contrast, recent studies by the U.S. Department of Agriculture indicate that only about 25 percent of the sugar consumed today is descretionary. The other 75 percent has been added to food or drink at the point of processing before the food is brought into the home.

Even foods we don't think of as sweet have sugar added to them. Catsup, salad dressings and peanut butter are examples.

Most packaged foods have ingredient labeling, with the ingredient present in the largest amount listed first. The rest of the ingredients are listed in descending quantities. But that doesn't tell you amounts. If more than one type of sugar is listed, the sugars may well be one of the chief ingredients in the food.

If you want to limit your sugar intake, you'll need to learn the names of the sugars and sugar substitutes often found on labels. The most common ones are sucrose (from cane of beet sugar, generally), fructose (also found naturally in fruit and in honey, along with glucose), lactose (found in powdered or fluid milk), glucose, dextrose, corn syrup, corn sweetener, natural sweetener, invert sugar and honey.

FFA program to emphasize farm chemical safety

ALEXANDRIA, VA -- A program emphasizing farm chemical safety will be launched by FFA chapters in several states early in 1986. The program objective is to encourage users of agricultural chemicals to handle the products with care, utilizing proper clothing and equipment.

FFA members will urge farmers in their local communities to make a "safe and sound" investment in a "2+2 Handy Pak." Each Pak includes two pairs of protective gloves and two pairs of goggles. Proceeds from the sales will go to the local FFA chapters. The program initially will be undertaken on a trial basis.

FFA officials stress that the program's purpose is primarily educational, growing directly out of the FFA's commitment to serve the nation's agricultural community. FFA members are encouraged to talk to farmers, dealers, county extension agents and others involved with agricultural chemicals about the importance of handling them properly and carefully.

"We believe in the need for a program like this because it encourages everyone who works with farm chemicals to use them correctly and with care," said Ted Amick, Program Specialist-Safety Program of the National FFA Organization.

The FFA will be looking toward a national roll-out of the program in 1987-88 in conjunction with their long-term commitment to farm chemical safety. The trial program is being sponsored by Monsanto Agricultural Products Company in association with Diversified Marketing Associates, Inc.

Saf-T Liner®

Stainless Steel Chimney Liner

Heat-Fab Stainless Steel Chimney Liner is the professional installer's best solution for relining brick chimneys with deteriorated tile or those that were never lined.

A professional installer can reline a chimney in half a day and restore it with an anticipated life of 25 to 30 years of wood burning appliances.

Heat-Fab uses only 24-gauge stainless steel and resistant welds for the kind of safety that satisfies code requirements as a substitute for 5/8" fireclay liner.

Best of all, it's far less expensive then replacing chimneys and one of the most economical products of its kind. From Heat-Fat, where else?

It is important that Saf-T Liner be installed to conform to local codes.

Soil conservationist receives honorary FFA degree

HUMMELTOWN – Joel C. Myers, Dauphin County Soil Conservation Service technician, was recently presented with the Honorary Keystone Farmer Degree. This is the highest honor that the Pennsylvania FFA can bestow.

Myers was honored for his assistance with the Dauphin County FFA land judging contest. Each year he has helped the Dauphin County FFA chapters in preparing for the contest and has set up each of the contest sites. Currently he is working on a revision of the land judging scorecard which will be used throughout the state. Myers also serves as a member of the Lower Dauphin vocational agriculture advisory committee.

Myers received a certificate and a medallion as a token of this honor

On being a farm wife - And other hazards

Joyce Bupp

"Hi Mom, what's for supper?"

As dependable as death, daybreak and income taxes is that the above question will be heard within the first five minutes after they charge in following school dismissal.

When they were small tots, we tried our best to help them to learn to enjoy a variety of nutritious, healthy foods. Perhaps we can claim just a small measure of success, since most basic meals are rapidly disposed of around our dinner table. Two of us adore brussles sprouts and one offspring even returns for seconds on lima beans.

Nevertheless, no matter what I answer to the inevitable question about supper, at least half the time the response brings forth some sort of groaning or grumbling. This is generally followed by another inevitable: "Why can't we have pizza?"

Tired of this same monotonous routine, I frequently interject my own smart aleck answer, relying on one food we have still been unable to convince them to enjoy.

"We're having liver for supper." Although they've long seen through this attempt at reverse psychology, the mere mention of this intensely disliked food tends to make just about any other entree appealing.

Thanks to a cookbook that recently turned up in a daily stack of mail, this daily exchange may now see a llittle variety. Not just any cookbook, this publication features a compilation of receipes from the Old Farmers Almanac, first printed in 1792.

I wonder. Did kids of those days gripe at what Mother dished up for dinner?

"Yuk, whitpot again?" (That's a type of cornmeal soup.)

"Ma, y'know I hate fried cucumbers."

"Why do we always have pigeon pie?" (Start by cleaning and trussing four pigeons.)

"Where's the walnut catsup (a sort of vinegared preserve of green walnut hulls) for the Potato Bargain (an open-hearth concoction of potatoes and onions)?"

Next time the "what's for supper" grilling starts, I'll tell 'em we're having Calves Ears.

This dish consisted of exactly what it's called, the items mentioned being first boiled and blanched, then stuffed with chopped ham and mushrooms, sauteed in butter and finally simmered in beef stock.

Come to think of it, how different is that from the local favorite: stuffed hog stomach?

Or how about Bubble and Squeak - a one-dish meal of bacon, cabbage and potatoes, with a side serving of Codfish Tonques and Bone Marrow on Toast. Finish with a dessert of Candied Sweet Flat, which as near as I can figure is the candied root of that favorite spring flower, the Iris. Top with whipped cream if you like.

"Oh, gross me out!" they'll shriek, wrinkling up noses and heading for the peanut butter and jelly.

And to the resident teenager who steadfastly claims to HATE baked potatoes, that might even make the buttered, baked-in-their-crispy jackets spuds sound almost as appealing as a pizza with everything.

Roar into action with a hearty breakfast

If breakfast isn't already your favorite meal of the day, the recipes below will quickly change your mind. There's no need to be a slave to prepared cereal and buttered toast when a host of delectable breakfast treats awaits the creative cook.

Some morning when you have just a little extra time, try a special pancake recipe. Or, if you know you'll be too busy in the morning to fuss, make a batch of muffins the night before to enjoy with your usual breakfast fare.

Many of the recipes below don't take much time, so dig in and enjoy!

FRENCH BATTER TOAST

6 slices bread
1 cup pancake mix
¼ cup wheat germ
3 eggs
1½ cups milk
2 tablespoons oil

Mix all ingredients except oil and bread. Beat well. Dip bread in batter and fry in oil on hot griddle. Serves 6.

OATMEAL RAISIN MUFFINS

1¼ cups flour
1 tablespoon baking powder
Little salt
⅓ cup sugar
1 cup cooked quick rolled oats
½ cup raisins
1 egg
1 cup milk
⅓ cup melted oil

Mix flour, baking powder, salt and sugar in a large bowl. Stir in rolled oats and raisins. Beat egg and add milk. Add oil and set aside.

Add milk mixture to flour mixture. Stir just until dry ingredients are wet, leaving batter lumpy. Pour into muffin pan. Bake at 400°F. for 20 to 25 minutes or until lightly browned. Makes 12 muffins.

MACADAMIA FRENCH TOAST

4 eggs
⅔ cup orange juice
⅓ cup milk
¼ cup sugar
¼ teaspoon ground nutmeg
½ teaspoon pure vanilla extract
1 8-ounce loaf Italian bread cut in 1-inch slices
⅓ cup butter or margarine, melted
⅓ cup diced macadamia nuts

With a wire whisk, beat together eggs, orange juice, milk, sugar, nutmeg and vanilla. Place bread in a single layer in a tight-fitting casserole. Pour milk mixture over bread. Cover and refrigerate overnight, turning once. Preheat oven to 400°F. Pour melted butter on a jelly roll pan, spreading evenly. Arrange soaked bread slices in a single layer on pan. Sprinkle with macadamia nuts. Bake until golden, 20 to 25 minutes. Serve with maple syrup and butter, if desired. Makes 4 servings.

BLUEBERRY COFFEE CAKE

Waffles are a wonderful way to start the day. These orange waffles get a little extra flavor from grated orange rind.

BREAKFAST BAKED APPLES

2 large baking apples (8 ounces each)
½ pound ground pork
1 cup chopped onion
½ teaspoon grated orange peel
Scant ½ teaspoon pepper
¼ teaspoon salt
1/8 teaspoon fennel seed
1/8 teaspoon ground cinnamon
1 cup sliced fresh mushrooms

Preheat oven to 375°F. Cut apples in half; core. With spoon, scoop out apple, leaving ¼-inch shell. Chop removed apple pieces.

In skillet, brown pork with onions, orange peel, pepper, salt, fennel seed and cinnamon. Stir in chopped apple and mushrooms. Cook until mushrooms are tender; drain off any excess fat. Spoon mixture into apple shells; arrange in shallow baking dish. Add 2 tablespoons water to dish. Bake 40 minutes or until apple shells are tender. If desired, drizzle each apple half with 2 teaspoons syrup.

ORANGE WAFFLES

1¾ cups unsifted all-purpose flour
2½ teaspoons double-acting baking powder
¾ teaspoon salt
2 eggs, well beaten
1½ cups milk
2 teaspoons grated orange rind
5 tablespoons liquid shortening
Syrup and butter

Mix flour with baking powder and salt. Combine eggs, milk and grated orange rind. Add to flour mixture; add shortening and mix only until smooth. Bake in preheated waffle baker. Serve hot with syrup and butter. Makes about 10 4½-inch waffles.

To freeze: brown waffles lightly, stack with waxed paper between and wrap in aluminum foil.

To reheat: unwrap and arrange on baking sheet; heat at 300°F. for about 10 minutes (or reheat in toaster or toaster oven.)

Now is the time to enter the 37th National Chicken Cooking Contest for a chance at the top prize of $10,000. Contest sponsor is the National Broiler Council, and recipes are judged on taste, appearance, appeal and simplicity.

A finalist from each state and the District of Columbia will take part on the Cook-Off in May 1987 in Jackson, Miss. A panel of national food experts will select five winners who will share a total of $20,000 in prizes. Deadline for entry is Oct. 15, 1986.

To enter, write name, address and telephone number on the front of the recipe and mail to: Chicken Contest, Box 28158 Central Station, Washington, DC, 20005.

The Chicken and Spinach Noodles recipe below is one example of a hearty family dish made with chicken. Maybe one of your family's favorites will be this year's contest winner.

Chicken and Spinach Noodles

1 broiler-fryer chicken, cooked, boned, skinned and broken into pieces
1½ cups thinly sliced carrots
2 cups chicken broth
12 ounces low-fat, small curd cottage cheese
2 tablespoons lemon juice
8 ounces spinach noodles, cooked and drained
¼ teaspoon pepper

In Dutch oven, place carrots and chicken broth, bring to a boil over high temperature. Reduce heat to low and simmer until carrots are just tender, about 5 minutes. In blender, place cottage cheese and lemon juice; blend until smooth, about 1 minute. Pour off broth from carrots and with blender running, slowly add warm broth to cottage cheese-lemon juice mixture. Blend 1 more minute and then return contents of blender to pan with carrots. Stir in chicken and cooked noodles; sprinkle with pepper Over low heat, simmer, uncovered, about 20 minutes (keep temperature low so sauce does not separate). Makes 4 servings.

HEARTY OATMEAL

4 cups skim milk (or 2 cups milk, 2 cups water)
2 cups oats (not instant)
½ cup raisins
1 or 2 apples; peeled and slivered
Cinnamon to taste or 1 teaspoon brown sugar (optional)

Mix the first four ingredients together in a saucepan. Bring to boil, turn heat down, cover and simmer, stirring often, for about 10 minutes or until the oatmeal reaches the desired consistency. Sprinkle with cinnamon or, if you can take the added calories, top with brown sugar and serve.

RICE PANCAKES

3 cups milk
2 cups packaged precooked rice
1 tablespoon honey
¼ teaspoon salt
4 eggs, slightly beaten
Butter
2 pints fresh strawberries, sliced and unsweetened

Combine milk, rice, honey and salt in a 3-quart saucepan. Cook over low heat, stirring frequently, until all milk is absorbed and mixture thickens. Cool slightly. Add eggs and blend thoroughly. Use about ¼ cup batter for each pancake. Fry on lightly buttered griddle, until golden on both sides. Serve with butter; top with strawberries.

THE MICRO WAY

LANI BLOOMER

Microwaving Seafood and Fish

During Lent, many of us serve fish or seafood more often than at other times of the year. Fish and seafood cook easily and quickly in the microwave. For perfect results with fish and seafood in your microwave, read today's tips. Try these easy microwave recipes to add variety to your meals.

Always thaw fish completely before cooking, or you will end up with dried out edges and raw middles Don't try to get the fish entirely defrosted in the microwave, though, or the edges will start cooking.

Defrosting Seafood:

1. Run water over frozen package and remove wrappings. Place fish on a plate and cover with waxed paper or a lid.

2. Microwave for 3 minutes per pound on defrost (30,3). Turn fish over, and recover. Microwave for 3 to 4 minutes per pound on defrost, or just until you can separate the pieces.

3. The fish should be partially thawed but still icy in places. Run under cool water to remove ice crystals. Then let stand for 5 to 10 minutes to finish thawing at room temperature. If the pieces are separate, but still very frozen, thaw on defrost for 1 to 2 minutes longer, turning fish over after 1 minute. Then run under water and let stand.

Cooking Tips For Seafood:

—For cooking, arrange the fish in a single layer, with the thicker portions to the outside. Overlap or shield very thin area. Halfway through the cooking time, rearrange the pieces, if necessary, for even cooking. Turn large whole or stuffed fish over once during the cooking time.

—Microwave fish on high for 5 to 6 minutes per pound. Fish should flake easily after a standing time of 2 to 5 minutes. It is easily overcooked, so time it carefully.

—If your fish "pops" a lot during cooking, or gets dried out on the edges, a lower power will cook it more evenly. Use medium power (50,5) and microwave for 10 to 11 minutes per pound instead of using high power.

—Arrange shrimp, clams, scallops, etc. in a single layer in a flat casserole or glass pie plate Cover tightly with lid or plastic wrap. Microwave on high for 4 to 5 minutes per pound. Let stand 3 to 4 minutes.

—Sprinkle a little lemon juice over the fish before cooking. This gives fish a delicate flavor without such a fishly odor or taste.

—Fish cools quickly, so cook it just before serving. If you have other foods (potatoes, vegetables, etc.) to cook in the microwave, cook them first, and cook the fish last, while they stand.

—To remove strong odors from you microwave, combine ½ cup water, 1 tablespoon lemon juice and 2 to 3 whole cloves in a one cup measure. Boil for 2 to 3 minutes. Wipe moisture from inside oven and let door stand open for a short time.

Here are two quick and easy ways to vary fish fillets. These can be made with any white fish, so choose your favorite.

Haddock Provencale (don't let the name scare you away) means the fish is cooked with onions, peppers, and tomatoes, as in the style of Provence, France) Using a ready-made spaghetti sauce makes it a snap to fix! Or, use your own homemade sauce, if you prefer.

Haddock Provencale

1 pound haddock fillets, thawed (or use other unbreaded, white fish fillets if desired)

1 cup gardenstyle spaghetti sauce

2 chopped green onions

½ cup chopped green pepper

1. Combine green onion, pepper and spaghetti sauce in microsafe loaf pan or small flat casserole dish (8 x 8 inch square or 9 inch round pan). Cover with plastic wrap or lid. Microwave on high 5 minutes, stirring once, until very hot and peppers start to cook.

2. Arrange fish on top of the hot vegetables with the larger pieces in the corners or to the outside of the pan. Recover dish.

3. Microwave on high for 5 to 6 minutes. until the fish is white and almost cooked in the center. Let stand, covered, for 2 to 3 minutes to finish cooking in the center. Makes 4 servings.

Tip: The exact cooking time in step 3 will depend on the thickness and shape of your fish fillets.

Mustard Baked Fish Fillets

½ cup mayonnaise

1 tablespoon dijon-style mustard

1 teaspoon lemon rind

1 teaspoon lemon juice

1 pound fish fillets

1 Combine mayonnaise, mustard, lemon rind and juice in small bowl.

2. Arrange fish in a single layer with the thicker edges to the outside of the dish. Spread sauce over fish. Do not cover.

3. Microwave on high for 5 to 6 minutes. Cover and let stand for 3 to 4 minutes. Serves 4.

Kid's Korner

Stakes are high in sled dog race

ANCHORAGE, Ala. – It's hailed as the "Last Great Race on Earth."

Early every March, the people of Alaska turn their attention to 60 mushers and 800 sled dogs battling their way across a white, frozen land.

The race begins in Anchorage amid a cheering crowd. The dogs pull on their harnesses, their tails arched, eager to go, barking into the wind and flipping snow with their noses. Their destination: Nome, Alaska, 1,137 miles away. The gun sounds and they're off on the run of a lifetime: the Iditarod Sled Dog Race.

The stakes are high. The first musher to Iditarod, a ghost town and halfway point on the trail, wins 240 specially minted silver coins. And the first to Nome takes home $50,000. Even so, many run the Iditarod more to finish that to win. They savor the solitude and the challenge, bivouacking in their sleds and putting hard-earned miles behind them.

Goldseekers Blazed Trail

Although the Iditarod Race officially has been run the past 13 years, its roots reach back to the winter of 1910-11, when goldseekers stampeding from Alaska's southern coast blazed the trail into the interior. The towns boomed and busted (Iditarod among them), but mushers still used the trail to carry mail and supplies This was before the airplane came to Alaska, when the success or failure of a musher getting through could mean life or death.

Consider the case in Nome, far out on the Seward Peninsula, along the Bering Sea in northwestern Alaska. In January 1925, the town doctor noticed white membrane patches on the throat of six-year-old Richard Stanley. His diagnosis: diptheria The boy was dead in days. The epidemic spread. There was no serum Nome panicked.

The events of the following week became a symbol of Alaska's frontier kinship, and of today's Iditarod Race. Serum from Anchorage was sent by train north to Nenana. From there, 20 volunteer mushers relayed the small vials through 50-below-zero temperatures and extreme white-out conditions. Several dogs died.

The final musher, Gunnar Kaasen, had to grope for the vials with bare hands in the snow after strong winds flipped his sled just outside Nome.

He found the serum and got it through. Nome was saved.

The modern Iditarod Race may approach the serum run in spirit, but not in style. As the mushers arrive, they immediately tend their 13 to 15 team dogs, rubbing them down, patting their heads, dressing their paws in special protective booties, and feeding them chunks of dried beef and salmon. Thousands of pounds of dog food are taken to the checkpoints by a squadron of small ski planes – the "Iditarod Air Force." Packed in with the dog food are race officials, journalists, and veterinarians.

Concern for Huskies

"They're running machines," says Dr. Tex Coady, inspecting the Siberian huskies, the most common breed of racing dog. "Lungs and rib cage and muscle, and that's all." Veterinarians stationed at each checkpoint have the authority to remove from the race any dog they consider injured or unfit to run.

Twenty-three checkpoints punctuate the trail. The mushers

LEMMINGS ARE RODENTS. THEY LOOK A LITTLE LIKE THEIR RELATIVES, THE RATS. ONE DIFFERENCE IS THAT THEY DO NOT HAVE LONG TAILS. THE LEMMINGS IN NORWAY ARE TRAVELERS. WHEN THEY MULTIPLY TOO FAST THEY TRAVEL FROM THEIR MOUNTAIN HOMES TO THE SEA WHERE THEY TUMBLE IN AND DROWN.

Built-in no-till performance at no extra cost!

Case International 800 Series Planters

Do you need a planter that can go directly from conventional-till to min-till or no-till without the extra cost of no-till colters? Then Case International has the answer, the 800 Series Early Riser planter.

In side-by-side on-farm tests, an independent testing agency confirmed that the exclusive design of the Case International narrow angle, staggered double disk opener penetrated hard ground and sliced through trash better than two other popular planters equipped with colters.

Test results also proved Early Riser outperformed the other two planters in both emergence and yield. And farmers confirmed that the Early Riser was faster and easier to adjust and calibrate in all planting conditions.

So if you are considering a new planter, get the planter that's ready for no-till when you are ... the Case International Early Riser.

have required rest periods of varying lengths, including one 24-hour layover, at the checkpoints of their choice. The race becomes a game of wits. For example: A musher arives and announces his intention to stay a full day, glancing at the fur-wrapped faces around him. As the weather clears that night, he slips outside, hitches up his team, and "Hike!" he's off. He'll log his 24 hours of rest elsewhere.

Sleepless nights are common. The racers often get fatigued and lost, having to backtrack to find the trail markers. It's a hard race through a hard land, beautiful at times, boring at others. One musher dozed off while under way and fell from his sled onto the Yukon River pack ice. Fortunately, he was just outside a checkpoint. He walked in and arrived 10 minutes after his dogs.

Who are the Iditarod mushers? Alaskans, most of them. For occupations they list sales manager, printer, truck driver, and schoolteacher. Some find full-time professions in breeding, training, and selling their dogs.

Others come from Europe, Japan, and the lower 48 states. Gary Paulsen of Minnesota wears a small tape recorder and listens to Gustav Mahler's Resurrection Symphony while racing through the sub-zero temperatures. Terry Hinesley trains each year at the Oregon Dune Mushers Mail Run – a race across 80 miles of sand.

"It's a rare business in Alaska that hasn't been approached at least once to sponsor a dog musher," writes Tim Jones in his book "The Last Great Race." Nevertheless, add up the costs of travel and training, of the dogs themselves, and all the food, sleds, clothing, and other equipment, and a racer can easily spend $20,000 to run the Iditarod.

ALASKA
Race Across the Frozen North
Tracing across 1,137 miles of snow and ice, Alaska's Iditarod Sled Dog Race tests humans and dogs to the ultimate. The route from Anchorage to Nome changes annually, sometimes even during a race. Drivers may choose to cut across the ice of Norton Sound, a perilous shortcut.

Hazards of Nature

The 1985 race was one of the longest and wildest. Bad storms stopped it twice. A third of the mushers failed to finish. Half of all the racers encountered moose that did everything from blocking trails to killing dogs.

Who won? Libby Riddles, a 28-year-old woman who braved a storm three-quarters of the way through the race. The wind chill dropped to 60 below zero across frozen Norton Sound. Yet her team of 13 dogs maintained a steady pace of 5 to 8 mph. Gulping seal oil and Norwegian chocolate bars, she built an insurmountable lead and crossed under the arch on Nome's Front Street 18 days and 20 minutes after leaving Anchorage.

"Libby Did It!" announced an Alaska newspaper. It was a victory for the spirit of the Iditarod. Nome's cheering residents pounded their mittened hands They greeted Libby and every other cold musher with a tremendous warmth, as if in the bottom of each sled, wrapped in furs, were small vials of diphtheria serum.

Manheim Central sets agenda for FFA Week

MANHEIM — Members of the Manheim Central FFA Chapter along with 430,000 other FFA'ers throughout the United States will celebrate National FFA Week Feb. 15 to 22. This year's FFA theme is "Leaders for the New Fields of Agriculture."

Neil Benedict, Manheim Central chapter president, says that members will be stressing this new theme in activities planned for the week. "We have a full week of activities planned," he said. They include a week-long canned food drive to benefit Manheim Food Bank, an open house in the vo-ag department for eighth grade students on Tuesday, official dress day on Wednesday, cherry sundaes for high school staff on Thursday, and a drawing for a prize to food drive contributors on Friday.

The new FFA theme emphasizes that agriculture is changing and that it is more than just farming. Computers, bio-genetics, economics and aquaculture are just a few of the 200 career areas in agriculture.

High school vocational agriculture and the FFA organization are teaching the youth of the city and the country skills that will prepare them to be the leaders for this diverse agricultural industry.

FFA Week traditionally includes George Washington's birthday. Washington gained respect for FFA through his great leadership skills and innovative practices in agriculture. He serves as an example for all FFA members.

The FFA has been promoting leadership, cooperation and citizenship among young people since 1928. With the changing roles of agriculture, the organization realizes the importance of continuing the emphasis of developing agricultural skills and in building "Leaders for the New Fields of Agriculture."

Ida's Notebook

Ida Risser

This winter seems to be passing too quickly. Maybe there have been too many meetings or too many appointments but it seems that the weeks simply fly by and I don't accomplish what I had planned.

I enjoy spring and planting the garden, but somehow I feel that I'm being rushed into outdoor work I'd like to enjoy winter a bit longer and if I must drive in snow, then I want to "see" the snow falling and not just get up in the morning and be surprised by a new snowfall. After saying that, I'll probably have a big snow storm to watch

Unexpected things keep happening to fill my days. Last week water started to drop down through our livingroom ceiling but the upstairs bathroom was as "dry as a bone." As this happened Friday night, we could get no plumber until Monday morning. Two of our girls came home over the weekend to no water as we had to turn it off. We had the unusual experience, for us, of washing the dinner dishes together since we couldn't use the dishwasher. Then the floor had to be torn up and now we must lay new linoleum.

Two days later I discovered that the freezer door had not been shut properly, when the hog that we had butchered was put in, and everything was covered with frost. As the freezer was full, it took a while to clean all the boxes and packages and defrost it. At least, they were still frozen and that was one good thing.

Now I'm hoping that something pleasant will happen and that the saying, "Two will be three, isn't true this time. Anyway, I'm looking forward to a trip to New York City tomorrow to see "Liechtenstein: The Princely Collections"

Warwick Young Farmers to meet

LITITZ – The Warwick Young Farmers will meet Feb. 17 at 7 p.m. in the High School Ag room. Featured speaker for the evening will be Mr. John Kimbark, PACMA marketing specialist and "Market Trends" columnist for the "Pennsylvania Farmer."

Kimbark and an associate will be speaking on trends in farm markets and on how to use commodity hedging as a management tool in these tough economic times.

The meeting will start with a brief business meeting and end with refreshments. All interested farmers are welcome to attend.

WALL O' WATER PLANT PROTECTORS

A field of 12,000 wall o' waters used by a commercial grower in Western US

NOW! Plant tomatoes, cantaloupes, and other vegetables 6 weeks earlier without freezing them. Protects plants to 10°F. You will be able to harvest at least 3 weeks earlier and in most springs 4 weeks earlier Not only can you harvest earlier, but plants will be a lot healthier thus yields are increased considerably. Protectors last for 7 to 10 years. Under most trials growers have more than doubled the cost of protectors in increased profits the first year they used them.

Also use them to make small greenhouses. Grow tomatoes and pepper seedlings without using any heat. Also use for cantaloupes, cucumbers, etc. Water heats up during daytime, and keeps it warmer at night.

Original quilt featuring Holsteins to be auctioned

BY JOYCE BUPP
Staff Correspondent

SMITHSBURG, Md. — A handmade quilt, crafted in memory of a young Washington County Holstein boy, will be a highlight of the Maryland State Holstein Convention sale on Feb. 22.

The one-of-a-kind quilt was designed and sewn by Eva Martin Smithsburg, R2. Eva and her husband Marlin are donating it in memory of their teenage son Kraig, killed two years ago in an automobile accident. Proceeds from the quilt are earmarked for three separate memorials benefitting dairy youth.

One third of the selling price will be set aside for a special Kraig Martin memorial fund, from which about six Washington County 4-H awards are to be presented annually.

A second third goes to the Washington County Holstein Club, establishing a memorial sponsorship for a grand champion fitting-showmanship award at the club's annual field day.

The Doty Remsburg fund, established in memory of the well-known Maryland Holstein promoter and sales manager, will receive the final third. Funds from the Remsburg memorial are used to benefit the state's 4-H dairy teams.

While the quilt memorial had been in the Martin's plans for many months, it wasn't until the Thanksgiving holiday weekend that Eva finally put the design together on paper. Gathering of the fabrics for each part of the pastoral setting took a few more weeks In mid-January, the finished top was ready for handquilting by Marlin's mother, Ada Martin, also of Smithsburg.

Crafted primarily in shades of green, the 94- by 100-inch quilt is accented with a cheery red and white pin striped barn, grayish-toned house and silos, and even golden yellow grain bins. It is appropriate for use on both double and queen size beds.

Also available at the convention will be more of Eva's creations, her own designed needlecraft kits featuring Holstein cows.

"I became frustrated when I went looking for needlework ideas and found there were so few dairy related ones," says this talented dairy farm woman.

Cross-stitched pillow kits and needlepoint tissue box covers are the first market test items for what may develop into a business for Eva.

Both feature the "We Love Holsteins" message, with a heart symbolizing the word "love" and the head of a Holstein cow.

Pillow kits include all the necessary supplies, except for the pillow form, to complete a 14-inch ruffled square pillow. In the kit are white pillow covering fabric, hot iron transfer, embroidery floss and ruffling fabric, in a variety of colors.

Tissue box covers are designed to fit the smaller, square box. Plastic needlepoint canvas is precut to the proper size, with yarn and pattern graph included in the kit.

Both kits will be available at the Maryland Holstein Convention, or by contacting Eva Martin at R2, Box 414, Smithsburg, Md., 21783, or at 301-824-2106.

"We love Holsteins" is the theme of two needlecraft kits designed by Eva Martin. They will be making their debut at the Maryland State Holstein Convention.

National FFA officers tour Japan

ALEXANDRIA, VA. – National officers of the FFA are traveling to Japan for two weeks to gain an understanding of international agriculture.

The student leaders of the nearly half-million member vocational agriculture organization left February 2 for a look at Japan's culture and agricultural industry.

The international tour is being sponsored by Mitsui & Company (USA), based in Memphis, and Mitsui & Co., Ltd. of Tokyo. This is the seventh year Mitsui has sponsored the tour The six FFA'ers will be visiting Mitsui facilities while in Japan.

The officers will also be visiting their Japanese counterpart - the Future Farmers of Japan. In order to give the national officers an experience in Japanese family culture, they will be staying with host families furnished by the FFJ while in Japan.

"We greatly appreciate the opportunity Mitsui is providing us to learn about Japan," said National FFA President Rick Malir "We are excited about traveling through the country and meeting with the FFJ to exchange ideas about the future of agriculture."

The officers will be visiting various agricultural industries to get a better understanding of how agricultural trade in other nations operates. Malir and his fellow National FFA Officers each travel throughout the year over 200,000 miles making hundreds of speeches Their travel will include approximately 50 states and Puerto Rico and other countries including international trip to Japan

Farm Women Societies

Lancaster Society 1

Lancaster Society 1 met recently in the home of Mrs. Betty Sheaffer with Mrs. Paul Kurtz as co-hostess.

Rob Dixon, one of the meterologists from Channel WGAL TV, talked about the origin of Ground Hog Day and explained the methods and sources used to prepare and predict the weather. A question and answer session followed his talk.

State Convention delegates Mrs. Mary Clark and Mrs. Marion Fuhrman gave reports on the two-day meeting.

The president announced that the date for Christmas in October at the Farm and Home Center has been changed from Oct. 13 and 14 to Oct. 20 and 21.

The next meeting will be on March 1 at the home of Mrs. Della Bollinger with Barbara Ann Hershey as co-hostess.

Lancaster Society 6

Lancaster Society 6 met on Feb. 1 at the home of hostess Mrs. Martin Spangler. Sarah Myer and president Mary Lee Spangler gave reports from the Farm Women Convention.

Muriel Saylor led the group in games.

Lancaster Society 10

Lancaster Society 10 met recently at the home of Getha Dixon. President Nancy Starr conducted the meeting with 12 members present.

Ways and Means Committee chairman Lucy Miller reported on a bus trip to the Flower Show on May 11. Those participating in the bus trip will spend a half day at the flower show and the other half day shopping in Philadelphia.

Society 10 will entertain Society 7 March 1 at Esbenshade's Farm, when Hazel Ulrich will present slides on her many travels. Invitations have been sent to all county officers.

Suggestions for county project are Conestoga View Aux. and Water Street Rescue Mission.

Suie Dietrick, Nancy Starr and Kathryn Hebbe gave reports from the state convention in Harrisburg.

Society 10 will be entertained by Society 13 on March 8 at the Farm and Home Center.

Berks Society 11

Eight members of Berks Society 11 met recently at the home of Wendy Lingle. The group held a silent auction as a fund raiser.

President Wendy Lingle conducted the business meeting. The Spring Rally will be on May 28 and Berks Heim Bingo is planned for April 17 and Nov. 13. All members voted in favor of making a donation to Berks Heim.

The next meeting will be a nutrition program at the home of Fran Dubble on Feb. 24.

F.W.S. Calendar

Saturday, February 22

Central 4-H Dairy Club

The Central 4-H Dairy Club met recently at the home of Jane Thompson to discuss plans for the coming year.

At the meeting they held a Hoard's Dairymen Contest and discussed dairy nutrition and understanding blue forms.

In the spring, the group will talk about knot tying and will learn to make rope halters.

The June and July meetings will prepare members for the 4-H Roundup. Meeting topics will include clipping, fitting and showing dairy animals. Later, the group will take a tour.

A meeting covering safety on the farm and a discussion on artificial insemination are also on the agenda. The group will wrap up the year with the club's combination achievement night and Christmas party meeting.

Seeding, Weeding and mulch more

For the avid gardener

While you're going over those seed catalogs during this "arm-chair gardening" season, let me bring your attention to the 1986 all-America Selection. A new dwarf cosmos is the flower selection and a white corn and dwarf white okra are the vegetable choices.

The one flower selection is called "Sunny Red." Unlike other cosmos that can grow up to four feet tall, this one reaches only 18 inches, which means it needs no pinching, no staking, no pruning.

The flowers are a bright orangey-red with yellow stamens making a conspicuous center. They are about two inches across, and semi-double, which means they have about twice as many petals as the common cosmos. It is tolerant of high heat and humidity. It also does well as a cut flower.

Sunny Red takes 60 to 70 days to start blooming from seed, which should be sown out in the garden when the soil warms up (around the end of May). Flowers can be had several weeks earlier if seeds are sown indoors in early April and the plants set out in late May. Seeds germinate in five to 10 days. Started plants may also be available at local garden centers and greenhouses.

The new corn in called "How Sweet It Is" and is one of the super sweet kinds that are the result of a 20-year breeding program. It was developed by Abbott and Cobb, parent company of Otis Twilley Seed Co., in Trevose, Pa.

The extra sweetness is retained for several days after the ears are harvested; with most corn, flavor deteriorates in a day. The ears are about eight inches long and each stalk normally produces two ears. The plant grows nearly seven feet tall. Time to harvest is about 35 days from sowing the seed. Plant them after the soil has warmed up (along with squash and cucumbers). The corn has to be pollinated by itself. It should be isolated from other varieties of corn. Twenty to 30 feet is enough separation from another type of corn.

Okra may not be the most popular vegetable in the North but it is coming into demand both as a salad and cooked vegetable. "Blondy" takes only 48 days from sowing to harvest and is a dwarf plant; it grows only three feet tall and two feet wide.

Seeds can be sown outdoors in warm soil (end of May) or started indoors in mid-April. Unlike some okras, the ribbed pods are not spiny; harvesting is easier. They should be picked when three inches long.

The flowers are bright yellow and look very much like small hibiscus. The pods have a cream colored background with lime green stripes, a change from the usual okra which is green.

Okra can be cooked, marinated or sliced raw to add a decorative touch to salads. It has 10 calories per ounce and extra fiber. It contains more potassium, vitamin C, B1 and B2 than tomatoes.

Union County Historical Society seeks quilts for documentation

NEW BLOOMFIELD -- The Oral Traditions Project of the Union County Historical Society, in cooperation with area historical societies and libraries, is seeking quilts from as recently as the 1930's for a major quilt documentation.

The project covers a seven-county area, which includes Perry, Juniata, Cumberland, Dauphin, Huntingdon, Columbia, Montour and Sullivan counties. Extension home economist Mary Myers says area residents with old quilts they know are area family pieces or made by a definite relative should take them to select sites in the state.

The project will take a look at completed quilts and comforts as well as unfinished tops and patches.

The research will end with a major book on area quilts and the women who made them, similar to the book published last year by the Oral Traditions Project and funded by the Pennsylvania Council on the Arts and the National Endowment for the Arts.

The title of last year's book was "In the Heart of Pennsylvania/19th and 20th Century Quiltmaking Traditions" by Jeannette Lasansky.

Free copies of the book will be awarded to the person who brings in the greatest number, the quilt with the most complete documentation, and to the person with the most typical quilt and to the one with the most unusual.

People in the seven-county area are urged to participate in this book, which will be published in May 1987. People are also urged to bring quilts made in those counties as well as any quilts made in the counties previously studied — Union, Snyder, Northumberland, Lycoming, Clinton, Centre and Mifflin.

The Documentaion Days are scheduled as follows:

Sunday, Feb. 23 — 1 to 6 p.m., Blue Ball Tavern, Little Buffalo State Park, Perry County.

Sunday, March 23 — 1 to 6 p.m., Columbia County Historical Society headquarters, Orangeville.

Sunday, April 6 — 1 to 6 p.m., Berwick Public Library, Berwick.

Sunday, May 18 — 1 to 6 p.m., Montour County Historical Society, Danville.

Other counties yet to be scheduled are Sullivan, in April; Huntingdon and Juniata counties in June; and Cumberland and Dauphin counties in August, September, and early October.

Plant Birka Barley this spring...
The profitable alternative to oats.

Many growers are convinced — and comparison tests prove them right — that spring barley is the sensible alternative to oats especially when it's the new Birka Barley Birka outperforms oats in yield and test weight, and has excellent standability It has been the top New York grown barley in Cornell trials for three years in a row, and provides the dependability that oats often does not

For The Dairyman — Birka Barley is more than a good nurse crop, so often the primary function of oats Birka is an excellent dairy feed — higher in energy and TDN than oats, comparable in protein and palatability, and excellent for standability — even when extra nitrogen is used Birka fits well into a summer feeding and cropping program because it is ready for combining far ahead of corn harvest

For The Cash Cropper — Birka has more advantages than its high yield, test weight, and excellent resistance to lodging Two-rowed Birka is a good harvester Its plump kernels head out well and do not fall to the ground before combining There is generally an immediate favorable price market for barley unlike oats, which may have to be stored to await best price, and barley fills that long period before corn harvest Also, Birka's stiff, sturdy straw makes it a good seller at the race tracks and other profitable markets

Star Farmer Richard Speer looks to bright future in agriculture

BY BETSY STITT
Staff Correspondent

BLAIRS MILLS — Richard Speer is an enthusiastic, determined young man. Named this year's State FFA Star Farmer, he sees a bright future in the dairy industry despite the current farm situation.

FFA and winning is not new to the Speer family. In 1956, Richard's father was named the State Star Farmer and North Eastern Star Farmer. He received his American Farmer Degree in 1958 and was named North Atlantic Regional Star Farmer.

Along with receiving these awards, Speer served as state FFA president and bought and began a dairy farm.

Rich is working hard at following in his father's footsteps. His next goal is to become a state officer, a position he will compete for in June at the state FFA convention. In September, he will compete with star farmers from 16 other states for the North Eastern Star Farmer.

As far back as he can remember, Rich has wanted to farm. He was an active 4-H'er, and in ninth grade he enrolled in the vocational-agriculture program at Southern Huntingdon High School. Soon, he became a member of the FFA, an organization he believes is very worthwhile.

"It has so much to offer if you just take advantage of those opportunities," he noted.

While in school, Rich was a member of the state FFA band for four years. He also competed in public speaking and made it to the state level two times, placing fourth once. Rich also held numerous offices, including treasurer, secretary, vice president and two county offices.

After graduation, Rich entered into a partnership with his father. "I started with a cow and calf and built it into a full-time partnership," Rich said. Rich and his father own the cows and machinery equally and Rich rents the land and buildings. Together they have 250 acres under cultivation. Some day, Rich hopes to buy out his dad.

The Speer dairy herd consists of 60 milking cows, all Holsteins. Many of the cows standing in the 53 stanchion tie stall barn can be traced back to one cow. Mr. Speer received her as a yearling heifer when he was named North Eastern Star Farmer. She was from Hilltop farms and was part of the Speer's herd from 1956 to 1969.

"She did real well for us and the first calf given to Rich was a descendent of her," he noted.

The Elevation bloodline is another prominent factor in the herd. They have done an embryo transfer on one cow and are planning to do another on one of their Elevation daughters in the near future. Speer commented: "Just think what we could have done with embryo transfer on the cow I received."

Rich reported that they work closely with their vet, Dr. Anderson, to keep their herd in top condition. The vet does monthly pregnancy checks, helps with forage testing and formulating balanced feed rations. The Speers grind their own feed and have a different formula for dry cows, milk cows and heifers.

Last April they installed automatic grain feeders in the milk barn. The cows are fed four times a day with the feeder, which is operated by an automatic timer. Rich is pleased with the feeders, noting, "The cows eat more and they save a lot of labor."

Vaccinating cows for mastitis is also part of the herd health strategy. Rich reported that they have had no serious mastitis problems since vaccinating.

The herd is on DHIA and has a rolling herd average of 18,016 pounds of milk, 659 pounds fat with a 3.7 test. Some day, Rich hopes to have a 20,000 pound milk and 800 fat herd average.

Rich recently learned to breed cows and is using selective breeding to upgrade the herd. Rich also reports that they classify the herd to help upgrade type.

Field crops are also closely monitored. They soil test each corn field in order to know exactly what the soil needs and to help cut down on fertilizer costs. The extra effort is paying off because they have had corn to sell for the past several years.

The Speers presently do not have a computer. Although they may get one in the future, Rich said for right now he perfers to think things through with the aid of pencil and paper. Rich said they give every aspect of the business a hard look and the bottom line is: if it works efficiently and is profitable, it stays; if not, it goes.

In discussing the current farm situation, Rich is optimistic. "Better days are coming, everything runs in cycles," he said. He would encourage young people to farm if that is what they want to do. "They have to be willing to work hard for nothing in the beginning."

Rich thinks the herd buyout program will help cut production. He sees it as a good way out for guys who are getting into financial trouble or those who are considering retirement. He thinks some of the financial burdens farmers face are the result of continually adding to their debt load. Rich is determined to get out from a heavy debt load by paying for one thing before buying something else.

Rich also believes that if the world market was opened, it would help cut the surplus. "People are starving in other parts of the world. They could use some of our milk and maybe they have something we could use," Rich said.

Promotion is also helping. Milk is now more visible to the public and they are starting to buy more.

Mr. Speer noted that American farmers should count their blessings that they can produce food so efficiently and even have a surplus. "Just think if it were the other way around," he continued.

In response to the question: "If you could not farm, what would you do?" Rich responded without hesitation that he would stay in some form of agriculture, probably ag education.

Rich exhibits an immense pride in FFA and agriculture in general. He explained, "FFA is to support it. As far as agriculture goes, well, it is the backbone of America."

Rich is grateful to his parents for their support. "After I was named State Star Farmer, it didn't really hit me until I came off the stage and saw them," Rich said. "I could not have done it without their support."

Rich Speer, state FFA Star Farmer, pets "Ellie," a family favorite and an Elevation daughter.

Rich and his father talk over future plans for their farm.

Star Agribusinessman John Bouch gained experience in family enterprise

BY BETH NESBIT
Staff Correspondent

BURNSIDE — John Bouch, a senior member of the Purchase Line Area High School FFA Chapter, has earned the right to represent Pennsylvania in the North Atlantic Region's competition in September. Bouch was awarded the FFA Star Agribusiness Award, the highest FFA agricultural business award granted in the state.

The award is given to the FFA student who demonstrates the best business activities in agriculturally related jobs.

John competed with the approximately 300 FFA members who earned Keystone Farmer Degrees. It is from this select group of aspiring youths that four members are chosen as the Star Farmer or Star Agribusinessman of their region. From these applicants, the winner is chosen on a point system based on their agribusiness experience.

As his region's Star Agribusinessman, John represents the Western region which includes all counties north and south of Indiana County to the Ohio border.

John's application for the Star Agribusinessman Award was selected from the 85 entrants in the Western region.

In September's North Atlantic competition, John will compete against 16 other FFA students who finished first in the northeastern states.

Bouch's selection as Pennsylvania's Star Agribusinesman was based on his work experience in dry walling, carpentry and managing a forestry and lumbering operation.

At the age of 16 John worked with Miller & Lawton Dry Wall, GNK & Associated Carpentry, both of burnside. Currently, he is working for his father in their own lumber business — Bouch Brothers Lumber Company.

John attributes his success in winning this prestigious award to his former employers, Don Lawton and Michael Brown. Because of their encouragement and his parents' and family's support, John submitted his application. Without the efforts of his FFA sponsor, Ed Scott, John does not think he would have put his best foot forward.

"It was Mr. Scott who talked me into applying for it," John says, adding that Scott's devotion was very admirable and helped to motivate him.

In addition to John's strong job experience background, he has been an active member of his FFA chapter. He is currently serving as chairman of the Building Our American Communities project and is chairman of the National FFA Week Observation. He has also served as co-chairman of the chapter's citrus sale as well as the Food for America program.

When asked if the FFA organization has influenced his career choice, John answered without hesitation, "Definately."

He explained that he and his father have had their own business for two years, but until after graduation, he is able to help out only during summer vacation. But after graduation, he plans to take over the timber business, which supplies two saw mills with lumber.

When John was asked what advice he would give to future Star Agribusinessmen, he was quick to reply: "I would tell them of my personal experiences and how these have helped pave a better tomorrow."

FFA "Spring Branding Drive" to focus on safety

ALEXANDRIA, VA – If you own or operate a tractor, you can expect to have a friendly visitor in the near future.

FFA chapters nationwide will be visiting farmers to "brand" every tractor with a decal urging safe tractor operations in an attempt to save lives and prevent injuries.

The campaign was initially the idea of Leona Schalow, a farm wife in Minnesota who lost her husband in a tractor accident. FFA members, with the sponsorship of International Harvester Company and Case IH, will locate and "brand" tractors with the "heart decal" which reads: "Please be careful, we love you." It is signed, "Your family."

FFA members will call on tractor dealers, farm supply stores and agricultural agencies for help in locating all tractor owners who will be contacted to arrange visits to "brand" every tractor possible on every farm, large or small.

Particular emphasis is being placed on older tractors which are more vulnerable to accidents and on which roll-over protective structures cannot be installed. These machines require extra care on the part of the operator.

Statistics show that each year more than 500 tractor operators lose their lives because of haste, fatigue or carelessness. Farmers will be given a tractor safety brochure at the time that decals are placed on their tractors to complete the impact of the safety message designed to prevent needless accidents.

Each FFA chapter participating will receive an award from the National FFA, with special recognition for chapters with 100% membership participation.

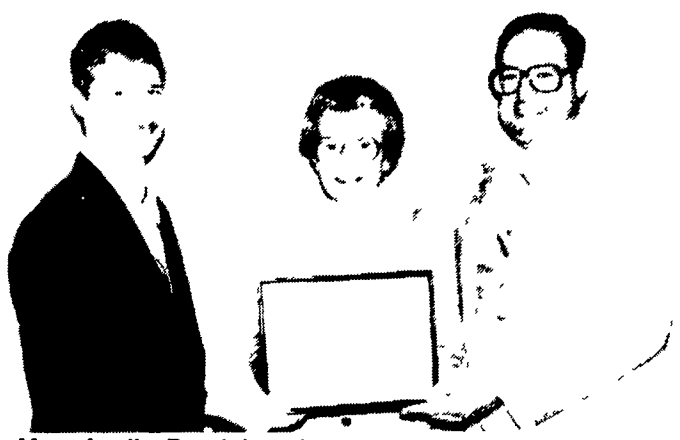
Cumberland County Extension Association recognizes outstanding members

The 69th annual meeting of the Cumberland County Agriculture and Home Economics Extension Association was held recently at the South Middleton Firehall, Boiling Springs. Walter Loy of Carlisle was recognized for his outstanding leadership and service to the agricultural community. Dr. John Enck, Jr., who was re-elected president, is shown presenting Wally with an appreciation plaque.

Mabel Strock, center, recently received recognition by the Pennsylvania Association of Extension Home Economists for her participation in the Cumberland County Extension Service. Mabel has been a 4-H leader in the Mechanicsburg area for 33 years and promoted educational programs in family living. Congratulating Mabel are Marg Malehorn, Extension home economist, and Dr. John Enck, Jr., president of the Cumberland County Extension Association.



Mrs. Avella Raudabaugh, a long-time friend of the Cumberland County Extension Association, was recognized for her support of Extension programs. A certificate of appreciation designed by Debbie Cornman was presented to Mrs. Raudabaugh by Mark Naugle, a past president of the Association. Dr. John Enck, Jr., current president, also helped with the presentation.

Gardening newsletter available to Del. residents

NEWARK, Del. – Growing a successful lawn and garden requires the skills of a horticulturist, an entomologist and a plant pathologist. During the growing season extension specialists and county agents are literally besieged with calls from homeowners about landscape and garden problems, many of which are seasonal and quite common.

To provide information to more Delaware home gardeners, University of Delaware extension specialists publish a newsletter, "Garden Check," every other week throughout the growing season.

Each issue of the six-page publication contains timely information on garden tasks and advice on solving plant-related problems. For example, the first issue last spring provided the following information:

- How and when to plant trees and shrubs;
- A reminder to prune and fertilize roses;
- Detailed instructions for pruning ornamentals;
- Lawn care recommendations,
- Recommended fruit varieties;
- Recommended treatments for several problem insects and plant diseases;
- The procedure for becoming certified to use restricted pesticides;
- Suggested home vegetable garden plan;
- Vegetable planting date chart.

"Garden Check" is designed for experienced gardeners as well as novices who want to give their plants good care. For people who like to grow their own food, there is a section on food preservation. Mailings often include timely fact sheets. There are 12 issues a year, including special fall and holiday editions.

The newsletter is available to home gardeners and other interested individuals on a subscription basis for $5 a year. To subscribe write: GARDEN CHECK, Mail Room, Townsend Hall, University of Delaware, Newark DE 19717-1303. Make checks payable to University of Delaware.

National FFA names Stagg director of information

ALEXANDRIA, VA. – William F. Stagg has been named director of information of the National FFA Organization.

In 1977, Stagg began his career at the FFA in the Information Department as chief photographer and darkroom technician. He was named audio-visual specialist in 1980 with responsibility for coordinating all audio-visual productions and services. He was appointed Associate Editor of "The National Future Farmer" Magazine in July, 1985 and will leave that position to assume the duties of Director of Information March 3.

Stagg is a native of Virginia and attended Virginia Polytechnic Institute and State University where he earned a bachelor's degree in communication in 1978 with a specialization in international media systems. While at VPI, he was elected presendent of the Zeta Psi Fraternity and served as student representative to the communications faculty.

As director of information, Stagg will plan, prepare and carry out the communications effort of the National FFA Organization which will include preparing extensive publicity for the National FFA Convention held each year in Kansas City, MO. Stagg will also have major responsibility for the FFA's booklets, public service announcements, audio-visuals, photographic services, and will coordinate the Food For America program.

The FFA is a national organization of nearly one-half million vocational agriculture students preparing for careers in agricultural business and production. FFA chapters are an intracurricular part of vocational agriculture education in public schools.

Sauers receives honorary FFA degree

HUMMELTOWN – Dr. George Sauers, superintendent of the Lower Daupin School District, was recently presented with the Honarary Keystone Degree, the highest honor the Pennsylvania Association of the Future Farmers of America bestows.

Dr. Sauers was honored for his efforts in maintaining the quality of instruction the Lower Dauphin FFA provides. The chapter last year was recognized as the best in the state. Dr. Sauers has encouraged and supported the chapter in its participation in state and local FFA activites; each designed to improve the agricultural and leadership skills of the participants.

Dr. Sauers received a certificate and medallion as a token of this honor.

Farm Talk

By

Jerry Webb

There are few occupations where the wife is anymore important to the success of the business than farming. It's just that kind of business. And it's rare to see a successful farmer whose spouse is not deeply involved with the farm. In days past, that involvement may have been a clearly defined role of housekeeper, and the one who tended the garden and took care of the chickens. But all that has changed. Lines of responsibility are not so easily drawn, and wives are now involved at every point in the farm production spectrum

Department of Agriculture data show many of them as full-time farm operators while their spouses work off-farm jobs. And more and more of them take active roles in other farm enterprises, including dairying, swine production and vegetable crop farming. Here on the Delmarva peninsula, it's quite common for a husband to work an off-farm job while his wife carries sole responsibility for a large broiler operation.

But even in today's modern society, it's rare to find a farm woman operating the farm while her house-husband takes care of the cleaning and cooking, runs errands, and minds the garden. For all of the advances women have made into the production side of farming, they still remain a virtual monopoly when it comes to the responsibilities of the home

Researchers at Iowa State University surveyed almost 1,000 farm households to find out more about "home economics" on the farm They wanted data that would help farmers make decisions on having children, pursuing outside jobs, or going back to school Here are some of their findings:

- The average farm wife will spend an additional 430 hours a year doing household chores for every child under six years of age
- Rearing three children of various ages means more than a eight-hour workday for a farm wife
- With a 10 percent pay raise from an outside job, a farm wife will spend $32 more that year for household services.
- Each child under the age of six increases the probability of a woman not working at a wage-paying job by 11 percent.

The Iowa researchers used an economic model and a computer to determine values for household work. They found that 60 percent of the wives worked at least an hour or more a day in farm-related duties, including tractor driving, keeping records, or handling livestock More than one-fourth worked off the farm for wages

They also found that of the 430 extra hours each year required for a child under six, 315 of those hours came from what was previously classed as leisure time. The 430 hours is an average Obviously, young children take more time, older ones take less. Children between the ages of six and 11 need only 130 hours a year, and those between 12 and 18 require about 45 more hours a year, according to the study. That means a farm wife rearing a child in each of these age groups would work at household activities about 2,700 hours a year, or more than 50 hours a week That does not include any farm activities or off-farm employment

Using the tools of economic analysis, the Iowa researchers concluded that it is a lot easier to substitute capital in basic farm production, such as crops and livestock, than it is in basic household production. They found such things as appliances, maids, housing and nursery school, were relatively poor substitutes for a mother's household time in caring for younger children. "The capital labor ratio is 10 times larger for farm production than for household production," according to the report.

About a fourth of the husbands in the survey reported some off-farm work, and four-fifths of them said they did some work around the house. The report did not spell out how much

The researchers concluded that as family sizes decline the demand for household capital goods, such as durables and housing, will decline also. And the reduction in family size will also give wives more leisure time. They figure three-fourths of the time released from household labor will then be available for leisure time. Or, depending on the situation, available for farm production.

In some ways, farm families are more traditional in the way they face the task of household management and child rearing, with the wife bearing the bulk of the responsibility with very little outside support. On the other hand, farm wives have been liberated for

COUNTER® In-Furrow. Put Your Money Where

IN-FURROW IS COST EFFECTIVE

With in-furrow application, you get the most from all of your valuable insecticide. It's locked in the soil where it can't be blown away by wind during application, deflected by crop residue or washed away by heavy rains. All of your protection stays put for maximum performance. And COUNTER is applied in-furrow at the same rate as COUNTER banded.

COUNTER banded or in-furrow. Your two best options for maximum performance.

GUARANTEED SEED-SAFE

COUNTER is tough on corn pests but won't harm your seed.

Restricted Use Pesticide. Always read and follow label directions carefully.

BROADEST SPECTRUM CONTROL

COUNTER insecticide works on contact and systemically to protect your crop against more major corn pests including cutworm. With no known resistance.

COUNTER IS FLEXIBLE

Conventional or conservation-till, banded or in-furrow application, COUNTER protects your corn crop better than any other corn soil insecticide.

BEST VALUE

Accurate placement means that you'll get maximum performance from all of your insecticide. And COUNTER delivers the most cost-effective performance against the complex of pests that attack your corn crop. Guaranteed.

Family Budget necessary for financial success

NEWARK, Del. – "The only way you can tell if your family is financially healthy is to keep yearly records of income and expenses," says Extension home economist Debbie Amsden. "Keeping records also lets you know where you stand financially in any given month, and helps in planning your financial goals."

Amsden recommends keeping track of regular weekly and monthly expenses as well as less frequent expenses such as insurance payments, car registration, gifts, doctors' bills, and taxes.

"You can buy a record book designed specifically for recording expenses, but lined paper works just as well," she says. "List all regular expenses such as food, rent, utilities and clothing, then record what you spend weekly in each category. At the end of the month total the amounts.

"One way to prevent overspending in a particular category is to record credit card purchases when they are bought, not when they are paid for," advises the home economist.

Amsden says expenses paid twice a year, such as insurance and dentists' bills, can come up quickly, particularly if you haven't set aside some money each month to cover them. To plan for these expenses, divide the estimated total amount by 12, the number of months in the year. That's the amount you'll need to set aside each month. For example, for a car insurance bill of $420 set aside $35 per month. You can keep this money in a special account.

"Review last year's expenses for vacations, gifts and school supplies," says Amsden. "Set aside money each month for these too."

The home economist says keeping records of expenses helps you compare what you plan to spend in any given category with what you actually do spend. If the two figures differ greatly, consider adjusting your budget.

"Another good reason to keep track of expenses is to help you make adjustments if there is a reduction in income or an unanticipated major expense," says Amsden.

For more information on setting up a financial record-keeping system, call the county extension office in Newark (451-1239), Wilmington (571-2498), Dover (736-1448) or 736-5156), or Georgetown (856-7303).

4-H Fund to honor Challenger astronaut

UNIVERSITY PARK – The Onizuka 4-H Fund for Excellence has been established as a national 4-H tribute to Lieutenant Colonel Ellison S. Onizuka, a member of the ill-fated space shuttle Challenger crew.

"The fund will provide science and technology scholarships for which Pennsylvania 4-H members will be eligible. Funds will also come to Pennsylvania to support 4-H leadership development, which is an important priority in the state," says Dr. B. Alan Snider, assistant director for 4-H Youth Programs at Penn State.

Colonel Onizuka was a 4-H member and credited the program with giving him the values and character traits that helped him succeed in his professional and personal life. On his first space mission in January, 1985, he took three 4-H flags aboard the shuttle He presented one to the Hawaii 4-H program, one to the Texas state 4-H program, and was scheduled to present one to the national 4-H leadership in February He had recently participated in the production of a new 4-H educational television series, "Blue Sky Below My Feet - Adventures in Space Technology "

Contributions to the fund are tax-deductible and may be sent to Grand A. Schrum, President; National 4-H Council; 7100 Connecticut Avenue, Chevy Chase, MD 20815 generations, doing everything that needs to be done on the farm There are few farm tasks reserved for men only. That includes a wide range of physical kinds of work, up to and including the more sophisticated challenges of crops marketing, animal health care, and management decision making

The survey report doesn't attempt to project that farm wives will be taking a more active role in production agriculture. But it does indicate that with family size decreasing, farm wives will have more time to use in other ways outside of the home. It's a fairly sure bet that a lot of that time will be involved in some phase of active farming.

Before you buy any compact tractor, consider the name behind it

They don't come any better than the 13 to 32-horsepower* Ford 1000 Series diesels. Six power sizes, all available with two or four-wheel drive. All designed, engineered and built with Ford's commitment to quality.

But there's more to consider in buying a compact tractor than just the tractor. Consider, also, the company and dealer you buy it from.

A world of experience. Since 1917, Ford has delivered over 1.7 million small tractors to farm and industry in North America. We know what it takes to keep your tractor working in all kinds of conditions, year after year. Just look at all the 9N and 8N tractors, built in the 1940's and 50's, that are still on the job.

Strong dealer support. With 1,400 Ford Tractor dealers in North America, there's probably one near you. A full-time tractor dealer, experienced in meeting the needs of farm, industrial and residential customers.

Ford parts and service backup. Your dealer can supply most any part you're likely to need right from dealer stock. He's well equipped to service your tractors and equipment, and his mechanics are factory-trained.

These are things to consider before you buy a compact tractor. Including the name behind it.

Brockett's Ag Advice

By John E. Brockett
Farm Management Agent
Lewistown Extension Office

The "Milk Production Termination Program" which is more popularly called the "Whole Herd Buyout Program" is a revolutionary program that was destined to be discussed and cussed from the start. This will be longer than my normal column because I do not want to make two columns out of it.

The "BIG" question is "What maximum bid will be acceptable?" Liken it to a closed auction in reverse. There may well be no maximum bid. Let us explore a few of the facts that may affect the price a bidder could offer. Again, go to the auction idea and ask yourself "What affects the price there?"

Some of the answers are (1) the value of the item being sold, (2) the amount of money the bidders have to spend, (3) the desire for the item that is prevalent in the bidding crowd, (4) the amount of money the bidders can afford, and (5) the number of people interested in purchasing that item.

Each of the above answers is dependent on one or more of the other answers for determining the final bid. This will also be true for the bid strategies for this "buyout program." I'm sure there will be those who bid without considering the cost to themselves. (What do they need to make it work?)

There will be those who bid just to "test the water". Then there will be those who are in the bidding race because they know (1) what they can afford to bid, (2) what affect the bid will have on their financial situaiton, and (3) what they will do if the bid is accepted or rejected.

Debt Level will be the biggest factors. Farmes with a low or zero debt level can probably afford to bid lower than those with higher debt levels. With all other factors being equal, debt will influence the bid by about $10 (if the bid is made considering the need for income for the five year period) for every $1000 worth of debt per cow over $1000.

Potential Outside Income will be the second biggest factor. Outside income in relation to the farm family's financial needs will be a critical criteria in the economic formulation of a bid. There are three. cash outlays that will be essential for the family to consider before making a bid. Family living requirements top the list.

Those farm expenses that will remain after selling the cows, such as taxes, insurance, repairs, and utilities, will still have to be paid. Finally, there may still be debt payments to be made. The more of these things that can be covered by outside income, the less dependent the family will be on the program payout.

Family Living Requirements will be another factor. The lower the actual family living requirements, the lower the bid price they will need to cover their total financial requirements Warning! Most farmers do not properly figure their family living requirements. In addition to these expenses such as food and clothing that a family recognizes as family costs, there would be (1) the personal part of the dual expenses--taxes, insurance, etc, (2) personal income and social security taxes, (3) personal insurance, and (4) part of transportation.

Present Produciton Level and Cow Size will be bigger factors than many people realize. Production level will obviously be the factor that governs the "base period amount". Cow size will be directly related to the income a farmer receives for the sale animals. Sale income can be used to reduce debts or invested to provide a source of future non-farm income.

Non Economic Goals may be a factor that has no means for measuring. Goals such as getting out of business, retiring, or going into another phase of agriculture

Computer Program

We have developed a computer program to assist farmers considering entering the buyout program to formulate a bid price. Every "Cooperative Extension" office in Pennsylvania has this program available to use on their office Macintosh computer The program provides the user with six levels of computed bid prices based on the buyout program.

There are two inflation levels to consider, with one estimating no inflation for the next five years and the other estimating an average of 5% inflation per year for the next five years. The bid prices listed should be used as guides. See the above items under "What Will Affect the Amount You Can Afford To Bid". Several of them will be your estimates.

Taxes

There will be tax implications from both entering the program and from the method of buyout program payment taken afterwards. Potential participants must consider (1) possible investment tax credit recapture (pay back), (2) tax on the sale of the cattle, (3) income tax on forgiveness of debts, and (4) effect on social security payments from buyout payments. Anyone considering entering the program should consult with a competent tax advisor for a more detailed analysis of the tax problems he or she faces

There will be other considerations that a prospective participant should explore before making a final bid. These considerations include (1) What effect will the lack of a dairy base have on the rental or sale value or the farm? (2) What will you do after the five year period? and (3) What will sitting idle for five years do to your buildings and equipment? Mimeos with more detail are available from your county agent or me on both the tax implications and other considerations, just ask for either one or both.

Suggestions

Those who are considering participating in the buy-out program should proceed with caution. Following is a list of some of the things I would suggest be done.

1. Make use of one of the computer programs that are available to determine a reasonable place to start. They will help the user estimate the amount needed to accomplish the goals desired

Those goals may be to just cover all future farm related expenses and debt payments, or to pay farm expenses, debt payments, and family living. Or they may be to cover those expenses plus build a reserve to get back into dairying at a future date. Or they may be to pay all the above outlay plus a return on the lost equity from selling the cows for beef instead of dairy

Each "Cooperative Extension Office" in the state has access to a program they can use with their "Macintosh" computers. There also may be a number of worksheets available that a farmer can use at home or to develop his or her own computer program One word of warning on the worksheets–they are complicated because of the many factors that you must consider to determine an estimated bid price.

2 Review the results from any program or worksheet that is done asking the question "are the family living values reasonably accurate?". That will probably be the place must subject to error

3 Consult with a competent tax accountant before signing up and before agreeing on a particular payment plan. Those who have a program run by the "Extension Office" will receive a mimeo on tax implications to consider. Others can get this mimeo by asking for it at your local "Extension Office". Anyone who will have a debt partly or wholely forgiven when they enter the program should pay particular attention to possible tax problems that result from that forgiveness

4 Attend county meeting to become acquainted with the rules and regulations for the program

Hoerner earns proficiency award

HUMMELTOWN -- Brian Hoerner, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Hoerner of Hershey, was recently named winner of the Pennsylvania State FFA Proficiency Award in Diversified Livestock.

This award is presented to the FFA member with the outstanding vo-ag SOE program consisting of any combination of dairy, livestock, and poultry animals. It is the highest award a student may earn on the state level for his or her project work.

Brian received a certificate and a check for $100 for earning this award.

Brian's project has consisted of seven beef breeding and finishing cattle, 20 swine breeding and finishing hogs, and four acres of rye and mixed hay. Brian is currently employed with the Milton Hershey Farms.

It was also announced that Brian was the second place gold medal winner at the eastern U.S. FFA region contest. At this contest he competed against the winners from Connecticut, Delaware, Maine, Maryland, Massachusetts, New Hampshire, New Jersey, New York, North Carolina, Ohio, Rhode Island, Vermont, Virginia, and West Virginia.

FFA Foundation reports record year

ALEXANDRIA, VA – Nearly 1,000 individuals and businesses agreed with the 1985 National FFA Foundation Sponsoring Board Chairman's theme, "Not of Words, but of Deeds," by giving record amounts to the FFA.

Sponsors showed their faith in the Future Farmers of America in 1985 with $2,351,942 in support to fund the organization's programs and awards. This is a new record for sponsor giving to the organization and represents a 21.8 percent increase over the 1984 campaign.

"In order to continue to expand new technology and efficiency, it is paramount that the very best talent remain in farming and agribusiness. Vocational Agriculture and FFA are the very best vehicles to ensure this continues," said Carl F. Gerhardt, 1985 National FFA Foundation sponsoring board chairman.

The FFA Foundation serves FFA members by providing monies for numerous incentive, leadership and citizenship programs on the chapter, state and national levels.

With the close of calendar year 1985, the FFA Foundation Sponsoring Committee has begun work on the 1986 fund raising campaign. William Mumsell is the 1986 Chairman, and is also Chairman of Creswell, Munsell, Fultz & Zirbel Inc. and Executive Vice President, Young & Rubicam USA, of Cedar Rapids, Iowa.

Protein, a key to better nutrition

SOUTHAMPTON – To most consumers, protein is another word for "meat." And, while most of us realize the importance of protein in the diet, few may actually know how it works, or how much we should have.

First of all, says Dairy Council Inc., Southampton, PA, proteins are needed for building and maintaining body tissue, and as part of DNA, which controls the genetic code– thus all heredity characteristics in body cells.

Proteins account for the tough, fibrous nature of hair, nails, and ligaments, and for the structure of muscles. They are a part of hemoglobin, of insulin, and of the enzymes necessary for digestion of food.

There are high-quality and low-quality proteins. Meat, fish, dairy products, and poultry– all animal products– make up the first group. Legumes (peas and beans), vegetables, and grains make up the second.

Protein quality is also divided into complete, partially-complete, and incomplete. Complete proteins (most animal products) contain all the essential amino acids or chemicals needed for digestive purposes in the proper quantity to maintain life and support growth in the young.

Partially complete proteins (such as wheat flour, cornmeal, and soy) contain all the essential amino acids, but the proportion of certain amino acids is insufficient to provide optimal synthesis.

Incomplete proteins (vegetables, fruit, legumes) lack one or more of the amino acids and, by themselves, cannot sustain life.

Some protein intake is needed daily because the body cannot store it. Many people believe they need a great deal of protein, but the truth is most of us eat too much already. Many people mistakenly depend on protein for energy, but this practice can have its drawbacks.

If more protein is consumed than is required, the extra amount is used for calories or is converted to fat. Excess protein intake also inhibits the body's ability to absorb calcium, one factor that could lead to osteoporosis.

Contrary to popular belief, exercise does not increase protein needs, with one exception: weight-lifting may require more protein than usual to build new muscle. Other conditions that require higher than normal protein intake are: pregnancy, physical stress (surgery, infection, fever, burns); people who are on a diet and don't eat sufficient calories will burn protein for energy, creating a protein deficiency.

For better nutrition, team high-quality protein foods with low-quality protein foods. For example: animal proteins and grains; beef taco; milk/cereal; tuna/rice casserole; animal products with legumes; cheese/bean stew; chili con carne with beans; ham/split pea soup; plant proteins with legumes and grains; baked beans/brown bread; peanut butter sandwich; lima beans/corn (succotash); legumes with seeds; peanuts/mixed nuts.

A mixed protein intake is possibly the best answer to the question of what kind and how much protein to eat. For the typical American, says Dairy Council, protein deficiency is rarely a problem as long as some protein is consumed daily.

USDA plans farm survey

HARRISBURG – USDA's Statistical Reporting Service is conducting a nation-wide survey in February to measure farm expenditures. Approximately 500 Pennsylvania farmers will be interviewed for this survey by representatives of the Pennsylvania Crop and Livestock Reporting Service.

In the Northeastern United States, total 1984 farm production expenditures increased 6.7 percent to an average of $54,767 per farm. However, at the national level, production expenditures decreased 2.3 percent to an average of $55,145 per farm. The upcoming survey can help pinpoint financially stressed farms by type, size and geographic distribution.

For example, last year's survey indicated that 60 percent of the financially stressed farms were concentrated in the corn belt, lake states and northern plains. Some 214,000 American farms began last year unable to pay the previous year's bills.

With the economic plight of the farmer, a national issue, accurate financial data from this survey is extremely important. It's a major means to get farmers, bankers, advisors and policy makers the facts to determine how changing regulations, input costs, returns and technology affect the agricultural economy.

All responses to this survey will be kept confidential and only used in the national and regional totals. Questions about the survey can be directed to: Pennsylvania Crop and Livestock Reporting Service by calling 717-787-3904.

Your Fields Are A Statement About The Way You Farm. Don't Trust Them To Anything Less Than Dual.

Two things are at stake when you put your corn or soybeans in each spring. Your livelihood. And your pride. That's why it's important to use the best performing herbicide you can. Dual.®

More grass control for more of the season.

Dual is a concentrated, more active chemical that needs very little rain to activate. And once it gets into the soil, it stays put. It won't leach out, so it stays close to the surface where it's most effective at stopping problem weeds and grasses during germination. So your crop will have less competition for water and nutrients during the important early growth stage.

And Dual breaks down more slowly, so it gives you two to four weeks longer control than other herbicides.

Formulated to fit the way you farm.

Dual is versatile enough to be used on corn and soybeans. With conventional or conservation tillage practices. And it can be incorporated or applied over-the-top at the same low rates

These times demand low cost per acre.

Because Dual is concentrated, you can use it at low pint rates, not quarts like other herbicides. As a result, no herbicide offers you more performance and versatility for the money per acre than Dual. And that's something that makes you and your bottom line look better. Dual from Ciba-Geigy.

LONGER LASTING DUAL®
Made Like No Other Herbicide To Perform Like No Other Herbicide.

Delaware Ag plans monthly newsletter

DOVER, DE – The Delaware Department of Agriculture will begin publishing a monthly bulletin in February, according to Agriculture Secretary William B Chandler, Jr

The Delaware AGenda will contain news and information relevant to Delaware farmers, agribusinesses and others involved in the production and marketing of food and fiber in the State The 4 page bulletin will present marketing information such as commodity prices and trends, crop reports, planting intentions, harvest summaries, and new marketing ideas

Agricultural news regarding farmland preservation agricultural chemical developments, legislative updates, and many other topics will be included, as will a monthly Agricultural Calendar of meetings and events

Agriculture Department reports such as Feed and Fertilizer test results will be published on a regular basis and special articles on issues affecting Delaware agriculture will be featured

"Although the Delaware AGenda will cover many aspects of Delaware agriculture, the main thrust will be on marketing information", said Chandler "It will be compiled and published by our marketing and promotion section in hopes of sharing useful information on a much wider basis than we currently are "

The Delaware AGenda will be mailed free of charge to any interested persons Persons wanting to be on the mailing list should contact the Department of Agriculture, Commodity Development Section, 2320 S duPont Highway, Dover, DE 19901 or call 736-4811 or 800-282-8685

Associations wanting their upcoming events listed on the Agricultural Calendar should submit them at least 6 weeks prior to the event

Nope–not when I learned about Purina®* FarmBlend®.

If you believe there truly can be a difference in feeds; that a well-balanced ration must include the proper levels and balance of amino acids, vitamins and minerals; that grains supply all energy needs; and, if you want one ration that can meet the needs of both your sows and finishing pigs...

Talk to your Purina dealer about products like FarmBlend.

Huge Planter Savings with John Deere IRAs (Inventory Reduction Advantages)

During John Deere's factory authorized inventory clearance you can save thousands of dollars on a new John Deere Max Emerge planter. And John Deere IRAs make the deal even better.

Max Emerge planter's started as a promise from John Deere to farmers. Actually several promises.

- Consistent planting depth
- Positive seed spacing control
- Uniform germination
- Maximum emergence

Now you can get all the [illegible] planter. This is the planter we've been making for now's your chance before. These are the [illegible] details.

DRAG IN THE PROFIT

Make your tractor a productive forest machine with a Farmi Logging Winch Your tractor and the Farmi Winch is a low cost solution for winching in and skidding out your firewood, pulpwood and logs

| FARMI MODEL | LINE PULL | TRACTOR SIZE |
|---|---|---|
| JL300 | 6600 LBS. | 17-30 HP |
| JL400 | 8820 LBS. | 20-40 HP |
| JL500 | 11025 LBS. | 40-60 HP |
| JL600 | 13230 LBS. | 60-150 HP |
| JL60+ | 17640 LBS. | 100-200 HP |

The winches fit any 3 point hitch Several logs can be winched in at one time The cable is locked when the logs have been winched to the tractor The 3 point hitch is raised to lift the logs off the ground when the logs are transported to the landing
We also sell studded tire chains for farm tractors and log skidders like the ones pictured on the tractor above They are made of Baron steel so they wear much longer than regular chains

Make Big Bales

TDC® - Total Density Control, is a patented "air-draulic" bale density system exclusively on Gehl round balers This remarkably simple system allows you to vary bale density and core size to adapt to changing crop conditions - giving you the flexibility you need to make quality round bales you'll be proud of Both the new 1860 and 1460 feature texturized upper belts, lower bale forming rollers, 3-ball twine box and the new optional Auto-Electric Twine-wrap STOP BY FOR A DEMONSTRATION TODAY!

Handle Big Bales!

Gehl has Put Good Ideas to Work in their 1500 bale handler. Whether you need to lift bales onto trucks, into bunks, over fence-lines, or just around the farm, this bale handler can tackle the job. Fitted to category II and III tractors, the 1500 bale handler lifts bales high enough to clear 11½ feet! Stop by and see how Gehl Put Good Ideas to Work in the 1500 bale handler!

BLADEX IN NO-TILL. BURNS WEEDS DOWN. KEEPS 'EM DOWN.

No other corn herbicide can match the 2-way killing action of Bladex® herbicide in heavy crop residue.

First, Bladex burns down young weeds (and saves money by ending the need for costly contact herbicides.) Then, through its root uptake action, Bladex provides residual control of later germinating weeds. Including tough grasses like foxtails and fall panicum that can germinate in surface trash and escape the shoot action of ordinary grass herbicides.

And unlike hit-or-miss contact/residual treatments, Bladex and Bladex combinations deliver more consistent burndown performance in no-till, especially when applied in liquid N carriers. Plus, dependable residual control under varying weed, weather and soil conditions.

Believe in Bladex for no-till. Ask your dealer about the Bladex Performance Agreement.

Shell stands behind it.

W. Pa. Wool Growers name top fleeces

BY BARBARA RADER
Staff Correspondent

HARLANSBURG — Attendance records were broken at the Lawrence-Beaver-Butler County Cooperative Sheep and Wool Growers' mid-winter meeting on Feb. 1, with 145 members turning out for a full day of activities.

Held at the Liberty Grange in Harlansburg, the meeting featured a lamb dinner, results of the annual wool contest, youth wool judging and the crowning of the Tri-County Lamb and Wool Queen.

Janet Shick, 19, the daughter of Joe and Letitia Shick, New Castle, was crowned the 1986 queen by outgoing queen Rachel Hixenbaugh.

Two age divisions and two classes of wool fleeces provided numerous opportunities for young exhibitors to win ribbons and trophies. For the third time, 10-year-old Bridget Whiting captured top honors in the junior division for ages up to 14. Other winners in the junior division included: Robbie Baron, Annie Shuler, Andrea Musser, Kelly Chaffee, Frances Shick, Wendy Hixenbaugh, Wayne Hixenbaugh, Dan Musser, Jessica Whiting, Maggie Whiting and Drew Pearce.

Becky Shick topped the senior division for ages 15 to 19. Other senior winners were Rachel Hixenbaugh, Bonnie Pearce, Julie Maxwell, Carl Shuler, Beth Spence, Stacey Pearce and John Shuler.

Class winners in the three-eighth blood class were: Bob Burry, Lloyd McCracken, Rick Dunn, Linda Mosley and Wally Spence. Linda Mosley, along with Rick Dunn, were the winners in the low-quarter class. The wool show was conducted by county agents Curt Hughes and Lee Miller.

Election of association directors also highlighted the day's events. Seven directors were chosen by members to serve a one-year term: Don Musser, New Middletown, Ohio; Robert Burry, Ellwood City; Robert Dunn, Chicora; William Fullerton, Enon Valley; Gerald Thoma, Kensington, Ohio; Keith McConnell, Volant, and Dave Whiting, Edinburg. Officers will be chosen at a later date at a meeting of the directors.

The late Bob Peoples was honored with a moment of silence. Peoples served as director of the association for 50 years, and was the last of the surviving directors of the 69-year-old cooperative.

'Colonel' kicks off Lebanon benefit

LEBANON—The Hull's Hill CR's Friendly Market rt. 72 north of the Turnpike entrance was the site of the Lebanon Area Fairgrounds Baby Beef Benefit Raffle kick-off. Carlos and Georgiana Leffler of Richland, owners of Leffler's Petroleumn, Inc., and CR's Friendly Markets hosted the event on Saturday morning.

Also on hand was a delegation of Lebanon County 4-H and FFA youth, and Lebanon County's 1986 Farm Show "baby beef" middle weight champion, "Colonel".

"Colonel", a favorite in the 1986 Farm Show steer arena, was sold by owner Leigh Hitz, an 11-year-old 4-H'er from Annville, at the Farm Show's Youth Livestock Auction. "Colonel" was purchased there by Leffler Petroleum, Inc., and CR's Friendly Markets and donated to the Lebanon Area Exposition Corporation to benefit the fairgrounds and facilities.

Dennis Grumbine, Myerstown, chairman of the Exposition Corporation Finance Committee, states that raffling the steer off in the form of "freezer ready beef" was chosen as the best alternative to merchandise the steer.

County 4-H and FFA members are offering an opportunity to win one of 20 prizes in the Baby Beef Benefit Raffle. The prizes range from a complete hindquarter of beef, to steaks, roasts and ground beef. All prizes are cut, wrapped and frozen, and ready for the freezer. The 4-H and FFA'ers will be offering a book of six tickets for a donation of $5 or $1 per ticket.

"We're looking forward to a good raffle," said county extension agent, Ken Winebark. "We have over $1,000 working for us already. Improving our Exposition facilities can do nothing but strengthen our community and youth programs."

"Colonel" and Lebanon County 4-H and FFA members will be making appearances at the following CR's Friendly Markets from 11 a.m. to 6 p.m. on the following Saturdays: February 15, Mushroom Hill CR's near the Hershey Medical Center; February 22, Avon CR's, Rt. 422 East of Lebanon; March 1, Campbelltown CR's, Rt. 322 West of Campbelltown; March 8, Schaefferstown CR's, junction Rt. 501 and 897.

The Business of Raising Sheep

Recent developments in farm policy and the regional emphasis on expanding the sheep industry has some farmers interested in sheep production as an alternative enterprise.

Choosing sheep or not can best be decided by, first, looking at some of the pros and cons of sheep production and, second, evaluating available land resources and facilities for developing a profitable enterprise.

Many Pennsylvania farmers could profit, in my opinion, by including sheep in their existing farm enterprise. Sheep produce meat as well as fiber, and today the demand for these products far exceeds the supply.

Sheep can utilize practically all types of forage. There are many acres of farmland throughout the state, principally the western third and the northern half of the state, that could efficiently accommodate a pasture/forage-base sheep enterprise. This abundant grazing base is one key to profitable sheep production. In addition, the successful producer must hava a genuine interest in the business, as well as management skill and labor to care for the sheep.

•Sheep provide a quick return on an investment.

•Sheep production systems can be altered to accommodate a defined local market.

On the other hand, there are some disadvantages to raising sheep.

•Sheep do not fare well on poorly drained pasturelands.

The sheep handling facility and related equipment are among the potential sheepman's best investments. Portable panels permit the construction of temporary corrals which are economical and serviceable for small farm flocks of 35 to 50 head. The facility should be designed so that sheep work naturally, whether you are sorting, marking, treating, weighing, shearing or loading them.

The loading chute should be the primary focus in planning an overall sheep handling facility. After you have selected the loading chute site, the corral and other equipment can be built around it. For ease in working sheep through chutes, they should face north and uphill, when possible. Sheep do not drive well toward the sun.

Another important item of equipment found on a good sheep operation is a well-trained dog. It can be difficult to operate a 100 to 200-ewe flock without canine help. A well-trained dog will prove to be more valuable than several persons.

Training sheep dogs is a highly skilled profession. Fortunately, Pennsylvania and the Eastern United States continue to be recognized nationally for having competent professionals capable of producing and training working sheepdogs. At present, the Border collie seens to be the most popular. However, many breeds are used in the sheep business.

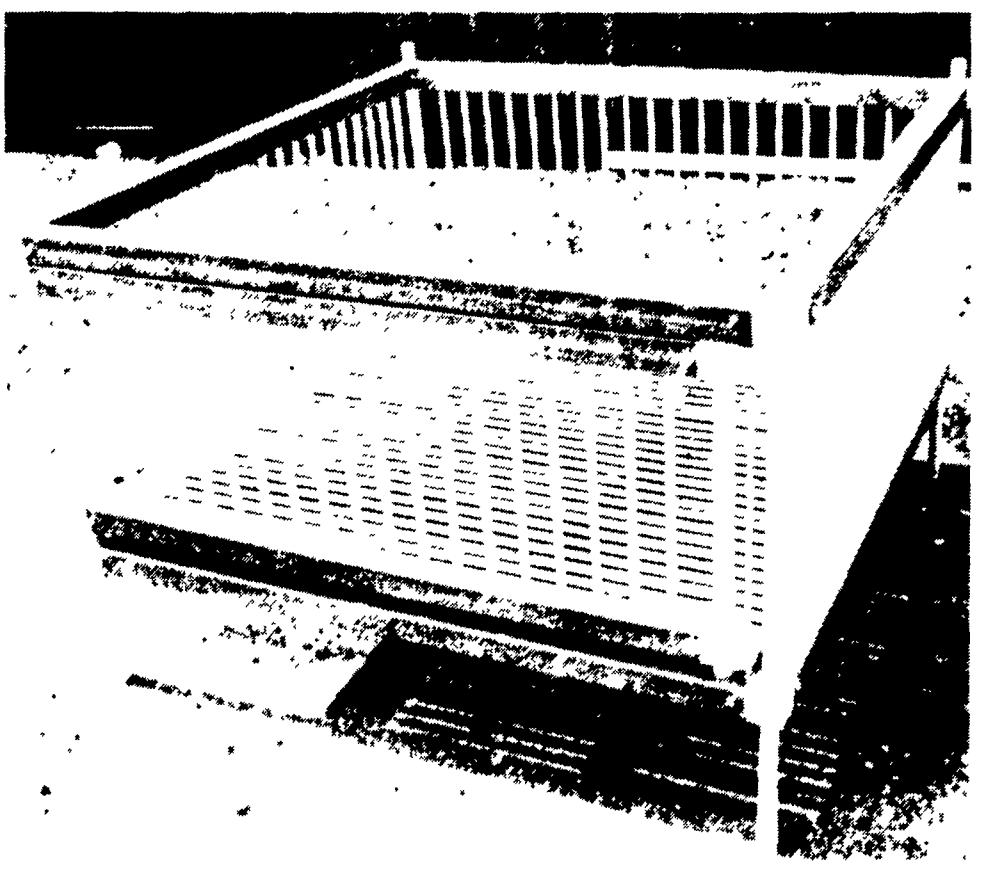
Fibre Pen comes with built-in flooring supports...at no extra cost.

Fibre-Pen's built-in floor supports offer another distinct advantage. They cost no more. And they're specially designed to take our Snap-Lock weanling flooring. It features the same ease of assembly. And it's also made of durable and sanitary fibre glass. The end result is an efficient and cost-effective system.

Assemble Fibre-Pen yourself...and save on freight.

Fibre-Pen comes in 20-foot lengths that you cut and assemble yourself. It's easy! Instructions are supplied... and you need no special tools You save a bundle on freight because it's all compact. And there's no risk of damage as in pre-assembled pens.

Fibre-Pen is made from durable fibre glass. It's safe and it's sanitary. There's no exposed steel to corrode or to cause injury. And there's no messy glue to gather dirt. It all adds up to a pen that makes your cleaning chores simple.



A Weanling Pen

You can stack Fibre-Pens for maximum use of your barn space.

Stack up to three pens safely, and get the most use from your production space. Fibre-Pen allows you a higher return on your production investment. And you can also arrange Fibre-Pens to suit other needs, too. You can allow for walkways in between and for other custom features.

WHAT IS GATOR GRATE FIBERGLASS GRATING?
* High Heat Retention
* Textured Surface - non skid footing
* Corrosion resistance - easy clean and disinfect
* Absorbs no moisture or bacteria
* Smooth rounded edges reduce risk of injury
* Exceptional durability to outlast any raised flooring available.

Harold Bucher of Peoples National Bank paid $4 a pound for Shelby Heagy's Lebanon 4-H grand champion market hog.

Lebanon 4-H'ers hold fall roundup

LEBANON—The pork outnumbered the beef by a wide margin at the Lebanon 4-H Pig and Steer Fall Roundup on Jan. 4.

The sale's 89 hogs sold for $11,839 for a sale average of 75 cents per pound. The four steers sold for $4,732, for an average beef price of $1.05 per pound. Both averages include champions.

Top selling steer was Daryl Bomgardner's entry that went home with David Martin of Dutchway Farm Market for $4 a pound. Shelby Heagy's reserve champion went to Lebanon Valley National Bank for 95 cents a pound.

Miss Heagy also topped the hog show, and earned $4 a pound for her grand champion from Harold Bucher representing Peoples National Bank.

The sale's 35 buyers paid nearly $17,000 for the 93 head of livestock.

American Pork Congress to offer sulfa testing

ST. LOUIS, MO.—Pork producers who attend the 1986 American Pork Congress at St. Louis, March 11-13, will have an opportunity to have a sample of their hog herd's finishing ration or urine sample tested to determine sulfa residue levels. The free testing program will be conducted during all three days of the Pork Congress. Producers may bring their samples to the Production Information Center (Room 260-264 at the A. J. Cervantes Convention Center) during regular Trade Show hours for their free and confidential test evaluation.

The sulfa residue problem, and what the pork industry can do about it, will also be a major topic of discussion during a Swine Health Seminar to be held on Thursday, March 13, at the Pork Congress.

Over 500 exhibits featuring all of the latest technology and services associated with the pork industry will be on view each day of Pork Congress, an annual event sponsored by the National Pork Producers Council as a service to the U.S. pork industry.

Walter Brooks' bull goes to ABS

A young Holstein bull, Brooks-Twain Memorial Craig-ET, bred by Walter Brooks, of Springville, PA, has been selected by American Breeers Service to enter their Progeny Testing Program.

He has been moved to that company's facilities at DeForest, Wisconsin, where he will join approximately 200 bulls being tested this year. During testing, Brooks-Twain Memorial Craig-ET will be mated to 700 cows in herds associated with ABS in their testing program, from all across the United States. After a four-year wait, during which his progeny will be evaluated, a decision will be made as to whether or not he enters into regular semen production.

Brooks-Twain Memorial Craig-ET is the result of a specially planned mating between the highly regarded LeMax Pawnee Memorial, +155, +1204M and +51BF and Folley Elevation Cheryl. His dam has production records to 32,660 lbs. of milk. She is classified EX-93 and is sired by Round Oak Rag Apple Elevation.

Beef Breeds Council elects leaders

KANSAS CITY, MO.—Newly elected officers of the U.S. Beef Breeds Council are President Dr. T.D. "Dusty" Rich and Vice President Gene Kuykendall. Rich is president of the American Polled Hereford Association, Kansas City, Mo., while Kuykendall is executive vice president of Beefmaster Breeders Universal, San Antonio, Texas.

The U.S. Beef Breeds Council is comprised of 15 of the major beef breed registry associations. The Council provides an opportunity for the chief executive officers of the breeds to address issues of common interest and concern to the registered seed stock industry.

USDA rural development program aids small communities

HARRISBURG – The small town of Conneautville has been troubled by a flooding problem from a small stream for many years. Businesses and industries closed or moved elsewhere because of continued losses from high water.

Thanks to a small program of the U.S. Department of Agriculture, the problem has been corrected. Under the Resource Conservation and Development Program (RC&D), a small flood prevention dam and a new conduit through town have reduced the threat of damaging floodwaters.

The project caused one borough official to exclaim that this was the first year in a long time that they did not have to pump out a single basement.

A total of 21 RC&D projects were completed in 1985. Most of the projects helped rural communities solve critical erosion problems. A Monroe County township stabilized a roadbank which was eroding at the rate of 95 tons per year and causing a hazard to traffic. Erosion and runoff problems at the Old Forge Borough Park were corrected.

"The RC&D program operates on $23 million nationally," said John Mank, Assistant State Conservationist for USDA Soil Conservation Service (SCS). SCS, which directs the RC&D program, received about $450,000 for Pennsylvania in 1985. "This was for both financial help to the rural communities and for the staff to carry it out," added Mank.

Five RC&D Areas include 35 of the 67 counties in the State. The RC&D areas are Penn Soil in the northwest, Penn's Corner in the southwest, Endless Mountains and Headwaters in the north-central, and Pocono-Northeast in the northeast.

Interest in this program remains high. Five projects are partially completed and another 44 are planned and ready for funding. "These projects represent about $1.5 million but only a few will be funded in 1986," stated Mank. "RC&D in Pennsylvania will operate with about 30 percent less dollars this year. It means that there will be more disappointed rural community officials this year. The dollars only go so far."

Change in ag will become more rapid, real estate appraiser warns

BLUE BALL — Agriculture has been changing and will continue to change at a more rapid pace in the future, real estate appraiser John Younker, Jr. told farmers attending the Blue Ball National Bank Seminar on Feb. 5.

"I think changes are coming," he said, adding, "I think we're going to have to face them now."

And, he continued, those changes will mean that some farmers will not be in agriculture ten years from now. "We may not like what we're going to see, but we have to prepare for it," he said.

Citing examples of change in agriculture, Younker noted that 30 years ago the first modern broiler house was not yet built; 20 years ago the first high-rise layer house wasn't here; and 10 years ago the first farrow-to-finish hog facility wasn't built.

Younker listed four major areas to watch and prepare for — technology, consumer, marketing and management.

In the technology category, Younker said farmers must be increasingly aware of and careful about land erosion control and waste disposal. The Chesapeake Bay Program will be of special concern to Lancaster County farmers, who, Younker said, "should think about getting their houses in order."

"I think we'd better take a hard look to see what we have to do to get our land in order," before someone else does it for us, he urged.

The future will also bring fewer farms with larger facilities. Younker noted that farmers building poultry houses today are no longer considering the 50,000 capacity houses of recent years, but are building facilities to accommodate 80,000 to 110,000 birds.

These larger facilities will make it more difficult for the small farmer to stay in business. "We've got to be very efficient if we're going to survive," he said. Not only are neighbors competing with neighbors, but with larger scale operations as well.

Consumers and changing demand will continue to have an effect on the future. Younker specifically addressed the dairy market, noting, "I think we've pretty well matured in what we can get our people to drink."

Red meat consumption will also be difficult to increase, while eggs are still recovering from a period of bad press over cholesterol.

The number of consumers is another factor influencing change in agriculture, Younker said. Lancaster County is the fastest growing county in Pennsylvania, meaning there are more consmers for farmers to market their products to. Farmers can cash in on this advantage by making as many direct sales through roadside markets as possible, he noted.

Farmers planning to stay in business must sharpen their management skills, Younker said. They need records to run their day-to-day business and must take a hard look at a product before deciding what to buy.

This is especially true when a farmer is considering purchasing land in another area. It is important to properly assess the land's value. Even if the land is much cheaper in dollars than land in this county, it is not a good buy if it is unproductive.

"If you're going to spend big bucks, spend a few hundred to hire an expert," Younker advised.

Farmers attending the bank seminar also heard from Donald Robinson, adult farm instructor of Eastern Lancaster County School District, John H. Phillips, senior trust officer of Blue Ball National Bank; and H. Louis Moore, professor of agricultural economics at Penn State University.

Dennis Wolff's bull selected by ABS

A young Holstein bull, Pen-Col Pistle-ET, bred by Dennis Wolff, Pen-Col Farms in Millville, PA, has been selected by American Breeders Service to enter their Progeny Testing Program.

He has been moved to that company's facilities at DeForest, Wisconsin, where he will join approximately 200 other bulls being tested this year. During testing, Pen-Col Pistle-ET will be mated to 700 cows in herds associated with ABS in their testing program, from all across the United States. After a four-year wait, during which his progeny will be evaluated, a decision will be made as to whether or not he enters into regular semen production.

Pen-Col Pistle-ET is the result of a specially planned mating between the highly regarded Sweet-Haven Tradition, +$157, +$1755M and +32BF and Pen-Col Valiant Portia. His dam has production records to 26,910 lbs. of milk. She is classified VG-86 and is sired by S-W-D Valiant.

John Deere honors three local dealers

SYRACUSE — The John Deere Company of Syracuse, NY has named three area dealers to its elite Manager's Club. The three are:

- Landis Bros., Inc., in Lancaster.
- H. R. Gutshall Sons, Inc., Carlisle.
- Enfield Equipment, Whiteford, MD.

The three dealers were among 15 honored by Scott Monroe, manager of the Syracuse branch ofJohn Deere, at the Manager's Club banquet sponsored by the company in Williamsburg, VA.

Dealers are selected on the basis of superior performance in all areas of operation, and commitment to quality service and customer satisfaction.

Cornell to launch groundwater study

ITHACA, NY In an unparalleled effort to determine groundwater quality throughout New York State, Cornell University will test for pesticide residues in the major groundwater systems in upstate New York. The study will be conducted for the New York State Department of Environmental Conservation.

Across the U.S., such residues have been detected in groundwaters, raising public concerns about possible threats the use of pesticides may pose to groundwater quality.

"There are particular concerns about groundwater resources in rural and farming areas because many rural residents depend on groundwater for their drinking water supplies," says Mark Walker, a hydrologist in the Center for Environmental Research at Cornell, who is directing the two-year survey.

Of the more than 600 active pesticide ingredients approved for use by the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency, only about 3 percent have been detected in ground water.

"We believe that most pesticides are either immobile in soil or very short-lived," Walker says. "Such chemicals would, therefore, rarely pose a threat to groundwater quality."

Nevertheless, some have the potential to reach groundwater. To determine to what extent pesticides are contaminating New York's groundwater, Cornell researchers will focus on up to 60 pesticides. On a regional basis, the scientists will determine which pesticides are most likely to be in the water by examining the chemical characteristics of pesticides, kinds of uses, and soil and hydrogeologic characteristics of the application sites.

"We'll be looking for those chemicals that are highly water soluble, mobile through the soils, and long-lived," Walker points out.

Although the researchers do not know whether many pesticides or their residues are in the state's groundwater, they stress that it is important to develop a monitoring program with which groundwater quality can be assessed.

If contamination is found, the project team will develop modifications in current pesticide management practices.

There is also a major public segment of the project. This portion of the project will help consumers assess the risk to themselves and explain specific problems to citizens if significant amounts of pesticide residues are detected

Sears named Purina swine specialist

LANCASTER — Purina Mills, Inc. of Lancaster and Camp Hill announced that Terry Sears of Mountville has been named area swine sales specialist with responsibility for key account sales and hog training in Purina's North Atlantic Area.

Sears, a 1972 Purdue graduate, has an extensive background in the swine industry previously being a partner in a family farming operation, manager of a farrow-to-finish unit, and most recently, five years with Kleen Leen as a division swine sales and production specialist.

"Terry brings a wealth of technical support and experience in swine production to our team," according to Purina sales manager, Glenn Shields. "We're counting on Terry to bring the latest breakthroughs in nutrition and management from Purina research to area producers to help them earn the best possible bottom line from their operation," says Shields.

Delaware IPM program nips pest problems in bud

NEWARK, Del. – Delaware field corn farmers are discovering that it pays to scout fields on a regular basis for crop pests. Since the Delaware Cooperative Extension Service introduced its field corn integrated pest management (IPM) program three years ago, participating growers have realized considerable savings through reduced pesticide applications and reduced crop losses. Last summer this program involved over 5,000 acres on 14 cooperating farms.

According to extension pest management specialist Joanne Whalen, benefits from participation included:

- Savings of approximately $10 per acre on 30 percent of the acreage involved through reduced soil insecticide use;
- Savings of $6 per acre on insecticide sprays for black cutworm and European corn borer on 50 percent of the scouted acreage;
- Identification of week breaks on 10 percent of the acreage resulting in a savings of $20,000 in crop losses;
- Weed maps showing the location and abundance of perennial weed problems;
- Improved fertility for 1986 on 10 percent of the scouted acreage where leaf tissue and soil samples were taken.

Field corn producers typically spend the majority of their time making key marketing and management decisions which prevent them from scouting their fields on a regular basis Delaware's IPM program is helping them develop more efficient pest control practices. Here's how the program works.

From plant emergence through August, each participating cornfield is visited once a week by a scout. In addition, scouts take preseason soil insect samples in late March to determine which fields need a soil insecticide treatment. Scouts also count early season plant stands and assess weed infestations to help growers determine if fields should be replanted or receive post-emergence herbicide treatment. Over the growing season weekly reports on insect activity, disease infestations, and fertility problems are sent to participating growers and Whalen to use as a basis for management decisions. Finally, in August a weed map of each field is drawn up as a record of the abundance and location of perennial and annual weeds.

The Delaware Cooperative Extension Service will again offer its field corn management program in 1986. To better meet grower needs, two options are available. The first–for total crop management–offers weekly insect, disease, and weed scouting services. In addition, plant population counts, weed mapping, and soil and leaf tissue samples will be taken. The fee is $3 an acre (excluding cost of fertility tests).

The second option–for pest scouting only–offers all the services of the first except soil and leaf tissue samples for a fee of $2 an acre.

Farmers wishing to participate in either program should contact Joanne Whalen at 451-2526 by February 15.

Veterinary Nutrition Forum held

LANCASTER – Dr. Scott Huse, Research Veterinarian from Lee's Summit, Missouri spoke at the February meeting of the Veterinary Nutrition Forum on Pfizer's new worming delivery system, Paratect

This product employs the dewormer Morantel Tartrate in a new delivery system, a sustained release cartridge. This cartridge is administered orally and lays in the reticulum to do its job.

It releases the drug here through semipermeable membranes found on both ends of the cartridge The life of this product is 90 days which provides for season long protection. This then works to break the worm life cycle and prevent reinfestation by treating the animal and the pasture.

The next meeting of the Veterinary Nutrition Forum is scheduled for March 26. The speaker will be Mitch Woodward, Nutrient Management Specialist, PSU Extension. The topic will include Water Quality, Manure Management, and the Chesapeake Bay Program.

You should spread manure as efficiently as you store it.

Modern manure storage systems may have rendered your conventional spreader obsolete

You know the problems. Slow, sloppy load-outs from storage Uneven spreads that leave "hotspots" all over your fields And design limitations that let your system's benefits run right out your spreader's leaky endgate.

Now you need equipment to handle your manure as efficiently as you store it. Equipment that gets you into the field faster And lets you spread when it best suits you and your crops

Hedlund/Martin manufactures specialized equipment for today's manure handling needs. Tough Scavenger spreaders with unique, patented, square-auger design to spread most kinds of manure—liquid, semi-solid, pen pack, even hog and poultry—all year 'round. The Vanguard spreader and Equalizer loader, specially-designed to make fast work of loading and hauling semi-solid manure. Or the large-capacity LT to spread liquid manure quickly and evenly over all kinds of terrain.

And Hedlund/Martin offers a full line of support equipment for your semi-solid and liquid manure handling needs. Basin agitators.

Vanguard for quick, even spreading of semi-solid manure

Basin pumps. Submersible pumps All designed for convenient operation and low maintenance. Ruggedly built to stand up to hard use—year after year.

Which Game Plan's For You

When it comes to the game of dairying, there are many game plans to choose from. The new dairy herd buyout has increased the list of options for many farmers.

Much has already been written and spoken, and many meetings have been held, or will soon be held, on the herd buyout. The herd buyout is not for everyone, but it is a plan that can benefit some of you.

To participate or not to participate is a decision that needs to be thought through very carefully. Get the facts, think about your future, and push the pencil carefully before making up your mind. Worksheets and computer programs are available from your Extension Agent to help you determine bid prices appropriate for your situation.

In general, these worksheets help you look at how participation in the program might affect your farm and non-farm income and expenses over a span of five years. Also to be considered are: loss of equity, tax consequences, debt reduction, fixed costs that will still have to be paid, new sources of income, changes in cost of living, cost of re-entering the dairy business after five years--if that is one of your options, etc.

Another unknown is how will future changes in milk prices and costs of production affect future profits if you elect to continue producing milk. I wish I had the crystal ball that could help me answer that question!

Management Capabilities

What level of production and what size operation are you capable of managing effectively Reasonably high levels of production and larger operations are nice to aim for -- as long as we don't exceed our management capabilities; otherwise, it can be very costly! Let's look at a few examples

In the interest of attaining a higher herd average, a farmer might elect to: feed high quality forages, higher levels of grain, feed TMR in the bunk and "top dress" higher producers by using a computer feeder, using pelleted fat-containing feeds, etc All of these would be good practices--in the hands of the right person!

"How can anyone go wrong with high quality forages?", you might ask Real high quality alfalfa is low in fiber and high in soluble nitrogen. Fed properly, it's an excellent feed for high producers Fed in excess, it can increase blood urea nitrogen levels, similar to feeding too much urea You could also be short changing cows on protein because they are not able to utilize all the protein they consume If large amounts of grain are also being fed, the cows may not be consuming sufficient fiber to maintain proper rumen pH Consequently appetites and fat tests may suffer

When you are feeding TMR, the cow is totally dependent upon you to balance her ration properly; she can't pick and choose to help cover up any errors on your part. The same is true of computer feeders. If you have the computer programmed improperly, if you do not have the feeder properly calibrated, if you do not make sure that feed is actually getting into the feed hoppers, the cow will not be getting the feed she needs to balance her ration.

Some "exotic" feeds can help high producing cows reach higher peaks and sustain high production for longer periods of time, if they are undergirded with the good management that good cows need to express their genetic potential Most of these feeds are prescribed to be fed at precise amounts Mixing errors and "a little extra dab" may cause problems. For example, fats and oils are excellent sources of concentrated energy. However, if fed in excess, they can impair digestion and interfere with mineral absorption.

The point of all this discussion is when you are trying to play in the big leagues -- 18 to 22,000 lbs. milk per cow, you'd better be prepared to play by the big league rules If not, be satisfied with a 16 to 18,000 lb herd average, and concentrate on a simpler, more foolproof, cheaper type of feeding program built upon the abundant feeding of good quality, home grown forages.

I mention size of operation earlier. Big is not always better. Be careful not to bite off more than you can chew. It's better to have fewer cows--and fewer heifers--and tend to them properly, than it is to have more than what you can adequately house, feed and care for. Fewer cattle will also permit you to rely more heavily upon home grown feeds; it can also help reduce your overhead costs.

As we look ahead to an uncertain future, attempt to build your business on a solid, unshakeable low overhead base. Perhaps some of these concepts will help you accomplish that.

MF Value Leaders

MF 3505
MF 3545

MF 3500 series tractors don t have to take a back seat to anyone in their power class. In fact, with optional 4-wheel drive, the MF 3500 tractors can often do the work of our competitors' higher-horsepower 2-wheel drive models — and do it more economically! Stop by today for a demonstration to see for yourself.

- ★ 90 to 125 hp*, 6-cylinder Perkins diesels
- ★ Choose 2- or 4-wheel drive models
- ★ Get 16 speeds from 8-speed synchromesh transmission with 2-speed Powershift
- ★ Electronic 3-point hitch for precise implement control
- ★ High visibility, spacious comfort cab

Patz Blender/Mixers Feature Tumble Mixing

Patz Blender/Mixers feature a rotating drum with internal conveying flights and a single recirculating auger This provides continuous feed flow as feed enters moves to the back and is recirculated to the front by a central auger for fast thorough mixing

Often mixing is done by the time the last ingredient is added

With optional scales you can formulate and blend rations to meet the exact needs of your cattle The electronic weigh bar scales system provides easy readout The scales are programmable to sound a buzzer and flash a light when the desired weight of the feed is reached

Two sizes 180 cubic feet mixing capacity (145 bu ) and 100 cubic feet mixing capacity (80 bu )

Patz gives you quality and dependability in every gutter cleaner Patz offers the proven forged steel hook and eye link

Your Patz gutter cleaner becomes a wise investment for you over the years because it s built to last The all steel slide and one piece steel flites with wear shoes are engineered to withstand the ruggest wear of everyday operation

And Patz gutter cleaners are adaptable to many layouts

Talk to your Patz dealer He ll show you how Patz performance means fewer problems for you And that gives you more time to manage your livestock operation for greater profit

Reliable Feeding

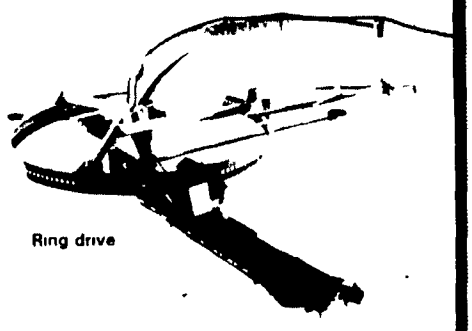
Hard packed and frozen silage makes feeding more than a routine chore

Patz gives you two solutions to the problem - the RD 820 ring drive silo unloader and the 98B surface drive silo unloader Both have a double hook gathering chain with hardened steel cutters and claws that cut through frozen and packed silage



Ring drive

Surface drive

- Spring tensioned powered cutter keeps silo walls free of buildup
- Preset depth of cut control makes feeding truly automatic (98B)
- Powerful blowers with adjustable impeller blades do the job

We ll show you how to get the most performance for your money

Gehl has the answer to every spreading need.

a. Solid

If you handle mostly solid manure, the Gehl 100 Series box spreader should be your choice It's built to give you more years of service A specially constructed floor with Clad-Tuff™ protection prevents the apron from freezing to the floor The Ex-Ten A" steel frame has more strength than ordinary steel And, the copper-bearing steel sides form a self healing rust scale that prevents pitting Six sizes are available, with load capacities from 135 up to 425 bushels heaped (243 cu ft)

b. Semi-Solid

The Gehl 500 Series gets semi-solid manure onto your fields fast and economically Loading is easy from barn cleaner or bucket with the efficient, open top design An internal chopper-type auger blends manure and forces it to the oversized, heavy-duty rear fan for wide even discharge patterns Engineered to handle high volumes, it can spread up to 1500 gallons of semi-solid manure in 2 5 minutes with uniform patterns up to 50 feet

c. Liquid

If you handle only liquid manure, a Gehl 700 Series liquid tanker should be your choice Featuring an internal auger, it spreads evenly uphill or down Plus two discharge outlets let you choose either high application rates and fast unloading or moderate application rates And, a fill indicator helps prevent overflow during loading

d. All of the above

The one spreader for a two spreader farm, a Gehl 300 Series spreader lets you spread liquids, semi-solids pen pack, even frozen manure The patented heavy duty square tube auger makes the big difference Turning at low RPM, it produces a unique "pulse action" that breaks up manure in the tank Specially formed paddles rip through tough clods to deliver a steady, constant flow to the discharge The auger can be powered up and down to chop through bridged and frozen material Variflo discharge gives you complete application control
